125-Mile Winds Smash at Miami

Peace Up to Reds, Truman Says

Hurricane Leaves Part of City In Darkness

Traffic Is Halted, Water Mains Fail; Storm Moves On Palm Beach

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 18 (AP). A small but vicious tropical hurricane buffeted Miami with slashing winds up to 125 miles an hour tonight, then swirled on northward toward Palm Beach and the Lake Okeechobee area.

First reports indicated the city, buffeted by the screeching winds and drenched by an accompanying downpour, had escaped extensive damage, except for many broken power lines, uprooted trees, toppled radio masts and, in some cases, shattered windows.

Large parts of Miami were left in darkness when power lines snapped. The electricity failures caused temporary breakdowns of the water supply in some neighborhoods, but auxiliary pumping units powered by steam or diesel engines were called into action at most of the water stations.

Both towers of radio station WOAM, owned by the Miami Herald, collapsed. One was 400 feet high, the other 275 feet.

Radio station WIOD, owned by the Miami Daily News, also lost both of its masts, each 300 feet high.

Fort Lauderdale, next major city in the hurricane's path, reported winds up to 75 miles an hour as the storm center approched there.

At Pompano Beach, 10 miles north of Fort Lauderdale, electric service was restored about midnight after the town had been in darkness for two and a half hours.

Weather conditions in Miami began to improve shortly after 1 a.m. The barometer was climbing and the wind on the south side of the doughnut-shaped hurricane was weaker than the north side peak of 125 miles an hour.

The wind picked up after the storm center passed, but highest reported was 70 to 78 miles an hour, the Weather Bureau said. Sustained winds of 101 miles an hour with gusts up to 116 miles were measured at the downtown Weather Bureau station.

The peak recording of 125 miles was reported from the Miami Airport weather station.

The barometer had dropped to 28.25 inches in Miami.

Lights went out in two hospitals. All causeways linking Miami with Miami Beach were closed to motor traffic.

Buses Are Stopped

All public buses were ordered off the streets before midnight. Police headquarters urged all traffic to stay off the streets until further notice.

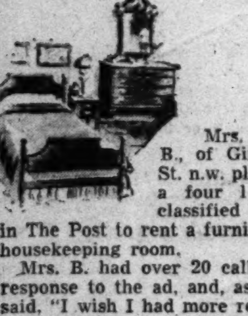
Two storm casualties were reported. Benjamin Parker, 62, an American Legion security policeman, was struck on the head by a flagpole that snapped off its base at the Little River School in northwest Miami. He was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital in serious condition.

Herbert Andrew, 45, was taken to St. Francis Hospital after he was blown into an elevator shaft of a Miami Beach Hotel.

Domestic water service at the Miami Herald and the Associated Press bureau failed at midnight.

The Weather Bureau said the storm center should reach the vicinity of Palm Beach early Wednesday morning.

20 Calls from Post Room to Rent Ad



Mrs. R. B., of Girard St. n.w. placed a four line classified ad in The Post to rent a furnished housekeeping room.

Mrs. B. had over 20 calls in response to the ad, and, as she said, "I wish I had more rooms to rent."

She doesn't, but how about you? If you have a room to rent, place a want ad in The Post. It'll reach the kind of people you want, and you'll get successful results rapidly, just as Mrs. B. did.

All you have to do is phone NAtional 4200 and ask for Classified.

Police Find Wife Slain in Bed

MRS. EDITH NEMM

Suicide Failure Bares Killing Of Wife in Bed

Husband Survives Blow by Auto, Then Tells of Her Slaying

A 50-year-old Washington carpenter was under police guard at Gallinger Hospital last night, charged with the early-morning murder of his 58-year-old wife in their apartment at 204 Fifth st. se.

The man, Evald Nemm, babbled a confession of the strangle-slaying to police shortly after he tried to throw himself under the wheels of an automobile at 6:05 a. m.

William James, 40, of 1308 E st. ne., said Nemm jumped from behind a pillar under the overpass at 2d st. and Florida ave. ne. directly into the path of his car.

It was on the way to Casualty Hospital that Nemm told Dr. Vincent Chen, in incoherent phrases, that he had killed his wife.

Unwilling at first to believe his story, Police Investigator Harold Gipe finally dispatched a radio car from the Fifth Precinct to the apartment, where they found Mrs. Nemm's body on a bed, her head covered with a sheet and comfort, her body clothed in a pink housecoat.

According to police, she had been tied with two pieces of clothesline circling her neck, both hands and feet and her back. Any movement of her body exerted pressure on the rope around her neck, which bore finger marks.

Homicide Detective Sergt. A. D. Clarke, summoned by Fifth Precinct, reached the scene 15 minutes later. He cut away the ropes from her body and lifted the sheet and comfort from her head. She was gagged, her face slashed.

Police found a bloody butcher knife with a 7-inch blade in a waste basket in the room.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, who pronounced Mrs. Nemm dead at 7:45 a. m., placed time of death at between 4 a. m. and 6 a. m.,

Thailand, U. S. Sign Military Agreement

U. S. to Help France Equip 10 Divisions

Much of Half-Billion For Asia Now Set For Indo-China Use; Arms Output Aided

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The United States assured France yesterday of enough military aid to put 10 fully equipped divisions into the field by the end of next year.

The pledge came at the end of almost a week of friendly and fruitful meetings between ministers and other high officials of the two governments.

A State Department announcement disclosed the French would get:

1. "By far the largest single part" of the five billion dollars which Congress voted for military help for Europe in the 1950 and 1951 fiscal year;

2. For use in Indo-China, "the major part" of the half-billion dollars voted last year and this year for military aid to the Far East; and

3. An additional 200 million dollars to help push French military production.

Nine U. S. Armed Divisions

A French spokesman said last night, with obvious satisfaction, that all this American help would be used to complete the equipment of five divisions and to equip four brand-new divisions, making nine to be armed with American-produced weapons. A tenth division, he said, would be equipped with arms produced in France itself.

The amounts agreed upon yesterday are not final. The total assistance for France, both in finished weapons and in production help, will have to be worked out later on the basis of discussions among all the 12 North Atlantic treaty countries.

Still, an informed American source estimated last night, France is sure to get not less than from 30 to 40 percent of all the money Congress has appropriated for military aid to Europe and the Far East. This assurance should help the French government in the critical parliamentary debate now under way in Paris.

Largest Ground Force

There was no surprise in the news that France would get the biggest slice of American military help for Europe. France will have the largest ground force and largest number of foreign troops on her soil when the combined Western defense force comes into existence.

But it was a surprise to have an official announcement that "the major part" of Far Eastern aid would be used in Indo-China. Although exact figures were not disclosed, the announcement showed how seriously the United States views the Communist danger in Indo-China and the setbacks which French troops have suffered there.

Last night's statement said light bombers would be included in the help for Indo-China, and that American supplies would go both to the French troops and to those of the associated native states. The statement said "a paricularly high priority" has been given to the delivery of weapons for Indo-China.

Defies U. N. Rule

Rhee Sends Governors To N. Korea

SEOUL, Korea, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Synghman Rhee, President of South Korea, said today his government is sending civil administrators into liberated areas of North Korea, despite United Nations action to limit his authority to the South.

"The Korean people have a sovereign right to set up their own government," he said.

Rhee criticized adoption of a U. N. Korean interim commission resolution restricting activities of his government to the area south of the thirty-eighth parallel and calling for nation-wide elections. He said he believed the Koreans were being sabotaged in the U. N.

He admitted he is sending governors for five northern provinces. They were appointed by Rhee and have been functioning in Seoul for the last two years.

This is only a temporary measure, he said. If the governors are unpopular with the people or unfit for their jobs, they will be replaced, he added.

Vishinsky Asks Peace Patrol Place for Reds

Demand Follows Talk With Dulles; Rejected By Sponsors of Plan

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 17 (AP).—Andrei Y. Vishinsky demanded today that the Big Powers, including Russia, be given seats on a proposed U. N. peace patrol commission. But sponsors of the American-supported plan turned him down until they can see how the Soviet Union will act on their whole anti-aggression program.

Vishinsky spoke after a 40-minute closed-door session with John Foster Dulles, American delegate and one of the chief framers of the anti-aggression resolution.

The two delegates were smiling after their talk but it appeared they had reached no agreement on the program, known as the seven-point proposal on "United Action for Peace."

After the meeting, Dulles issued this statement:

"We talked over some of our differences regarding the United Action for Peace resolution. There was a full and frank exchange of views without positive results, other than a better understanding of our respective positions."

Before passing out the statement, Dulles showed it to Vishinsky, who said it was the way he felt, too.

After a luncheon conference of the seven sponsors of the resolution, Lester B. Pearson, Canadian Foreign Minister, answered Vishinsky's demand. He said it would

South Korean Units Reported 8 Miles From Capital, U. S. 1st Cavalry, 14

TOKYO (Wednesday), Oct. 18 (AP).—South Korean and American troops raced each other for the Red capital of Pyongyang today. South Korean advance units were reported only 8 miles away this morning.

The Republic of Korea's First Division reached that position at 9 a. m. (7 p. m., EST, Tuesday).

South of Pyongyang, advance units of the United States First Cavalry were reported this morning within 14 miles of the capital.

Organized resistance on the road to the Red capital appeared ended. The climax to the 15-week-old war seemed near at hand. United States and South Korean columns sped forward on all fronts.

Hundreds of Red troops, ordered to make a death-stand defense of Pyongyang, downed their arms. Advancing United States columns sped past huge piles of abandoned supplies, arms and ammunition, field dispatches said.

Communist Chieftain Kim Il Sung and other leaders of his collapsing Pyongyang government may have fled to the Manchurian border or to a mountain hideout near it, some high American Army officers and Korean civilian sources believe.

As the massive United Nations breakthrough drive gathered momentum, the South Korean Capital Division and elements of other Republican troops captured the twin industrial cities of Hamhung and Hungnam on the east coast. Mopping-up operations were in process in the two cities, 110 miles south of the Manchurian border, Eighth Army headquarters said.

On the west coast the veteran United States Twenty-fourth Division, after rolling 78 miles in 24 hours, was given the important mission of clearing Chinnampo, Pyongyang's port 27 air miles southwest of the Red capital.

The main drive was for Pyongyang, however. High military commanders considered that with the fall of the Red capital the organized fighting phase of the Korea war would end.

New Training-Service Plan For Youths Being Prepared

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman has ordered major Government agencies concerned with mobilization to prepare a broad, new program providing universal training and service for all American youths.

Officials said the program, now under preparation, almost certainly will propose a new system of conscription to replace the present Selective Service and proposed institution of UMT.

It is aimed not only at giving military training to physically fit young men, but civil defense and other nondefense training to those not qualified for duty in the armed forces. And it also is expected to include provision for supplying the military forces with adequate numbers of men for actual service as, distinguished from training.

Urged by Lyndon Johnson

The presidential directive to draft such a coordinated program—indorsed by all the agencies involved—was issued at the instance of Chairman Lyndon H. Johnson (D., Tex.) of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee.

Senator Johnson's group is charged by the over-all Senate Armed Services Committee with having a UMT bill ready for Congress when it returns next month. It also is engaged in a broad survey of the manpower situation.

Rather than find then that the U. S. Nips Red Try In U. N. to Cut Charwomen's Pay

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 17 (AP).—The United States today accused Russia of advocating "inhuman" and sweatshop labor for cleaning women at U. N. headquarters. Attacking a Soviet-suggested $5000 reduction in U. N. budget provision for charwomen's overtime and night differential pay, U. S. Delegate Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.) said:

"We don't want to depress wage scales in the United States."

Russia's Alexei A. Roshchin dropped his proposal tempotarily.

U. S. Vessel Took Steel To Red China

By The Associated Press

The master of the U. S. freighter Flying Cloud acknowledged yesterday he delivered steel plate, radio tubes, wire and other material to Communist China after the outbreak of the Korean war.

But the skipper, Capt. F. H. Rylander, denied his cargoes were contraband and swore they had been cleared by U. S. Customs officials and Army authorities. Rylander gave his version of the Flying Cloud's China trade to a Senate Commerce subcommittee investigating the incident.

Chairman O'Conor (D., Md.) told Rylander:

"It seems to me it's reprehensible for any shipments of strategic materials to be sent to Red China at this time. If there is anything wrong, we intend to get it and expose it."

O'Conor told newsmen the inquiry will be broadened to cover the Government's entire policy toward halting the flow of war-potential materials to Communist countries since the start of the Korean war.

The Senator said officials of the State and Commerce Departments will be asked to testify when hearings are resumed Thursday.

He said he is particularly interested in finding out what American materials are going to China, whose Communist leaders have long threatened to invade Formosa, now being guarded by the United States Seventh Fleet, and have hinted at aid to Red Korea.

Rylander conceded he had intended to deliver some 5000

President Lists Steps That Soviet Must Take

Free World to Build Strength for Fight Unless Proof of Wish For Accord Is Given

(See Text on Page 12)

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17. President Truman told the Soviet Union tonight how it can restore world peace in one of the most vigorous foreign policy speeches of his career.

He challenged the Soviet Government to show by deeds the sincerity of its desire for peace.

The free world, he told the Communist regime, is going to continue to build up its strength in readiness to fight, unless and until Russia gives some earnest of her pacific intentions. He suggested that Russia could prove her will for harmony by:

1. Joining the rest of the U.N. in calling on the North Koreans to quit.

2. Lifting the Iron Curtain permitting free exchange of information and ideas.

3. Joining the U.N. to establish a workable system of collective security that will permit elimination of the A-bomb and arms reduction.

Until Soviet Russia does these things, the President declared, "We are determined to build up the common defensive strength of the free world."

Warns Asia of Russian Trap

He also warned Asia of a Russian trap that would make its peoples "colonial slaves of a new imperialism."

In a speech in San Francisco's War Memorial Opera House, Mr. Truman opened a counter-offensive against Soviet propaganda in a part of the world where the Kremlin strategists have made their greatest gains among the Chinese and others. He was out to drive a wedge between the East and Moscow, and he flung back at the Russian propagandists the very words they themselves have used to most advantage—"colonialism" and "exploitation."

Mr. Truman spoke before a capacity crowd of 3500. On the stage with him were the men who accompanied him to Wake Island, together with Attorney General J. Howard McGrath and Undersecretary of the Navy Dan Kimball, Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, got terrific applause when introductions were made.

Warren, Roosevelt Present

Gov. Earl Warren of California and his wife and daughters sat in a box seat in the balcony. Below, amidst the general public, were James Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for Warren's job, and Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate.

The President was interrupted frequently by applause. His re-

'Pancakes Oscar' Please President, He Asks for Recipe

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17 (AP). President Truman enjoyed a breakfast confection so much today that he asked for the recipe.

He had melon, orange juice and "Pancakes Oscar."

Maitre d'Hotel William Wachter of the Fairmount said it was the latter that intrigued the Presidential taste, and he got the details of preparation.

"Pancakes Oscar," said Wachter, are a specialty of the Fairmount. They consist of eight very thin wheat cakes the size of dinner plates, with brown sugar and butter between each. They are topped with a special marshmallow sauce, baked brown on top and served with fresh strawberries.

First Chest Drive Report Shows $479,593 Pledged or Collected

A little over one tenth of the Washington area Community Chest goal of $4,260,000 has been collected or pledged so far in the campaign.

Workers of nine business and Government units attending the first general report luncheon of the campaign yesterday at the Hotel Washington accounted for 11.26 percent, or $479,593.35 in contributions. The drive opened last Thursday.

Hugh Duffield, general chairman of the campaign, called it a "good start" but indicated there is room for improvement.

"We still have 252,027 persons yet to be provided for," he said.

Out in front with 17.02 percent of its quota raised, the Government unit reaped $286,394.29 of its $1,682,000 total. Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service and vice chairman of the unit, reported.

With 11.97 percent of its goal accounted for, the Fairfax unit was next highest percentagewise. It now has $4728.62 of its $39,500 quota, according to Joseph E. Freehill, chairman.

John S. Hayes, chairman of Business Unit II, accountable for collecting $1,658,800, reported 8.53 percent on the books, a total of $141,472.19.

Two units, the Special Solicitation and Business-Employe Unit II, said they would have fuller reports at their report meetings Friday.

However, Mrs. Harold H. Burton, chairman of the Special Solicitation unit, already had checked off 7.79 percent or $24,274.50 of a total goal of $311,500.

About 4.81 percent of a $243,200 quota had been collected or pledged, William Haggerty, vice chairman of Business Unit II itemized. The amount totaled $11,704.95.

The remaining reports lined up in this order:

Alexandria — 4.89 percent ($3965.30 collected of a $81,000 quota);

Prince Georges—3.63 percent ($1887.50 collected of a $52,000 goal);

Montgomery — 2.66 percent ($3430.75 collected of a $129,000 goal).

Reports covered pledges made before the campaign started on October 12 and gifts received since that time.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia, reiterated General Marshall's early appeal "for a spirit of sacrifice in our civilian population," in a special talk to the luncheon group yesterday.

Another speaker at the luncheon was Miss Elsie Wyvill, representing the District of Columbia Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Tire Makers Hit

U. S. to Curtail Use of Rubber To Build Up Nation's Stockpile

The National Production Authority, dissatisfied with earlier efforts to conserve rubber, yesterday announced it will issue shortly a sharper order to curtail usage by tire and other rubber manufacturers.

The order will limit the total amount of natural rubber consumed in November and December, as well as the amount of total new synthetic and natural.

Officials indicated they would seek to limit consumption to about 90,000 tons a month—a goal set in August but missed by a wide margin. Because of a liberal appeals procedure, the industry actually consumed more than 105,000 tons of new rubber in September, rubber executives reported.

The aim is to make more natural rubber available to the Government stockpile. The order will apply only to the last two months of the year, but the industry agreed to reduce its use during the rest of this month. Also, the committee will return next week to plan rubber conservation steps after January 1.

Ultimately, NPA officials have indicated, the goal is to have the industry using about 65 percent synthetic and 35 percent natural rubber.

The curtailment will not prove unduly severe, it was predicted, providing that the "moth-balled" synthetic plants now being restored to use are brought into production rapidly.

The new order will replace an August regulation under which total rubber usage was to have been limited during September and the final quarter of the year. At that time rubber consumption had soared to 116,000 tons a month.

Reds Fire On Sailors Plunged In Sea When Mines Sink 2 Ships

By the United Press

Two more United States minesweepers were sunk by mines off Korea last Thursday and Communist shore batteries shelled the survivors as they struggled in the water for their lives, the Navy disclosed yesterday.

The steel-hulled vessels Pirate and Pledge blew up and sank within 6 minutes of each other, with casualties of one sailor dead, 12 missing and 79 injured—40 on the Pledge and 39 on the Pirate.

Five United States warships now have been sunk or damaged by mines laid by the North Koreans. Total casualties to date are 12 killed, 36 missing and 96 injured.

The Pirate and Pledge survivors were picked up by the minesweepers Endicott and Incredible.

The Navy said that while the rescue was under way, the survivors and rescue ships were fired on by Red coastal batteries on Sin-Do island off Wonsan. These were quickly silenced by other warships and carrier-based planes.

The Navy again warned yesterday that the mines—mostly of Russian make—still are a menace to United Nations shipping. Some are moored. Some are the internationally outlawed floating types, ruled illegal because of their menace to nonmilitary shipping.

U. N. patrol boats and minesweepers destroyed 12 mines Monday.

New Low, Says Hanley Of 'Pay-Off' Charge

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP).—Lieut. Gov. Joe R. Hanley tonight labeled as "a new low in political smears" a charge that he was paid off to drop out of the Republican race for Governor.

He added his denial to one by GOP Gov. Thomas E. Dewey amid demands for a grand jury probe of the matter.

In a radio address. Hanley seemed surprised that opponents put a "pay-off" interpretation on a letter in which he wrote:

"If I will consent to take the nomination to the United States Senate, I am definitely assured of being able to clean up my financial obligations within 90 days . . ."

The letter was written to a GOP supporter after a conference Hanley had with Dewey last September.

Hanley said there was "no commitment of any kind" and financial matters were not discussed "even remotely" when he decided to run for the Senate—leaving the gubernatorial field to Dewey.

Denies Anything Crooked

"If there was anything crooked about it, I wouldn't have written the letter," he said, a trace of emotion in his voice. "I have more sense than that."

In talks with Dewey, Hanley said he was pleased to learn that a State pension was available to augment his Senate salary if he was elected. This solved one problem for him, Hanley said.

Another problem was solved, Hanley added, when Dewey assured him that—if he was beaten for senator—there would be some sort of State job for him. But, Hanley added:

"My financial affairs were not discussed with Mr. Dewey either then or at previous meetings."

Dewey Also Denies Charge

Earlier, Dewey also denied to a hastily called news conference that Hanley was bought off to quit the race for Governor.

However, the statements failed to silence critics—in and out of the Republican Party—who demanded a grand jury probe of the reported deal.

Republican Publisher Frank Gannett, a precampaign backer of Hanley for Governor, suggested a grand jury inquiry. So did an official of the American Labor Party.

And Representative Walter A. Lynch, Democratic-Liberal opponent of Dewey for Governor, heaped fuel on the fire at his own news conference—and revealed his version of how the cat got out of the bag.

He said there is a law against offering or taking any consideration for nomination or election to public office. He referred to the Hanley letter as a "confession" that a deal was arranged at Dewey's New York City headquarters.

Sees Enough Evidence

Lynch added:

"The evidence, will develop where it took place and, I assume, there is enough evidence in New York County that some action should be taken by a grand jury."

However, a spokesman for District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said he had evidence—contrary to Lynch's—that neither Hanley nor Dewey were in New York when the conference referred to in the letter was held.

Therefore, the spokesman said, Hogan cannot take any action "inasmuch as the events described in the letter took place outside of his jurisdiction."

Lynch said he first learned of Hanley's now-famous letter three weeks ago "from a great many Republicans who have no use for Dewey and have knowledge of the circumstances under which Hanley withdrew."

Housing Head Warns Costs Could Kill Plan

DETROIT, Oct. 17.—Public housing costs too much at present, and the high expenditures could kill the program, Federal Public Housing Commissioner John Taylor Egan warned tonight.

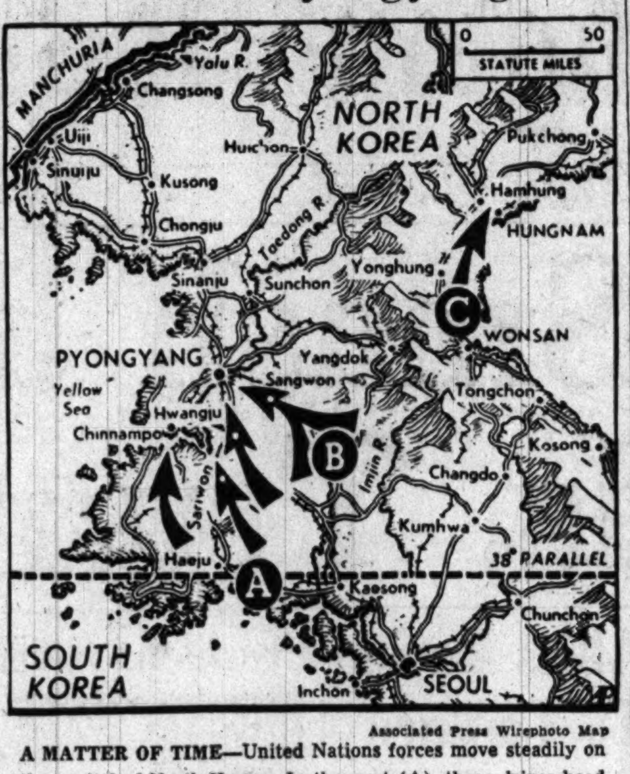
"Let economy be your watchword," he told some 800 local housing administrators gathered here for the seventeenth Annual Conference of the National Association of Housing Officials.

As a means of achieving such economy, Egan outlined seven steps "to combat the trend to high cost housing":

1. Establishment of the present PHA dwelling space standards as maximum and an older set of standards, set up in 1942, as minimum.
2. Establishment minimum density requirements for various types of dwelling buildings in order to reduce site and site improvement costs.
3. Limitation on certain types of structures and materials.
4. Re-examination of room ratios per family in existing programs.
5. Establishment of more uniform basis of cost estimating.
6. Requests to local authorities to secure waivers of unreasonable building and zoning code requirements.
7. New attention to promoting greater competition in bidding.

Egan said new public housing projects can be "better and more attractive than those built before the war." But he told the local administrators to "make economy your goal from the very start."

The Race for Pyongyang . . .



Associated Press Wirephoto Map

A MATTER OF TIME—United Nations forces move steadily on the capital of North Korea. In the west (A), three drives head for Pyongyang: the U. S. 24th Division pushes for Chinnampo, the port of Pyongyang; the British 27th Brigade storms into Sariwon, and the U. S. First Cavalry speeds past Hwangju and within 14 miles of Pyongyang. Two South Korean forces (B), link up at Sangwon and advance to within 8 miles of the doomed capital. On the east coast (C), other South Koreans take the twin industrial cities of Hungnam and Hamhung cles in Tokyo expected a tedious, large-scale mop-up operation throughout a unified Korea.

The South Korean First Division, led by Gen. Paik Sun Yu—himself a native of Pyongyang—was in the vanguard of the advance on the North Korean seat of government.

Racing to beat the steamroller United States First Cavalry Division, the veteran Republican Division pushed ahead 30 miles throughout Tuesday to within 12 miles of Pyongyang after dark.

"We will push hard tomorrow," 33-year-old General Paik. told AP Correspondent Jack MacBeth.

Paik's troops at times had to be restrained from breaking into a trot. They paused only to catch their breath.

One tank-led column of the Republican First Division and another infantry force linked at nightfall at Sangwon, about 20 air miles southeast of Pyongyang. They clipped off another eight miles before halting.

Equally determined to keep a distinguished record of "firsts" intact, the United States First Cavalry Division sent a 30-mile long column of tanks, motorized troopers and supplies rolling along the primary highway to Pyongyang. They last were reported about 18 miles away.

Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay's troopers had been first into Manila and first into Tokyo. They were first to link up the Pusan and Inchon beachheads south of the thirty-eighth parallel. After 92 days in the line they wanted to concede to no one the honor of being first into the Red capital.

Reds Are Disorganized

AP Correspondent Hal Boyle reported that long before dusk Tuesday a task force of Cavalrymen speared beyond Hwangju, about 20 air miles south of its big goal. It seized a highway bridge before the surprised enemy could blow it up and kept rolling through disorganized Red defenses.

The cavalry, too, set its sight on reaching Pyongyang's outskirts at least by Wednesday. This would be two days ahead of the timetable set by higher headquarters.

Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the United States Eighth Army predicted Tuesday that Pyongyang would fall in "less than a week."

Both the United States and South Korean thrusts were pushing through relatively open country.

Joining in the blistering race to seize Pyongyang was the British Twenty-Seventh Brigade, made up of the famed Middlesex Regiment and the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, as well as a detachment of Australian troops.

Commonwealth troops stormed into Sariwon, 35 miles south of Pyongyang, and found 300 enemy dead.

First Cavalry troopers had bypassed Sariwon after sending a reconnaissance patrol into the rail and highway junction.

The patrol captured two Communist supply trains which the Air Force had trapped in a tunnel and reported:

"We are ready to start our own railroad line if necessary to bring up supplies."

The Air Force kept pace with the hard-driving foot troops. C-54 transport planes flew into a dirt airfield at Sinmak, less than 24 hours after it was seized by ground troops. Sinmak is only 50 air miles southeast of Pyongyang.

The Air Force brought in hundreds of tons of communication equipment, motor fuel, combat rations and other supplies to support the ground forces.

Air Tactics Aid Breakthrough

Tactical missions of the Air Force and Navy played a highly important role in paving the way for the United Nations breakthrough.

Maj. Gen. Earl E. Partridge, commanding the Fifth Air Force, reported his fighter-bombers had destroyed four successive roadblocks at Haeju, important Yellow seaport 65 miles south of Pyongyang, to afford the United States Twenty-fourth Division rapid transit through that area on its way north. Other fighters destroyed a train and 20 cars caught steaming toward the Red capital 20 miles north of Haeju.

Far East Air Force B-29s, flying individually and in small units, drubbed rail and communication networks in northwestern Korea.

Planes of a Navy task force off the east coast paced the advancing South Korean troops into the outskirts of Hamhung and its big, well-developed port of Hungnam on the east coast.

Troops of the South Korean First Corps concentrated on the east coast smash which now has penetrated more than 130 miles north of the thirty-eighth parallel.

Elements of the Republican Capital and Third Division were making a dual push northward with strong Navy air support.

The rapidly developing United Nations breakthrough obscured reports on the South Korean Sixth Division. It last was reported Monday at Koksan, 50 air miles east southeast of Pyongyang on the right flanks of the pile-driving

On the extreme west flank the United States Twenty-fourth Division, hero of "heartbreak highway" in the slow costly retreat of the early days of the war, appeared to have lost out in a spirited race to be the first American outfit into Pyongyang.

Only one dirt road led north from Hwangju and it was a question whether the Twenty-fourth or the First Cavalry would be given the green light.

A field dispatch said a command decision gave the nod to the First Cavalry to carry on its scissors movement from the south while the Republican First Division clipped in from the east.

Must Cross Haedong River

The Twenty-fourth would veer to the west for its flanking advance. In its path was the important Red port of Chinnampo. To reach Chinnampo the Twenty-fourth will have to cross the broad Taedong River.

British carrier planes off Korea's west coast pounded Chinnampo's dock area and harbor installations, a British spokesman in Hongkong announced. The carrier planes also destroyed four mine-laying junks and a large motor vessel.

Vice Admiral Arthur D. Struble, commanding the United States Seventh Fleet, credited the minesweeper units with clearing out "the most extensive mine field we have encountered" in the war, off Wonsan.

Typhoon Hits Battle Area In Indo-China

SAIGON, Indo-China Oct. 17. (U.P.)—A typhoon swirled across northern Indo-China today as French forces stripped for action in Langson, last big fortress-town on the Communist China frontier and key to the rice-rich Red River delta.

High winds grounded all French planes and sheets of rain obscured the movements of the Viet Minh rebels who, rolling south along a chain of broken forts, seized Nacham Saturday to strike within 90 miles of Hanoi, principal city of the north.

Shortly before the storm hit, Jean Letourneau, French minister of Associated States, and Gen. Alphonse Juin, veteran French colonial officer, arrived by plane from Paris to make a first-hand survey of what can be done to stop the southward surge of Ho Chi Minh's Communists.

In a broadcast to his rebels tonight, however, Ho said he did not plan an immediate general offensive into North Indo-China's Red River delta.

(In London, reliable sources said the British Foreign Office believed that Indo-China had supplanted Korea as the danger spot of the Far East. These sources said both Britain and the United States may advise France to seek a political settlement with the Moscow-trained Ho.)

United States Minister Donald Heath, Far East commander in Chief Gen. Marcel Carpentier, High Commissioner Leon Pignon and members of the diplomatic corps met Letourneau and Juin at the airport.

Since September 18, when Communists overran Dongkhe, after their 105-mm. cannon had blasted its clay walls, the drive south of Ho's black-uniformed natives virtually has been interrupted. Ho now controls roughly 236 miles of Indo-China's border with Red China.

The violent tropical storm struck at the end of the monsoon season as thousands of civilians, most of them French and native women and children, were streaming out of Langson.

Tree-bending winds and blinding rain curtained the rocky military theater around Dong Dang and Langson, the next two targets for the Viet Minh troops.

Indo-China Statement Is Promised by Plevin

PARIS, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Premier Rene Pleven today promised the angry National Assembly a full statement Thursday on the Communist "second front" offensive in Indo-China that has thrown back the French Far Eastern army in a series of humiliating defeats.

The deputies returned today after a two and one-half month summer recess, grim-faced and demanding explanations of the Indo-China debacle. Dispatches indicated the whole French defense line was crumbling.

Doctor Draft Starts Rush To Avoid Army

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The doctor-draft law, aimed at pressuring young medical men into the Army, has created a rush of draft-eligible physicians into the Air Force and Navy, it was learned yesterday.

In an effort to divert some of these "volunteers" into the hard-pressed Army—which has had to borrow 570 Navy doctors to meet its need in the Korean war—the Navy placed a limitation on new reserve medical commissions.

The Navy will no longer accept into its medical service those physicians and dentists who received their medical training during World War II under the Army's specialized training program and who later served less than 21 months in uniform.

Two other groups of draft-eligible medical men—those who were trained under the Navy's V-12 program, who were given a draft deferment and continued their medical training at their own expense—may still qualify for Navy medical commissions.

Since July 1—a few days after the outbreak of the Korean war and just about at the beginning of the move to draft doctors—200 physicians have volunteered for Navy service and already have been commissioned. About 400 other applicants are currently being processed.

From July 1 through October 13, the Army has commissioned 161 volunteer physicians, 105 dentists, and 41 veterinarians, some of whom were reservists, and some draft eligibles.

There was some speculation that the Department of Defense might in the near future halt all commissioning of draft-eligible medical volunteers by the Air Force and Navy in order to funnel these volunteers into the Army.

The Army has already asked for a draft of 922 doctors, 500 dentists, and 100 veterinarians by January 15. These figures will be reduced if enough volunteers show up.

Even at this late date, however, the Army is loath to put the doctor draft rate into operation, and plans to give the draftee an opportunity to apply for a commission right up to the last minute.

The Army Surgeon General's office is not yet certain what the "last minute" will be, but a spokesman noted that the medical draftee is given 21 days' notice to clean up his affairs before being ordered up for induction.

A tallying up of Monday's registration showed the following results: Washington — 238 doctors, 59 dentists, 2 veterinarians; Alexandria—5 doctors, 1 dentist, 3 veterinarians; Arlington County—2 doctors, 3 dentists, 3 veterinarians; Fairfax County—1 doctor, 3 dentists; Montgomery County—30 doctors, 11 dentists, 4 veterinarians; Prince Georges County—4 doctors, 3 dentists, 3 veterinarians.

Soviet Zone Decrees Church Liquidation

By Russell Hill

BERLIN, Oct. 17 (NYHT).—The East German government decided before last Sunday's election, the outcome of which was considered a foregone conclusion, to proceed with the liquidation of the Protestant and Catholic churches in their present form and to establish state churches that will have no ties either with Western Germany or with Rome.

The campaign, which is to be waged with far greater ferocity than Bismarck's efforts against the Catholics, will first try to destroy the unity of the Protestant Church of Germany. The Catholics comprise only 20 percent of the Soviet-zone population. However, the end of 1951 has been set as the deadline for the severing of their ties with Rome.

All this is to be part of the final phase of the process of turning Eastern Germany into a Soviet satellite.

The decision, which was taken at a recent Cabinet meeting, can be reported here because the Eastern German government and even the Communist-dominated Socialist Unity Party are so riddled with Western sympathizers and agents that anything of importance that happens in the zone is very quickly known to certain people in western Berlin.

The Protestant church is one of the few all-German organizations still in existence. It, therefore, provides ties with the West that the Communists want broken.

The Protestant churches were formerly organized on the level of states (Prussia, Saxony, etc.). But these united in 1945 under a nine-man council, and a synod with 100 members. The council is the ruling body. On it are five bishops and four laymen, four of whom are in the Soviet zone.

The Russians have already tried once to make it difficult for the council to get together. The last meeting was scheduled for a place near Madgeburg and interzonal passes were refused to two of the westerners, Martin Niemoller and Gustav Heineman, who resigned recently as Minister of Interior of the federal government.

Draft Impact On Farming Under Study

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Maryland yesterday started planning on how to furnish its quota of 18,000 men to the armed services in the next few months with the least disturbance to its economy, particularly its food production.

Taking part at the University of Maryland discussions were representatives of agriculture, industry and Selective Service. The expectation was expressed that Maryland's program may set the pattern for other States.

One suggestion that may be acted on soon was for a committee to advise the State and county draft board officials on farm labor. The idea is to avoid injustices that took place in World War II.

At first the committee would be limited to setting up standards that would maintain present production levels. Col. Henry C. Stanwood, Maryland director of Selective Service, suggested the advisory group could furnish Selective Service with a statement of each county's normal farm production, and an estimate on how much farm labor is necessary to maintain it.

Could Develop Yardstick

From this a yardstick could be developed to measure the amount of labor needed for dairy farms, vegetable farms, tobacco growing, cattle feeding, etc.

Stanwood pointed out that in view of the large number of men of draft age who will be excused—veterans of World War II, fathers with several dependents, etc.—occupational deferments, are going to be difficult to obtain.

"It's going to take a lot of showing for any man under 26 to prove he is needed in his present employment," he said. There has already been a lot of "bad faith" requests for deferment, he added. In some cases the youths were not even engaged in the occupations for which they claimed they were "essential."

"We want to avoid deferments for cases where Pop buys a farm for his boy at the last moment."

3000 From Reserves, Guard

Later, he suggested, the board might be called upon to make recommendations in individual cases.

Of the 18,000 men that Maryland will be called upon to provide if plans to enlarge the Armed Forces to 3 million are carried out, about 3000 will come from the organized reserves and the National Guard, Stanwood said.

"Of the remainder, roughly 9000 will come from Baltimore and surrounding area, and 6000 from the counties and rural communities," he said.

The problem of recruiting farm labor is getting increasingly difficult, Paul E. Nystrom, associate extension director of Maryland, reported. The usual flock of migrant labor from the South is getting smaller due to better pay in industry as war contracts go into production.

More Foreign Labor

"We must remember," Nystrom asserted, "that when we went into the war economy in 1940 we went from a position of unemployment. This time we are going from a position of full employment." The discussion intimated that an enlarged program for importation of foreign labor will soon be necessary on a national scale.

In addition to protecting the State's food production from a shortage of labor, the meeting considered how to protect it from a shortage of farm machinery. At present the situation as to farm machinery is excellent, Prof. Ray W. Carpenter of the Department of Agricultural Engineering, reported.

Palace Purge Asked in Egypt Arms Scandal

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—King Farouk, returning from a European vacation, will be warned Wednesday that Egypt is "heading toward . . . financial, political and moral bankruptcy, paving the way to subversive moves."

The warning was made in the form of a petition signed by opposition and independent leaders in Parliament. It will be awaiting Farouk when he arrives at Alexandria in his royal yacht.

The petition stems from a government investigation of an arms scandal involving high army officers, including three generals, suspected of embezzling army funds during the Palestine war.

Opposition leaders charge that high members of Farouk's palace staff are involved in the scandal and that they are being whitewashed by the Cabinet. They demand a purge of the palace staff.

Public prosecutors investigating the arms scandal forbade newspapers to publish anything about it. Opposition newspapers defied the ban. They have reported that about 20 army officers, including a major general and two brigadiers, have been put under arrest as suspects.

The petition was released to the press tonight on the eve of Farouk's return. It asserts that "certain individuals in the palace" have given wrong advice and have themselves acted wrongly. The parliamentary system, it holds, is no longer functioning properly because of the situation.

Arlington Man Killed In Action

Sergt. Walker

Pfc. Schlorb

Lieut. Loyd

Pfc. Schneider

A young Arlington lieutenant, newly graduated from West Point and on his first assignment as an Army officer, has been killed in action in Korea.

Second Lieut. Frank Riley Loyd, jr., 22, son of Col. and Mrs. Frank Riley Loyd of 730 N. Tazewell st., Arlington, was fatally wounded on September 26, the Department of Defense reported yesterday.

Two other District Army "career" men were "seriously" wounded in action, and a third reported missing in action.

Loyd, who planned to be married on his return from Korea, had spent his three months of leave after graduation last June, on a Canadian camping trip with three of his West Point buddies. Before leaving for Korea on August 4, he visited his fiancee, Miss Mary Jean Finn of Denver.

Attended D. C. School

A graduate of Central High School in San Antonio, Tex., where he played football, Loyd attended Sullivan's Preparatory School in Washington, graduating in 1946.

The Loyds moved to Washington in April, 1949. Col. Frank R. Loyd is on the retirement board at the Army Medical Center here. They have one daughter, Bonnie Beth, 20.

Wounded for a second time in the Korean fighting was Sergt. Leroy Walker, 27, husband of Mrs. Ella May Walker of 804 D st. nw.

On October 12, Walker, an Army veteran of 10 years, called his wife from the Naval Base Hospital in Charleston, S. C., and described his wounds she said. He was first shot in the left arm on August 6. On September 15 he was hit by fragments of a grenade, causing injuries to the left eye, hand and leg, his wife reported.

Two Battle Stars

Walker spent 43 months in the Pacific in World War II and holds two battle stars.

Born in Fayetteville, N. C., he married in 1945 and has one child, James E., 7.

Pfc. Edward M. Schlorb, 19, is "back on the lines," with the Forty-eighth Field Artillery after being "shot in the right foot," his mother, Mrs. Ida Schlorb of 714 G st. ne. said yesterday.

Schlorb was born in Colmar Manor, Md., and left Bladensburg High School to enlist in the Army and make it "his life's work," his mother said. His father, Edward Joseph Schlorb, lives at 3401 40th ave., Takoma Manor, Md.

Pfc. John Edmund Schneider, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Schneider of 4937 MacArthur blvd., has been missing in action since September 1, his family reported.

Schneider was with the Ninth Infantry Regiment of the Second Division.

He attended Western High School, before joining the Army in 1949. In July, he left for Korea from Seattle.

GI Insurance Dividends Due Next March

The first group of several million World War II veterans, who have kept their GI life insurance in force since 1948 should get their second dividend check in March, 1951, the Veterans' Administration said yesterday.

Only those policy-holders who have kept up premium payments for a minimum period yet to be decided upon will be eligible for the second dividend, a spokesman said. He estimated the minimum may be one year, rather than the three months required previously.

How big the dividends will be or the basis on which they will be paid are matters still in the planning stage. But the VA says they will be paid on earnings for the three-year period from 1948 to 1951, based on the anniversary date of the policy.

Thus, policies with an anniversary date in January would not draw cash dividends until about March, allowing for the 30-day grace period from premium payments and administration of the dividend payment, a spokesman said.

U.S. and Brazil Sign Cultural Accord Here

The United States and Brazil yesterday signed a broad cultural agreement, opening the way for increased exchange of students, professors and specialists between the two countries.

Secretary of State Acheson signed the convention for the United States Government in a ceremony in the Department's diplomatic reception room. Brazilian Ambassador Mauricio Nabuco signed for his government.

The convention is the first bilateral cultural accord ever signed by the United States.

The idea for it grew out of a joint statement made May 21, 1949 by President Truman and President Dutra of Brazil during the latter's visit to the United States. Both Chief Executives then expressed the desire for such an agreement "to encourage and further stimulate" existing cultural activities.

The convention covers Brazilian-American exchanges in the fields of art, education, travel, books and visual aids.

Each country gives the other the right to establish and maintain cultural agencies such as information offices, libraries and film centers. Each is urged to encourage lectures on the other's language, literature, history and civilization in educational institutions.

Under the convention, United States and Brazil pledge to help music festivals, art and scientific exhibits, theatrical and other events which reflect on the arts, crafts and cultural achievement of both nations.

The agreement also seeks close collaboration with the aim of fostering mutual understanding of intellectual, artistic, scientific, civic and social works.

The agreement must be ratified by the United States and Brazil before it comes into force. Once this is done, a ratification ceremony is scheduled to take place in Rio de Janeiro.

Japs Given Authority To Arrest Foreigners

TOKYO (Wednesday), Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today he had given the Japanese government authority to arrest and try United Nationals for criminal offenses effective November 1. The order does not apply to occupation personnel.

An announcement from MacArthur's headquarters said, "This significant and important step in relation to controls over the Japanese people gives the Japanese government the primary duty of maintaining law and order in Japan over all nonoccupational personnel in Japan."

Morton Downey Weds Peggy Boyce Hohenlohe

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 17 (AP). Radio-Television Singer Morton Downey and Peggy Boyce Hohenlohe, granddaughter of William Boyce Thompson, mining financier, were married here today.

The brief ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. F. Helm, pastor of the Hot Springs Presbyterian Church, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Kelly Evans before a small group of friends. It was the second marriage for both.

The Eighth Army announced the award to Corpl. Robert Painter, Kerneysville, W. Va.

The citation said Painter, a member of a mechanized reconnaissance platoon, was assistant driver on an armored car which was hit and disabled by North Korean anti-tank fire.

Although painfully wounded, Painter evacuated the two wounded men. While doing so, he was wounded again.

It was then that enemy soldiers attacked again, forcing Painter to shoot left-handed.

Faber, Times Writer, Loses Leg After Crash

TOKYO, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Surgeons today amputated the left leg of Harold Faber, New York Times correspondent injured in the crash of a plane at Ashiya Air Force base, October 12.

Col. Charles C. Canada, personal physican for Gen. Douglas MacArthur, said Faber was in very poor condition when he arrived here from Ashahi but now showed improvement. The leg was amputated above the knee.

Canada said Faber suffered a fracture of the left leg and serious burns on both legs as well as a fracture of the left arm. He said Faber had developed gangrene when he arrived in Tokyo from Ashiya.

Faber is in Tokyo Army Hospital.

Three crew members died in the crash of the C-119 Flying Boxcar and two other correspondents with Faber suffered minor injuries. They were John Colless of Reuters and John Jefferson of CBS.

5000 Greek Volunteers Leave Nov. 5 for Korea

Greek Ambassador Athanase G. Politis said yesterday that a brigade of about 5000 Greek volunteer troops will be ready to leave November 5 for United Nations service in Korea.

He said discussions are now being carried on with the U. N. and Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters to decide their role.

"These are all mountain troops with experience in northern Greece and should be specially suitable for service in Korea," Politis said.

Mencken Sinks Nearer to Death

BALTIMORE, Oct. 17 (AP).—H. L. Mencken sank a little closer to death today.

Doctors at Johns Hopkins Hospital said there was no chance he can recover from a violent heart seizure last Thursday night.

Mencken was never more than semiconscious today. He asked once about the canopy over him. It is an oxygen tent. He wanted to know why it was there.

August Mencken, who has cared for his brother constantly since a paralytic stroke almost 2 years ago, described him as "a very sick man—he doesn't realize how sick."

Baltimore's most famous native son has been in semiseclusion since the paralytic attack, puttering among his papers and letters, getting them in order for future researchers into his career as reporter, editor, critic, and authority on the American language.

Vishinsky Demands Peace Patrol Place not be wise now to accept any proposal which would determine the members of the peace observation commission, which the seven countries has offered as a way of quickly investigating trouble spots in the world.

Pearson also said the make-up of the group should be determined in the light of the attitude of the delegates on the whole resolution. He indicated the sponsors might reconsider the matter later when they see what Russia does about the whole resolution.

The Political Committee is in its second week of debate on an anti-aggression plan laid down by Secretary of State Acheson early in the U. N. Assembly, and later written into the resolution of the United States, Canada, France, the Philippines, Turkey, Britain and Uruguay.

The seven-power resolution calls for the Peace Observation Commission of 9 to 14 members to observe and report on the situation in any area where there exists international tension. It would act upon the invitation of the state concerned and on authorization of the General Assembly or the Little Assembly when the Security Council is not able to act in the trouble.

Vishinsky has opposed one key section of the plan calling for emergency sessions of the General Assembly within 24 hours in the event the Security Council is frustrated by the veto and cannot act in the event of aggression. Vishinsky called for two weeks' notice.

Vishinsky has indicated he might accept the peace observation group if it could be what he called a representative group. His speech today indicated he meant that the five permanent members of the Security Council—Russia, United States, France, Britain and China—should be on the committee as well as other countries, up to a total of nine.

Dulles told Vishinsky that the United States would rather have the trouble-shooting group made up of only small and medium power countries because it might show greater impartiality. He said the United States would be hapy to review that decision if the Russians plan to "adopt a positive attitude" toward the proposal.

Chinese Reds Refuse To Join Formosa Debate

HONGKONG (Wednesday), Oct. 18 (U.P.).—The Chinese Communists Tuesday curtly turned down the United Nations Security Council's invitation to take part in discussion of Formosa November 15.

The Red government demanded, instead, that the Formosa issue be dropped from the Agenda. Foreign Minister Chou En-lai's telegram to the Council called on the U. N. to admit Peking's delegates to Council discussions of, 1. the Soviet-sponsored complaint of United States aggression against China; 2. the complaint brought by the Chinese Communists of alleged United States air attacks on Chinese territory.

Of Formosa, Red Premier Chou said, "Formosa is Chinese territory, hence there is no such so-called 'question of Formosa'."

Caretaker Rule Vetoed; Israel Ballot Ordered

JERUSALEM (Wednesday), Oct. 18 (U.P.).—The Israel Knesset (Parliament) after an all-night session voted "no confidence" early today in Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's proposed caretaker government.

The Knesset ordered the government to prepare for elections "immediately."

Ben-Gurion had proposed a seven-member government taken only from his own Mapai Party after all attempts to restore the coalition government failed. The government crisis began two days ago when the religious bloc withdrew from the coalition.

In yesterday's session Ben-Gurion faced a barrage from hostile critics who condemned his economic policies. One spokesman for the former Irgun Zavi Leumi and general Zionist delegates said the government's economic policies were at the bottom of Israel's present difficulties.

They said if it were not for the Mapai's handling of the economic situation foreign investors would be reinforcing the Israel economy.

Ben-Gurion warned the religious bloc that bringing religious issues into the present crisis must be avoided at all costs.

The crisis was brought on by the deteriorating economic situation, the rationing system and the government's attempts to suppress the black market. Ben-Gurion's government was a coalition of the Mapai, the largest party, with the religious bloc and two other small parties.

Son Charges MP Seduced 2 Wives, Maybe the Third

LONDON, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—A 41-year-old divorce petitioner testified in court today that his rich, titled 61-year-old father, a long-time member of Parliament, seduced two of his wives for sure and probably the third also.

John Mayhew, jr., said that his father, Industrialist Sir John Mayhew, a member of Commons for 14 years, seduced wives Nos. 1 and 3 and that he had "been told" that wife No. 2 also was seduced.

Attorneys for Sir John sought to paint the son as a rubber-check artist and general ne'er-do-well who tried to extract $28,000 from his father.

The son admitted under cross-examination that his father had made good a number of his rubber checks, and that he had been court-martialed twice while he served in the army in India.

British Plane Crash Kills 28 Near London

LONDON, Oct. 17 (AP).—With one engine dead, a British airliner hurtled out of a mist over a London suburb today, skimmed the tops of several houses and plunged into a brick garden wall, killing all but one of the 29 persons aboard.

Two Americans were among the dead, the airline announced.

[The United Press reported the Americans were identified as Lt. Thomas Carr and Mrs. Carr, en route to visit friends in Scotland. Their home town was listed as Chicago.]

The liner was a two-engine British European Airways Dakota. It was trying to get back to its home base at Northolt Airport when it crashed at Mill Hill, a middle-class residential neighborhood.

The only survivor, a steward, was flung 100 yards. Besides the crew of five, there were 15 men passengers, eight women and an infant.

The crash occurred at 3 p. m. Only a few minutes previously the plane had taken off for Glasgow, Scotland. Then its captain radioed that he was turning back to Northolt Airport.

(In another air accident near Kirkburn, in East Yorkshire, two RAF pilots were killed when their Vampire fighters collided.)

The Dakota tore off the top branches of a number of trees and ripped telephone wires before flopping on its back in the grounds of Highwood Ash, a 10-room country house.

It was the worst British airliner crash since March 12, when 80 persons died in a charter plane in Wales while returning from an international football match in Ireland. The toll in the Wales crash was the world's highest.

"What this country needs is a good 5c cigar and—a good 5c glass of beer!"

PLAIN as the facts of life, prices are rising. We at Pearson's have always been against higher prices. We still are! We always will be. These are the facts of Plain Old Pearson's.

OLD customers of Pearson's are well aware of our efforts to furnish the most of the best for the least. Only recently, the price of beer has risen. We will not attempt to discuss whether or not the increase is justified. We assume it is. However, our buyers were able to foresee this eventuality, and we purchased large supplies in advance of the price increase to enable you and yours to share in our old low price.

PEARSON'S prices will be increased only when it becomes absolutely necessary. Naturally our overhead expenses are up. Why? Because maintenance of equipment is up . . . our employees' salaries have been raised! Just two of the many increases in operating expenses. But we are holding the line steadfastly on raising the price of merchandise to our customers, whom we at Pearson's speak of as "Friends."

PRICE: Penny-pinchers we are, and may be called by the dealers from whom we buy. But to effect our price policy we're proud of it.

POLICY at Pearson's is a creed. Price policy made us and by it we stand and by it we grow and grow and grow.

Yes, we at Pearson's believe that "what this country needs is a good 5c cigar and a good 5c glass of beer."

U. S. Ship Took Steel to Red China

drums of oil to China until members of the Flying Cloud's crew protested and United States Army Intelligence reportedly intervened.

He said the ship—owned by the Isbrandtsen Line with headquarters in New York—unloaded the oil drums at Yokohama, Japan, before the vessel sailed for Communist China ports.

Three crew members agreed with Rylander's testimony that the oil was left in Japan; two others disagreed.

Stephen Rivnyak of Stratford, Conn., a seaman, said he saw oil drums in the ship's hold en route to China and said he believed they were unloaded at Tsingtao on Taikyu Bar. Both are Red China ports near the Manchurian border and North Korea.

Roddy Brnecher, of Darien, Conn., an oiler, testified that "a few hundred barrels marked motor oil" were left aboard ship and delivered to China.

Brencher said the voyage to China last August was his third round-the-world trip on the Flying Cloud. On each voyage, he said, the ship carried "cotton, oils, metal, white chemicals—I don't know what kind—scrap brass and copper." He said he believed they were unloaded at Communist China ports.

Walter Peterson, of Beldenville, Wis., another crew member, said at least three of his fellow seamen protested to United States Army Intelligence at Yokohama about carrying oil to Red China after the oil had been taken aboard at Kobe, Japan. Peterson said a lot of the oil was unloaded at Yokohama, and he told the committee:

"I can't see this supplying things that eventually are going to be thrown back at us. Before the last war they were sending that scrap metal to Japan and we got it back."

In his long and vigoorus denial of engaging in "blockade running," Captain Rylander acknowledged that when his ship entered Chinese ports it displayed the Communist Red flag.

"But that's customary," he said, "a Russian ship entering an American port would have to display the United States flag."

The ship's master insisted that the only "liquid materials" carried to China on the trip in question were about 30 barrels of paint thinner and some drums filled with liquid dyes.

Chief Mate Hamilton W. Foster backed up Rylander's story. He said the ship's cargo contained no oil when it reached Chinese shores.

When Rylander acknowledged he originaly intended to take the oil to China, Chairman O'Conor asked if he knew that the United States Government had requested—if not ordered—that no oil be shipped to the Chinese Reds.

Rylander replied it was up to the shipping line's agent to say about such things. He said he would not expect the agent to ask him to do anything illegal.

The captain said the line's ships have been touching at North China ports for years as part of a regular scheduled service, and he listed several other lines which he said also carry substantially the same kind of cargoes to China.

Chairman O'Conor indicated the committee will look into the operations of "these other" lines.

Calvin F. Bonawitz of Reading, Pa., former assistant electrician aboard the Flying Cloud, told the lawmakers it was he who made the original report that touched off the current investigation. But he said that report needed "many corrections."

Late last summer, Bonawitz wrote a letter to a United States naval officer on duty with the Seventh Fleet in far Pacific waters, charging that the ship was transporting oil, gasoline and steel armor plate to "the . . . Reds" in China.

Bonawitz said in the letter that he was "ashamed" to be aboard the freighter, and that the Navy ought to "blow her sky high even though she flies the American flag. He said the letter was addressed to Lieutenant Banyo aboard the USS Rochester, then patroling off Formosa.

The letter eventually reached Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.), who read it to the Senate on September 22. Magnuson said the letter was dated early in August—over two months after the Korean war began.

In his testimony yesterday, Bonawitz said he had mistaken another inflammable material for gasoline and there was no gasoline abooard the Flying Cloud. Moreover, he said it ~~was~~ "mild" steel plate, ~~instead of~~ armor plate, that was loaded on the ship at Kobe, Japan, for delivery to the Chinese Communists.

Rylander said the steel plate was not more than one-half inch thick.

Bonawitz testified that after the oil had been unloaded at Yokohama—following an inspection by a U. S. Army enlisted man—the Flying Cloud took aboard a quantity of radio tubes and boxes identified as containing centrifugal pumps, and the freighter then sailed to China.

The Flying Cloud was one of five Isbrandtsen Line ships fired on within the last year by Nationalist forces blockading Shanghai. The United States does not recognize the blockade.

Meyer Says Red Power in France Wanes

Less than half of those who vote Communist in French elections are sympathetic to Russia as against the United States, Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, declared yesterday.

Even that group, he added, would not support Russia in the event of a war in which Russia invaded France. Only a "negligible" number of Frenchmen would aid the Soviets in case of war, he said.

Meyer addressed a luncheon attended by about 50 Washington business leaders.

He said he based his conclusions on the strength—or lack of it—of communism in France on recent scientific public opinion studies.

He advocated American help to make France "a vital power in our struggle to resist Communist aggression." He said that with American military aid, and with progress on the establishment of a consolidated European defense program, France can and will be made strong.

Relating his impressions of a trip to France and England from which he has recently returned, Meyer declared that "the big thing" that has happened in recent years in Europe is the growth of internationalism.

The realization of Europe that to be strong it must unite is the new "revolutionary concept" pervading the Continent, he said. The annihilation of space has demonstrated that the borders of small nations must become less meaningful, he said.

An expression of this concept in the economic field, Meyer stated, is the Schuman Plan for combined operations, under a supra-national authority, of the Western European coal and steel industry.

In the international field, he continued, it is manifest by the plans for an international defense force under a single commander in chief, an American. Were that officer appointed now rather than later, he said, he would aid in the building and formation of the necessary armed strength, and his appointment would help to obtain more cooperation from the European nations in the process.

These suits, plus the other leading brands in their price-range, were tested exhaustively by an impartial research organization which is famed for its integrity. Representative garments were taken apart. Fabrics were examined for quality of fiber, multiplicity of strands, closeness of weave. All inner construction was tested and compared. Hand-tailoring was examined with the greatest care. Every element which contributes to appearance and wear was subjected to the most intensive scrutiny.

All of these tests confirmed our own conviction that these suits represent the absolute maximum in quality, appearance and value. Our current stocks include flannels in Cambridge gray and Oxford gray as well as worsteds in distinguished patterns. We invite your personal inspection and comparison.

Japanese Jurists Briefed on Indians

By Melvin Altshuler

Post Reporter

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Japan now knows—and was interested to find out—about the state of Indian affairs in the United States.

Not only the Chief Justice, but two of his associate justices and three other important members of Japan's judiciary system were interested in this matter.

For almost three hours yesterday afternoon, top legal minds "briefed" the six jurists on the complex, diverse matters handled in the Justice Department.

Polite were the nods from both sides as the briefing went on and on—antitrust, tax matters, immigration laws, criminal investigations.

Merely in Passing

But when Assistant Attorney General A. Devitt Vanech mentioned merely in passing, he thought—that American Indians have nine billion dollars in claims against the United States . . .

That was it, alright. The judges asked for more.

Vanech, for a moment, was taken off guard.

"Well," he explained, "you really have to go back 100 years for that."

And he did.

Chief Justice Kotaro Tanaka said after it all that the Indian question was most interesting.

"Yes," he said in English, "most interesting. Also, of course, were the tax, and the criminal division."

Associate Justice Tsuyoshi Mano brought up tax questions.

"How often in the United States," he asked through Interpreter George M. Koshi, "are tax reports to the Government required?"

Twice Yearly in Japan

The Government—at least the Justice Department expert—said it was once a year.

"Twice a year in Japan," said Associate Justice Mano with satisfaction.

Justice Mano, a short man with a thin mustache, sat back and took notes occasionally. Chief Justice Tanaka, medium height with horned-rimmed glasses, took notes very often. He leaned forward when a speaker made a point or else would relax back in his large armchair—largest chair in the room. Associate Justice Shigeto Hozumi played with his glasses—two pairs—and nodded gratefully when the points most interested him.

They are accompanied on their tour by Judge Masaru Higuchi and Judge Seiichi Kishi, both of the Tokyo High Court, who also have posts associated with the Supreme Court, and Judge Shuichi Ishisaka, president of the Sendai High Court.

But the star of yesterday's briefing session was Koshi, an American lawyer.

Translating in rapid Japanese, he gestured with his hands and pointed with a pencil. He was speaking Japanese so convincingly, the Justice Department lawyers would nod with him on points of emphasis when he really got into his subject.

Chief of Division

Koshi's boss is Dr. Alfred Oppler, chief of the legislative and justice division of the legal section of General MacArthur's headquarters. His job is the to assist in the reorganization of the Japanese judiciary.

Back in the days of the Weimar Republic, he was judge of the Prussia Supreme Administrative Court. He has been an American Government employe since 1944.

The Japanese judges are in the United States for 45 days under the Far Eastern exchange of persons program. Washington Attorney James Perkins Parker is accompanying them. They arrived in Washington Monday night after two weeks in New York. Yesterday, the judges visited Municipal Court, and Chief Justice Tanaka sat beside Judge Armond W. Scott, who was hearing a negligent homicide case.

More visits to courts are scheduled today. Thursday comes the Supreme Court of the United States. Then sessions at Catholic University.

"Then we go to Harvard," Dr. Oppler said with pride. "Also Ann Arbor (University of Michigan).

"Finally we travel," he said, "to some place interesting and different from metropolitan areas . . . He paused expectantly.

". . . To Wyoming!"

J. Edgar Hoover Decorated by Great Britain

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, yesterday received the insignia of an honorary knight commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire at a ceremony at the British Embassy.

With the decoration, presented by Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks, was the royal warrant of appointment to the order. This grant of dignity is signed by the King and Queen.

The honor was bestowed by the King for Hoover's cooperation with the British during the last 25 years in the field of intelligence.

Just for Record: 1950 Gasoline Better Than Fuel Used in 1925

The Oil Industry Information Committee wants you to know that the stuff you put into the gas tank of the family jalopy 25 years ago doesn't compare with 1950 gasoline.

To prove it, the committee ran a series of tests yesterday on Mount Vernon Memorial blvd., south of Alexandria.

Involved were three Cadillacs (two 1950 models, one a 1921 veteran), two new Oldsmobiles, some 1950 gasoline and a batch of 1925-style petrol especially brewed for the occasion by the Ethyl Corp.

While officials of the Army, Navy, Bureau of Standards, Federal Trade Commission and American Automobile Association milled about and looked impressed, these tests were run off:

1. The 1921 Cadillac and its sleek new brother competed for acceleration in a 20-second test. Result: The new model, using 1950 gas, covered 1190 feet; the old-timer, using 1925 gas, only 850.

2. The two 1950 Cadillacs ran off an acceleration test from a 10-mile-per-hour start for a 20-second time limit. One used the old gas, the other the new. Result: 780 feet covered with the 1925 gas, 1170 feet with the 1950.

3. As a windup, one Oldsmobile and the 1921 Cadillac took on one-tenth of a gallon of 1925 gasoline. The second Olds had an identical quantity of modern gas. They ran until they stopped. The high-octane Olds averaged 22.19 miles per gallon before it stopped; the 1925-gassed Olds did only 15.06, while the ancient Cadillac spluttered to a stop at only 12.61 miles per gallon.

Tricks for Feeding Oldsters Revealed

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Old folks aren't as "sot" in their eating habits as is commonly believed, a psychologist yesterday told dietitians in annual convention here.

With patient and understanding treatment, said Dr. Wilma T. Donahue, of Ann Arbor, Mich., even the most diet-cantakerous oldsters can be "re-trained" to eat what is good for them, and not gorge or starve themselves to death.

Dr. Donahue of the University of Michigan's institute for human adjustment, gave her tips on feeding the elderly before a session on nutrition and geriatrics to the current thirty-third annual convention of the American Dietetic Association. Some 3600 nutritionists and dietitians are attending the activities at the National Guard Armory.

Though it is true that aged persons may "regress to infantile (feeding) behaviors," Dr. Donahue said, their personality development levels are such that they can be re-trained. Left alone, however, they may refuse to eat "just like a child when he wants to punish others," or gorge themselves "to satisfy their frustrated emotions," she said.

Emotional Poverty

"Overeating," declared the psychologist, "may reflect the emotional poverty of the lives of old people whose days often contain so little of interest or value to them."

Dr. Donahue labeled as "stereotyped" the doctors' attitude that "the older person enjoys, prefers and digests better" those foods he's eaten throughout his life.

Dr. Donahue's tips on feeding of oldsters, either in institutions or in their homes, included:

1. Don't make any abrupt and drastic change to the individual's feeding habits.

2. Try to induce the individual to eat smaller meals, but to eat more often.

Serve Favorite Dishes

3. Serve "attractive" trays of extra quality foods, including out-of-season foods at least occasionally and "favorite dishes or personal recipes."

4. Keep the patient's free time as completely occupied as possible "to lessen his time for introspection and contemplation of the idiosyncrasies of the alimentary canal."

5. Above all, remember that the patient is an individual.

The last two points, Dr. Donahue said, may be particularly difficult for the nutritionist or dietician in an institution, but can be accomplished with cooperation with others who have responsibilities in the care of the patients.

five minutes before Nemm tried to kill himself.

Meanwhile, at Casualty, Nemm mumbled details of the slaying to police. They said he confessed he had stuffed a wash cloth and a piece of underwear in Mrs. Nemm's mouth, tied her securely with clothesline, then choked her with his hands.

Before she died, he told police, he also slashed her with a knife.

Due to Strangulation

Dr. Richard M. Rosnberg, deputy coroner, who performed the autopsy, said death was due to strangulation, both by hand and by rope.

From Casualty, where Nemm was treated for a broken right leg, cuts and bruises, he was taken to Gallinger and placed under police guard.

Police said the Nemms had been married for three years. Both had been married previously and both have married daughters living in other parts of the country. Mrs. Nemm, a practical nurse at Providence Hospital, had a sister, Mrs. Anne Lindholm of 322 S st. se.

Police said Nemm was laid off last weekend from his carpenter's job at the Capitol. He told police he was a native of Estonia. Mrs. Nemm, police said, did not go to her job Monday to be with her husband.

Eugene Knight, landlord of the Fifth st. house, told police Nemm apologized to him Monday night for causing "trouble." Describing the Nemms as very quiet tenants, he said no one was disturbed by noise from the Nemm apartment during the night.

Fish That Got Away Muffs Freedom Bid

ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—The 12-inch bass that got away still landed on the Phipps' dining table.

Mrs. Sherwood Phipps of Roanoke, landed the fish yesterday—and promptly lost it when the line snapped.

Later, when Mr. Phipps started cleaning the day's string, out popped Mrs. Phipps' hook and bait. Hubby had caught the 12-inch beauty about an hour after Mrs. Phipps lost it.

Philadelphia Cop In Probe a Suicide

CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 17 (AP).—Inspector Craig Ellis, head of the Philadelphia police vice squad and a key figure in a Federal investigation of racketeering, shot and killed himself today.

Ellis

Ellis, his head pierced from a .32-caliber revolver, was found near the Media (Pa.) Hunt Club a few hours after he had been summoned to appear before the Federal grand jury in Philadelphia.

The 51-year-old police officer died about two hours later in the Chester Hospital before he could be questioned. Howard P. Sutton, superintendent of Philadelphia police, said a note, found in Ellis' car and addressed to Ellis' wife, read:

"I have failed as a leader. My wife did not know of my laxity. I suppose my pain has made me mad. I pray God will help any I may have caused regrets."

Ellis' death marked the fourth suicide of a Philadelphia official since a widespread investigation of municipal scandals was begun more than two years ago. The first suicide, that of William C. Foss, boss of the city amusement tax division, set off the probe in May, 1948. The city, then the State and finally the Federal Government got into the act.

A Senate investigating committee wound up hearings here last Saturday.

Sutton said Ellis, a member of the police department for more than 30 years and head of the vice squad for 12, suffered from cancer. He added:

"I should not think this suicide is connected with the fact that Mr. Ellis had been called before the grand jury. He was a man of unquestioned integrity. Everybody had the highest regard for him, including the men who worked with him. He had been in ill health and been complaining but had gone on working anyway."

Ellis and other police officials had been summoned before the grand jury after Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), head of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, quoted Assistant Police Superintendent George F. Richardson as saying Harry (Nig) Rosen ran a huge numbers racket in Philadelphia.

'Richest Cop in World' Tells Crime Probers It's All Legal

CHICAGO, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Capt. Dan Gilbert, Democratic candidate for sheriff of Cook County, told the Senate Crime Investigating Committee tonight his personal fortune is $360,000.

Gilbert, sometimes called the "richest cop in the world," said most of his wealth was in stocks and bonds he bought at the "suggestion" of a Democratic leader of years ago. He denied he had any investment in race tracks or that any of his wealth was obtained illegally.

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), who resumed closed hearings here into organized crime, said Gilbert testified he had "very good luck" in buying stock at the suggestion of George Brennan, one-time Democratic power of Illinois. Gilbert then was bodyguard for Brennan.

Gilbert has been chief investigator for the State's Attorney's office for 18 years. Some Chicago newspapers have criticized him for never having brought a major crime figure to book. Kefauver said Gilbert answered questions in a "forthright" manner.

The committee went into a night session after earlier testimony of Eugene Bernstein, underworld lawyer, revealed huge sums were poured into a race wire service reputedly established by the Capone syndicate, but that the records to show the payments were missing.

Bernstein, Kefauver said, admitted being engaged as a tax expert for Trans-America, a wire service reputedly set up by the Capone mob in an attempt to drive Continental Press, then headed by James M. Ragen, sr., out of business. Ragen was killed in 1946 in a gangland murder that never has been solved.

Bernstein said the books of Trans-America showed at least $100,000 in loans and advances "from other towns" to the wire service, Kefauver reported.

Bernstein said he kept the books of Trans-America for a year and a half after it folded and then turned them over to Ralph O'Hara, a Trans-America official, in May, 1950.

The books had been subpenaed by the McFarland Committee, a Senate group which investigated racing hookups, but Kefauver said so far as he knew the committee never got them and they were missing.

A subpena has been issued for O'Hara, Kefauver said, but has not yet been served.

Bernstein also repeated an oft-told tale of how mysterious characters came to his office to deposit bundles of cash to help in the income tax difficulties of Paul (The Waiter) Ricca and Louis (Little New York) Campagna, who served Federal prison terms for a one-million-dollar extortion attempt on the movie industry.

Mrs. Pittman Compensated By Man Sued

Mrs. Key Pittman, widow of the Senator from Nevada, has recovered property and stock from the man she accused of defrauding her, it was revealed in Municipal Court yesterday.

He is Stanley W. Moulding, 61, of 4906 S. 30th st., Fairlington, Va., Mrs. Pittman's former business agent.

A hearing on forgery charges against him was continued yesterday until November 7, at the request of the Government.

In opposing the continuance, Moulding's attorney, Sidney S. Sachs, told Judge George D. Neilson that Mrs. Pittman had attached Moulding's property, claiming that he owed her $25,475, and that the matter had been settled.

Sachs told the court that Mrs. Pittman had told United States Attorney George Morris Fay she did not wish to prosecute Moulding.

Assistant United States Attorney Warren Wilson asked for a three-week continuance, and Judge Neilson granted it.

Wilson said a grand jury was considering the case and had heard from all witnesses involved, except Mrs. Pittman. She, Wilson said, suffered a heart attack recently and is not physically able to appear before the grand jury. She lives at 2620 Foxhall rd. nw.

Moulding is free under $5000 bond, charged with forging Mrs. Pittman's name to an airline charge account.

Not Guilty Of Charge, Howsam Says

Earl R. Howsam, 35, administrative aide to Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.), yesterday pleaded not guilty to a charge of committing an indecent act in the men's room of Lafayette Park early Sunday morning.

Howsam requested a jury trial, and Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson set trial for December 20.

Howsam was represented by Edward Bennett Williams. He posted $500 collateral on Sunday, and was released under that sum again yesterday.

Syrian Army Reports Disorder Plot Smashed

DAMASCUS, Syria, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Army officials said today that they had smashed a plot to "create bloody disorders" as a prelude to overthrowing the government.

A communique said 30 persons were arrested, including associates of exiled President Shukri Al-Kouwatly and alleged Japanese agents who sought to create a "greater Syria" headed by Jordan's King Abdullah.

Bribe Probe Figure Tries To End Life

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP).—A witness, described by authorities as an important link in New York City's big gambling-graft scandal, attempted suicide last night in a hotel suite where he was being held in protective custody.

Brooklyn District Attorney Miles F. McDonald identified the witness as William Ricci, reputed payoff man for the 20 million dollar gambling syndicate headed by Boss Bookmaker Harry Gross.

McDonald said that Ricci barricaded himself in the bathroom of the three-room hotel Bossert suite and then slashed himself on both arms. Two detectives assigned to guard him finally battered down the bathroom door and rushed the wounded man to a hospital.

Ricci, who had been sought for 10 days, voluntarily appeared yesterday and testified at length before the Brooklyn grand jury investigating the Gross bookie combine and the million dollars in graft it had paid out to New York City police for protection.

The 49-year-old Ricca was taken to Cumberland Hospital where his condition was described as critical. He had a dozen slash wounds on both arms between the wrists and elbows.

Investigators said he was considered the "most important' witness yet turned up in the widely publicized investigation.

They said that he had admitted to McDonald that he handled the protection payoffs to cops and presumably told the same story when he testified yesterday. They said the payoffs were made in the Dugout, Brooklyn restaurant. And that Ricci met police there and handed over the protection payments in the seclusion of the men's lavatory.

Physical Condition Is Key

Forced Retirement at a Given Age Is Called Outmoded and Unhealthy

Editor's Note: Almost every family has the problem of caring for its oldsters. "Old age" thus becomes everyone's problem. This is the third in five articles on issues involving the aged, written by Dr. Martin Gumpert, a specialist on sicknesses of the aged.)

By Dr. Martin S. Gumpert

CHAPTER III

WE should never retire. At least not as long as we are mentally and physically capable of keeping busy.

Today the older person lives under the cruel regime of forced retirement when he has reached a certain number of years. Such forced retirement, based on chronological age, is entirely outmoded and, even worse, it is most unhealthy.

To the retired person retirement is very rarely the paradise described in advertisements. The person who suddenly stops the lifelong habit and routine of his daily occupation frequently faces shock and tragedy. Emotionally his life becomes empty, and physically he has to adapt to the strains of idleness.

We often see that people who retire develop all sorts of serious ailments and disturbances.

OUR society should recognize the scientific fact that chronological and biological aging are different processes.

Our physical capacity is already diminished at the age of 20, but our mental capacity is not fully developed until about the age of 35, and can maintain its highest individual level up to the most advanced age.

Even the organs within our body age at different rates. Our brain may be 30, our heart 50, our eyes 60.

The decision whether to keep on working or whether to retire from our job must depend entirely on the total evaluation of our physical and mental capacity. A person of 20 may be too sick for a job which a person of 50 can ably fill.

DURING the Congress on Aging there was general agreement among all sections that forced retirement as a routine must come to an end.

During World War I and World War II the older worker was of tremendous importance. We observed that the older worker made up for his loss in physical strength by greater experience, by greater conscientiousness, by less absenteeism, and by a lower number of accidents.

There is some disagreement as to whether elderly workers really want to continue working beyond the customary retirement age, but there is no doubt that most older people want to remain independent, want to remain wage earners. They do not complain that they are too old for work, but they do bitterly complain that others believe them too old for work.

But even the worker of 40 finds it difficult to find a job, once he is unemployed.

MANY among us, of course, would like, at a certain point, to give up a strenuous and monotonous occupation in exchange for lighter and more pleasant work, and some factories have actually organized rehabilitation and retraining courses for the older worker.

But we should all have some skill or interest in reserve, which we might practice when our present job is beyond our physical capacity.

It is very doubtful that even old-age insurance and the assistance which is today available to the aged can ever give them adequate economic security.

OF THE 11 million aged living in this country in 1948, about 3,500,000 had no direct income of their own, and of the 7,500,00 with some income almost one-third earned less than $500 a year.

The long-time trend of the relative number of workers among older persons—interrupted by war periods—has been constantly downward. These labor practices must be fundamentally changed if we want to see our aged enjoy the pride and independence of self-support.

Representatives of the rug industry reported to the Conference on Aging a flexible retirement scheme which has recently been accepted by the union and employers of this industry.

It leaves the question of whether a man should retire up to the individual, as he reaches the age—62-68—at which his pension becomes payable; makes it then a matter of joint decision by union and management from 68-72; and places final retirement at the option of management from then on. This is at least one constructive and promising attempt to solve the problem of retirement.

OTHER projects have been proposed which would provide for a gradual decrease in working hours and quantitative production of the older worker, together with an adjustment of his wages.

Whatever solution we may finally find, and there may be many, the right of the older person to remain productive must be generally established. If we do not acknowledge this right, then we might have to face a most critical economic situation, in which a continuously growing group of dependents would have to be maintained by a continuously shrinking group of wage earners.

The decisive factor, however, is that the majority of older persons want useful work instead of hobbies.

Thursday: Housing for the aged.

'Super' Plane Announced by Lockheed Firm

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Lockheed Aircraft Corp., announced today a new super-Constellation which its engineers describe as the link between present transport planes and the American jet liner of the future.

Details of the new Constellation, 18 feet longer than current models, were announced at the annual meeting in San Francisco today of the International Air Transport Association. The giant craft has 30 percent more power, 40 percent more payload and 68 percent more cargo space. It will carry 110 coach fares, 35 percent more than the current model.

Design of the new transport permits its introduction into commercial service with the latest reciprocating engines and subsequent use of the new compounded engines and the forthcoming turbo-prop engines.

Prototype of the new sky giant is now testing in Los Angeles. Lockheed says the new Connie will be 50 miles an hour faster on transocean runs than competitive planes, and will cut five hours off the East-West transatlantic crossing between New York and London and Paris.

Lockheed said it has 50 million dollars in orders from two major airline operators and two United States military services.

Tito Nips Rumors Yugoslavs Make Soap of Children

BELGRADE, Oct. 17 (NYHT).—An employe in a government-run store in Belgrade was officially reported today to have been sentenced to three months in one of Premier Marshal Tito's prisons for spreading a rumor that an organization in Yugoslavia is kidnaping small children, killing them, and making soap out of them.

The hostile political elements in the capitol and elsewhere in the nation were warned by Politika, one of the Communist regime's leading papers, that "the people's authorities will continue to administer strict punishment to everyone who is propagating this story."

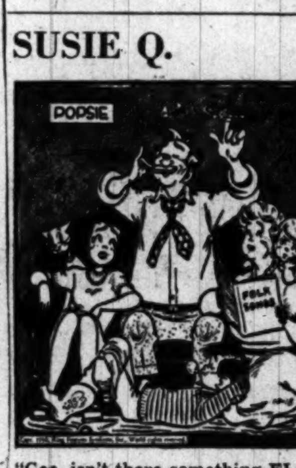
It called on the public to turn the rumor-mongers in to the police.

The story was said to have taken three forms. One version was that the child-soap organization was run by Yugoslav gypsies. Another said it was run by a group of meat butchers. The third said it was an organization of housewives.

Palace Reinforcements

LONDON, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Four Labrador retrievers have gone on duty at Buckingham Palace to reinforce the 30-man police force through which a burglar sneaked last week.

SUSIE Q.



"Gee, isn't there something ELSE we can do to become a closely knit family?"

70, He Refused to Quit . . .

The Washington Post

ICC COMMISSIONER WILLIAM J. PATTERSON successfully bucked the Civil Service compulsory retirement dictum. A $15,000-a-year executive, Patterson turned 70 in June and, without a White House waiver, he would have been through, according to the rules. But his seven-year appointment still had two years to run and he refused to stop work. He did suffer one payless payday at the end of July, but early in August an executive order came through putting him back on the payroll. Patterson lives at 3916 Legation st. nw.

Home Guard Business Gets Off to Bad Start

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Ads were posted in thousands of Stockholm apartment buildings and homes promising a night watchman service that, for a fee, would guard home owners from night prowlers and burglars.

Police investigated and arrested the company managers, identified as Bengt (The Bottle) Lund and Erik Andersson, two of Stockholm's most notorious burglars.

20-Ton Dynamite Blast Raises Sabotage Fears

MLARTIC, Que., Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Eight hundred cases of dynamite weighing more than 20 tons blew up today at the Sladen Malartic Mines, Ltd., powder vault, causing an estimated damage of $50,000 in glass breakage.

Officials launched an immediate investigation of possible sabotage and all dynamite storage vaults in Northwestern Quebec were placed under 24-hour guard to prevent further blasts. One woman was injured.

Text of President Truman's Foreign Policy Speech

Following is the text of President Truman's foreign policy broadcast last night:

I HAVE just returned from Wake Island, where I had a very satisfactory conference with General Douglas MacArthur.

I understand that there has been speculation about why I made this trip. There is really no mystery about it. I went because I wanted to talk to General MacArthur.

There is no substitute for personal conversation with the commander in the field who knows the problems there from first-hand experience. He has information at his fingertips which can be of help to all of us in deciding the right policies in these critical times.

I went out to Wake Island to see General MacArthur because I did not want to take him far away from Korea, where he is conducting very important operations with great success. Events are moving swiftly over there now, and I did not feel he should be away from his post too long.

I have come back from this conference with increased confidence in our long-range ability to maintain world peace.

AT WAKE ISLAND we talked over the Far Eastern situation and its relationship to the problem of world peace. I asked General MacArthur for his ideas on the ways in which the United States can most effectively assist the United Nations in promoting and maintaining peace and security throughout the Pacific area.

We discussed Japan and the need for an early Japanese peace treaty. Both of us look forward with confidence to a new Japan which will be peaceful and prosperous.

General MacArthur told me about the fighting in Korea. He described the magnificent achievements of all the United Nations forces serving under his command. Along with the soldiers of the Republic of Korea these forces have now turned back the tide of aggression. More fighting men are coming from free nations all over the world. I am confident that these forces will soon restore peace to the whole of Korea.

We Americans naturally take special pride in the superb achievements of our own soldiers, sailors, Marines and airmen. They have written a glorious page in military history. We can all be proud of them.

It is also a source of pride to us that our country was asked to furnish the first commander of United Nations' troops. It is fortunate for the world that we had the right man for this purpose—a man who is a very great soldier—General Douglas MacArthur.

THE UNITED NATIONS action in Korea is of supreme importance for all the peoples of the world.

For the first time in history the nations who want peace have taken up arms under the banner of an international organization to put down aggression. Under that banner, the banner of the United Nations, they are succeeding. This is a tremendous step forward in the age-old struggle to establish the rule of law in the world.

The people of San Francisco have shown that they appreciate the importance of United Nations as a vital force in world affairs. I am told that in this area alone 71 organizations are celebrating United Nations week.

The United Nations was established here in this very building five years ago. It was founded in the hope and in the belief that mankind could have just and lasting peace.

Today as a result of the Korean struggle the United Nations is stronger than it has ever been. We know now that the United Nations can create a system of international order with the authority to maintain peace.

When I met with General MacArthur we discussed plans for completing the task of bringing peace to Korea. We talked about the plans for establishing a "unified, independent and democratic" government in that country in accordance with the resolution of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

It has been our policy ever since World War II to achieve these results for Korea.

OUR sole purpose in Korea is to establish peace and independence. Our troops will stay there only so long as they are needed by the United Nations for that purpose. We seek no territory or special privilege. Let this be crystal clear to all—we have no aggressive designs in Korea or in any other place in the Far East or elsewhere.

No country in the world which really wants peace has any reason to fear the United States. The only victory we seek is the victory of peace.

The United Nations forces in Korea are making spectacular progress. But the fighting there is not yet over. The North Korean Communists still refuse to acknowledge the authority of the United Nations. They continue to put up stubborn, but futile, resistance.

The United Nations forces are growing in strength and are now far superior to the forces which still oppose them. The power of the Korean Communists to resist effectively will soon be at an end.

However, the job of the United Nations in Korea will not end when the fighting stops. There is a big task of rehabilitation to be done. As a result of the Communist aggression, Korea has suffered terrible destruction. Thousands upon thousands of people are homeless and there is serious danger of famine and disease in the coming winter months.

THE UNITED NATIONS is already extending relief to ease the suffering which the Communist invasion has brought about and it is preparing to help the Koreans rebuild their homes and restore their factories.

General MacArthur and Ambassador Muccio gave me a vivid picture of the way in which the process of reconstruction has already begun. Railroads are being restored, bridges are being rebuilt, and public utilities are beginning to function.

We will use the resources of our Army and our Economic Cooperation Administration to meet the immediate emergency. We will give our strong support to the United Nations program of relief and reconstruction that will soon be started. The United States will do its full part to help build a free, united and self-supporting Korean Republic.

In a very real sense the unity of the free nations in meeting the aggression in Korea is the result of a firmly held purpose to support peace and freedom—a purpose which the free nations have pursued together over the years.

The name "United Nations" was first used in the dark days of the Second World War by the countries then allied to put down another aggression.

From that day until this, the cause of peace has been strengthened by an active policy of cooperation among the free nations. It is not by chance, but as a result of that steady policy, that 53 members of the United Nations rallied immediately to meet the unprovoked aggression against the Republic of Korea.

IT HAS been as a part of that same policy and common purpose that we have joined during the past five years in building up the strength of the peace-loving forces of the world. We have contributed to this end through the Marshall Plan in Europe and through economic assistance in many other parts of the world. We have also contributed to this end through military aid to countries threatened by aggression. All around the world the free nations have been gaining strength.

We have to recognize that, as we have moved steadily along in the postwar years, our policy of building a peaceful world has met constant opposition from the Soviet Union.

Here in San Francisco five years ago we hoped that the Soviet Union would cooperate in this effort to build a lasting peace.

But Communist imperialism would not have it so. Instead of working with other governments in mutual respect and cooperation, the Soviet Union attempted to extend its control over other peoples. It embarked upon a new colonialism—Soviet style. This new colonialism has already brought under its complete control and exploitation many countries which used to be free. Moreover, the Soviet Union has refused to cooperate and has not allowed its satellites to cooperate with those nations it could not control.

In the United Nations, the Soviet Union has persisted in obstruction. It has refused to share in activities devoted to the great economic, social, and spiritual causes recognized in the United Nations Charter. For months on end, it even boycotted the Security Council.

THESE tactics of the Soviet Union have imposed an increasingly greater strain upon the fabric of world peace. Aggression and threats of aggression, aided and abetted by obstructionism in the United Nations have caused grave concern among the nations which are honestly seeking peace. The response of the free world to the aggression in Korea has given those nations new confidence. But events in Korea have also made it more apparent than ever that the evil spirit of aggression is still abroad in the world. So long as this is true, we are all faced with a clear and present danger.

Today we face a violent and cynical attack upon our democratic faith, upon every hope of a decent and free life—indeed, upon every concept of human dignity. Those who support this evil purpose are prepared to back it to the limit with every device, including military force.

The Soviet Union and its colonial satellites are maintaining armed forces of great size and strength. In both Europe and Asia, their vast armies pose a constant threat to world peace. So long as they persist in maintaining these forces and in using them to intimidate other countries, the free men of the world have but one choice if they are to remain free. They must oppose strength with strength.

This is not a task for the United States alone. It is a task for the free nations to undertake together. And the free nations are undertaking it together.

IN THE United Nations, Secretary of State Acheson has proposed a plan for "uniting for peace" to make it possible for the General Assembly to act quickly and effectively in case of any further outbreak of aggression.

In our own country, and in cooperation with other countries, we are continuing to build armed forces strong enough to make it clear that aggression will not pay.

Our military establishment moved the necessary men and supplies into Korea, 5000 miles away, in an amazingly brief period of time. This remarkable accomplishment should not delude us into any false sense of security. We must be better armed and equipped than we are today if we are to be protected from the dangers which still face us.

We must continue to increase our production for military purposes. We must continue to increase the strength of our armed forces—Army, Navy and Air Force. We must devote more of our resources to military purposes, and less to civilian consumption.

All this will be difficult, and it will exact many sacrifices. But we are aware of the dangers we face. We are going to be prepared to meet them. Let no aggressor make any mistake about that. We value our independence and our free way of life in this country and we will give all that we have to preserve them. We are going ahead in dead earnest to build up our defenses. There will be no letdown because of the successes achieved in Korea.

AS WE go forward, let us remember that we are not increasing our armed strength because we want to. We are increasing our armed strength because Soviet policies leave us no other choice. The Soviet Union can change this situation. It has only to give concrete and positive proof of its intention to work for peace. If the Soviet Union really wants peace, it must prove it—not by glittering promises and false propaganda, but by living up to the principles of the United Nations Charter.

If the Soviet Union really wants peace, it can prove it—and could have proved it on any day since last June 25 (when the Reds invaded South Korea) by joining the rest of the United Nations in calling upon the North Koreans to lay down their arms at once.

If the Soviet Union really wants peace, it can prove it by lifting the Iron Curtain and permitting the free exchange of information and ideas. If the Soviet Union really wants peace, it can prove it by joining in the efforts of the United Nations to establish a workable system of collective security—a system which will permit the elimination of the atomic bomb and the drastic reduction and regulation of all other arms and armed forces.

But until the Soviet Union does these things, until it gives real proof of peaceful intentions, we are determined to build up the common defensive strength of the free world. This is the choice

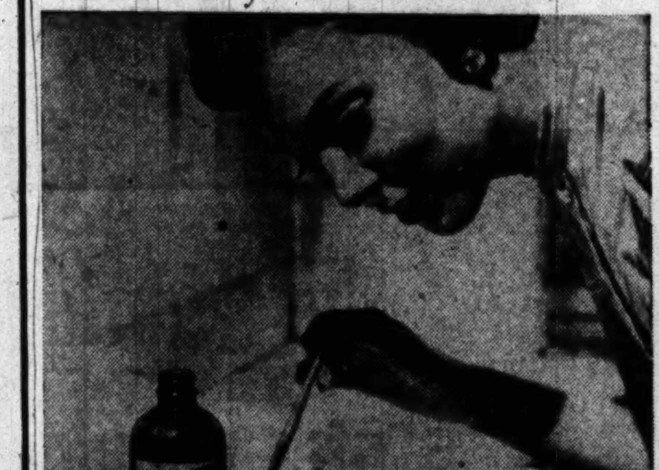
Modern Way to Control Roaches, Ants



New Discovery Kills Pests

HOUSEHOLD pests are no reflection on your housekeeping, for they may come into your home in a bag of foodstuffs or in packages delivered from warehouses.

Here's a new product to kill roaches, ants, waterbugs, or whatever crawling pests you are bothered with.

The product is called Johnston's NO-ROACH, and is a colorless, odorless, stainless coating that you can brush on any surface. Insects that walk across this coating pick up a particle on their feet, become paralyzed, and die within four hours. Within three days, eggs in their nests hatch, and these young ones are also killed.

Simply brush NO-ROACH on woodwork near the sink, baseboards, garbage pails, around cabinets, etc. Brushed across window and door sills, the product will kill crawling insects that may enter the home.

Johnston's NO-ROACH is effective for months. It is clean and colorless, and may be brushed just where you want it, without having to move all your dishes, pots and pans, and foodstuffs. Science has seen to it, too, that the product contains no DDT, no sodium fluoride, and no phosphorous.

No more messy powder sprinkling, or all-over spraying when you start controlling roaches, ants, waterbugs, this modern NO-ROACH way.

we have made. We have made it firmly and resolutely. But it is not a choice we have made gladly. We are not a militaristic nation. We have no desire for conquest or military glory.

OUR national history began with a revolutionary idea—the idea of human freedom and political equality. We have been guided by the light of that idea down to this day. The forces of Communist imperialism dread this revolutionary idea because it produces an intolerable contrast to their own system. They know that our strength comes from the freedom and the well-being of our citizens. We are strong because we never stop working for better education for all our people, for fair wages and better living conditions, for more opportunities for business and better lives for our farmers. We are strong because of our social security system, because of our labor unions, because of our agricultural program. We are strong because we use our democratic institutions continually to achieve a better life for all the people of our country.

This is the source of our strength. And this idea—this endlessly revolutionary idea of human freedom and political equality—is what we held out to all nations as the answer to the tyranny of international communism. We have seen this idea work in our own country. We know that it acknowledges no barriers of race, or nation, or creed. We know that it means progress for all men.

THE INTERNATIONAL Communist movement, far from being revolutionary, is the most reactionary movement in the world today. It is violently opposed to the freedom of the individual, because in that Communist system the state is supreme. It is equally opposed to the freedom of other nations, because in that Communist system it is Soviet Russia which must be supreme.

When General MacArthur and I discussed the whole problem of peace in the Far East, we recognized that this is far more than a military problem.

Today, the peoples of the Far East, as well as peoples in other parts of the world, are struggling with the false revolution of communism. Soviet Communist makes the false claim to these peoples that it stands for progress and human advancement. Actually, it seeks to turn them into the colonial slaves of a new imperialism. In this time of crisis, we ask the peoples of the Far East to understand us as we try to understand them. We are not trying to push blueprints upon them as ready-made answers for all their complicated problems. Every people must develop according to its own particular genius and must express its own moral and cultural values in its own way.

We believe that we have much in common with the peoples of the Far East. Their older civilizations have much to teach us. We hope our new developments may be helpful to them.

WE KNOW that the peoples of Asia cherish their freedom and independence. We sympathize with that desire and will help them to attain and defend their independence. Our entire history proclaims our policy on that point. Our men are fighting now in Asia to help secure the freedom and independence of a small nation which was brutally attacked.

We know that the peoples of Asia have problems of social injustice to solve. They want their farmers to own their land and to enjoy the fruits of their toil. That is one of our great national principles also. We believe in the family-size farm. That is the basis of our agriculture and has strongly influenced our form of government.

We know that the peoples of Asia want their industrial workers to have their full measure of freedom and rising standards of living. So do we. That is the basis of our industrial society in this country.

We know that the peoples of Asia have problems of production; they need to produce more food and clothing and shelter. It is in this field that we can make a special contribution by sharing with others the productive techniques which we have discovered in our own experience.

We are not strangers to the Far East. For more than a century our missionaries, doctors, teachers, traders and businessmen have knit many ties of friendship between us. If we can be of help, we are ready to offer it—but only to those who want it. Through the Economic Cooperation Administration, Point Four, and in many other ways we are trying to help the peoples of other countries to improve their living standards. We will continue these programs in cooperation with the United Nations. Even as we undertake the necessary burdens of defense against aggression, we will help to expand the work of aiding human progress. Otherwise, measures of defense alone will have little value.

WE seek full partnership with the peoples of Asia, as with all other peoples, in the defense and support of the ideals which we and they have written into the Charter of the United Nations. This is the partnership of peace.

I have spoken to you tonight about some of the things which all of us are thinking about as we press ahead to finish our job in Korea. At a time when our forces under General MacArthur are locked in combat with a stubborn enemy, it is essential for us to understand what our broad purposes are and see clearly the kind of world we seek to build. As your President, I realize what it means to the homes of America to have the youth of our land called to meet aggression. These are the most solemn decisions and impose the heaviest responsibility upon those who must have them. I have told you tonight why we must do what we are doing.

We hate war, but we love our liberties. We will not see them destroyed. We want peace but it must be a peace founded upon justice. That American policy is as old as our Republic, and it is stronger today than ever before in our history. We intend to keep it that way.

Truman Lists Peace Steps Soviet Should Take

marks on a strong America appealed especially to the audience, as when he said that we would "oppose strength with strength."

Mr. Truman began to saw the air with his hands as he listed the ways in which the Soviet Union could give concrete proof of its desire for peace if it really wanted peace.

He spoke slowly, sometimes in a conversational tone, and when he finished the crowd jumped to its feet, applauding and in some cases cheering.

The Chief Executive told the countries of Asia that the United States, with its "revolutionary idea of human freedom and political equality," wanted to help them and bring them into a "partnership of peace."

He warned them that international communism, far from being revolutionary, "is the most reactionary movement in the world." He then took this crack at the Soviet Union in relating its various actions to upset the peace of the world:

"It embarked upon a new colonialism—Soviet style. This new colonialism has already brought under its complete control and exploitation many countries which used to be free. . . .

"Today the peoples of the Far East, as well as peoples in other parts of the world, are struggling with the false revolution of communism. Soviet communism makes the false claim to these peoples that it stands for progress and human advancement. Actually, it seeks to turn them into the colonial slaves of a new imperialism."

Mr. Truman emphasized, as he has many times before, that the United States was determined to "oppose strength with strength" and so make it clear that "aggression will not pay."

"Let no aggressore make any mistake about that," he said. "We value our independence and our free way of life in this country and we will give all that we have to preserve them.

"We are going ahead in dead earnest to build up our defenses. There will be no letdown because of the successes achieved in Korea."

Mr. Truman made his speech here after a spectacular flight to Wake Island to talk to Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Some of MacArthur's ideas almost certainly were reflected in the speech, for it was rewritten 20,000 feet above the Pacific on the way back.

The President insisted that there was "no mystery" about his meeting with MacArthur. He said there was no substitute for personal conversation with the commander in the field who knows the problems from first-hand experience. And he explained that he picked Wake Island because he did not want MacArthur to be too far away from his command in Korea.

The President departed from his text at the outset to elaborate on his explanation of why he went to Wake Island to see General MacArthur.

"I believe," he said, "that my trip to Wake Island has given emphasis to the historic action taken by the United Nations in Korea. For Korea has been a symbol of united action against aggression.

"I also thought that there was a pressing need to make it perfectly clear that there was complete unanimity in the aims and conduct of our foreign policy in the Far East."

Mr. Truman spoke from the same platform where, in 1945, he attended the birth of the United Nations. He said he hoped then that the Soviet Union would cooperate in building a lasting peace, but charged that the men in the Kremlin had instead offered "constant opposition" to tranquility.

The President said that the United States was increasing its armed strength now, not because it wants to, but because the Soviet Union left it no other choice.

He listed the ways in which the Soviet Union could give positive proof of its intention to work for peace:

1. By living up to the principles of the United Nations Charter, and not merely by "glittering promises and false propaganda."
2. By joining the rest of the United Nations—as it could have done any day since June 25—in calling upon the North Koreans to lay down their arms at once.
3. By lifting the Iron Curtain and permitting the free exchange of ideas and informations.
4. By joining in United Nations efforts to establish a workable system of collective security, a system which will permit the elimination of the atomic bomb and drastic reduction and regulation of all other arms and armed forces.

"But until the Soviet Union does those things, until it gives real proof of peace intentions," Mr. Truman said, "we are determined to build up the common defensive strength of the free world.

"This is the choice we have made. We have made it firmly and resolutely."

The President's chief aim in tonight's speech, his associates said, was to alert Asia to the trap Russia had set for it by crying out about "colonial rule" while conspiring herself to impose upon Asiatics "a new colonialism—Soviet style."

The State Department's "Voice of America" broadcast the speech over 25 transmitters and summaries of it in 26 languages, including two Chinese dialects—Mandarin and Cantonese.

Mr. Truman showed in his speech that he was well aware that the word "communism" does not have the same dread connotation among underprivileged Asiatics as it does among Americans. Consequently, he used it only to tie it up with imperialism and colonialism.

He also showed that he was conscious of Asiatic sensitivity. He went out of his way to guard against anything that might smack of condescension.

"In this time of crisis," he said, "we ask the people of the Far East to understand us as we try to understand them. We are not trying to push blueprints upon them as ready-made answers for all their complicated problems."

Anacostians Ask Segregated Pool

The Anacostia Citizens' Association last night demanded that the Anacostia swimming pool be returned to operation on a segregated basis.

Meeting at Anacostia Methodist Church, 14th and U sts. se., the group cited the drop in paid attendance this year and asked that the pool be turned back "to use of white people as it was in 1948 and before."

The organization also went on record as commending the action taken by Opal Corkery, principal of Anacostia High School, in refusing permission of a performance at the school by a group of the cast "Faith of Our Fathers" which contained two Negroes.

The members appropriated $5 for use by the Federation of Citizens' Associations in its fight against a raise in rates by the Washington Gas Light Co.

The annual election was held and all of last year's officers were reelected.

Citizens Forum

The Citizens' Forum of Columbia Heights last night voted to ask the District Commissioners to make trash collections twice a week instead of once.

Meeting at Central Presbyterian Church, 15th and Irving sts. nw., the group also appointed a committee to investigate the Washington Gas Light Company's request for a raise in rates.

Clifford Newell, former president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, spoke on "What's Wrong With Washington."

East-Central

A memorial service for Thomas C. R. Bragg anad his wife, Marie A. Bragg, was held last night by the East-Central Civic Association at Montgomery School, 415 P st. nw.

About 75 members paid tribute to Mr. Bragg, foromer president of the organization and Mrs. Bragg, chairman of the education committee. Mr. and Mrs. Bragg died during the past year.

Central Northeast

The Central Northeast Civic Association last night approved its executive committee's selection of items the groups asks to be included in the 1952 District budget.

These items are: widening, deepening, and paving the bed of Watch Run to keep it from overflowing; improving sewers on 42d st., 44th st., and Benning rd., widening of the Benning viaduct; more teachers and a liberarian for Kelly Miller Junior High School, and construction of another junior high school at 42d st. and Grant st. ne.

Cathedral Heights

The Cathedral Heights-Cleveland Park Citizens Association last night voted not to contribute to the court fight against a gas rate increase.

By a vote of 20 to 3, members supported the sentiment expressed by Secretary E. L. Florance who said, "It's a lost cause, why throw our money away?"

Florance said he believed the Washington Gas Light Co. would win the case in appeals court. A Public Utilities Commission-approved $750,000 increase was set aside in District Court.

The association, meeting in the Guild Hall of St. Albans Parish asked the District Commissioners to provide funds in the 1952 budget for a new library on Connecticut ave. between Macomb and Newark sts. nw.

Petworth

Graham L. Hill, a Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. employe who lives at 5340 29th st. nw., moved up from first vice-president to president of the Petworth Citizens' Association in elections held last night at Petworth Library.

Hill succeeds Thomas R. Manning who was elected second vice-president. Others elected: O. V. Carpenter, first vice-president; Mrs. Betty Sullins, secretary; Van B. Sullins, assistant secretary; Mrs. Annie E. Hamill, corresponding secretary; John B. Hamill, treasurer; Dr. Linwood Hosley, sergeant-at-arms; Ernest F. Henry and John H. Connaughton, delegates to the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

The group renewed its requests for surveys to determine the need for traffic lights at New Hampshire ave. and Upshur st., and Rock Creek Church rd. and Upshur st. In another motion, it supported the request of residents in the 4700 block of Kansas ave. nw. to have the 125-foot bus stop-no parking zone in that block shortened.

Central Northwest

The Central Northwest Citizens Association last night voted confidence in Woolsey W. Hall, newly appointed school board member, for his stand on the appearance of racially mixed groups in District schools.

Hall was outvoted 2-1 in a special Board of Education committee which said Monday that school officials were right in banning a racially mixed group of "Faith of Our Fathers," actors from Anacostia High School.

Meeting in the Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, the group saw a movie offered by the District Tuberlosis Association.

Firemen Rescue 4 in 2-Alarm Blaze at Apartment House

A two-alarm fire in an apartment house at 1650 Fuller st. nw., yesterday routed tenants and trapped four persons in a third floor apartment.

No one was injured in the fire which broke out at 1:48 a. m. in an apartment occupied by Charles Miller, 29, a Commerce Department clerk, Joseph C. Kelly, 22, an FBI clerk and Lieut. (jg) William B. Omohundro.

Lieut. Omohundro awakened his apartment mates and two house guests, Misses Sandra Riccuto, 25, and Helen Riccuto, 23, sisters, of Ontario, Canada.

The lieutenant went out to rouse other tenants. Before the other four persons could leave the apartment, the fire in the living room became so intense they had to be assisted from a window by firemen.

Firemen said the fire started in an overstuffed chair in the living room of the apartment rented by the three men. They said damage was confined to that room.

SMITHERS AND HI?

Wanted–by Almost Half the People!

According to a recent widespread survey—almost half the motor car owners in the United States would choose a Cadillac, if they had their unrestricted choice.

Cadillac was voted the favorite by more than five to one over any other motor car built in America—a degree of leadership that is probably without parallel in the whole of American industry.

This is, of course, a tremendous tribute to Cadillac, and to those who have designed it so well and built it so soundly for so long a time. But we think it is, equally, a tribute to the American people themselves.

Only a small percentage of American motorists have ever owned or driven a Cadillac—or, for that matter, so much as enjoyed a ride in one.

But that has not hindered the public in general from sensing the soundness of the Cadillac ideal—or from giving its wholehearted approval to the Cadillac crusade for quality. Where the effort is worthy—the American people approve.

We regret exceedingly that not every one who wants a Cadillac can own one. But we believe, sincerely, that many have needlessly denied themselves the pleasure.

Cadillac cars are far more practical and economical to own than most people realize.

It costs less to buy the lower-priced Cadillacs than it costs to buy certain models of numerous other makes of cars.

Furthermore, under normal driving conditions, a single tankful of gasoline will usually suffice for a whole day's drive.

And, of course, when it comes to endurance, a Cadillac stands alone—for its life-span has never been fully measured.

Yes, for a very wide group of people, a Cadillac car is a sensible, practical buy. We hope sincerely that it is for you.

Church-State Separation in U.S. Approved

Church and State in America must remain separate, the Rev. Edward B. Willingham, pastor of the National Baptist Memorial Church of Washington, told a meeting in Alexandria last night.

Dr. Willingham spoke at a "religious liberty rally" at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, 2701 Cameron Mills rd., Alexandria. The meeting was sponsored by the Alexandria Ministerial Association and the Protestants and Other Americans United for the Separation of Church and State.

"Religious 'toleration'," Dr. Willingham said, "cannot take the place of religious freedom. So-called 'toleration' is an un-American expression when it comes to religion."

Religious liberty, he said, "is a cornerstone in our structure which may easily be moved by the subtle substitution of religious toleration. Religious liberty is a right which belongs to every human being.

"No state, political group, labor organization, economic control, church or religious hierarchy has the right to 'tolerate' religious practices of others."

He charged that in Burma, China, Italy, Spain, and some Latin-American nations, Protestants and other religious groups in the minority have been subject to prejudice, intolerance and persecution.

County Managerites Answer Tax Charges

The Committee for Good Government in Fairfax County yesterday charged that opponents of county-manager government are raising "false fears of higher taxes."

The committee, in a statement issued by Omer L. Hirst of Annandale, chairman, offered a "striking contrast" in the tax rates of Fairfax and Henrico counties to dispute what it termed "attempts to make good government appear more costly than poor government."

Fairfax County, "with its present unworkable (government) form," has a tax rate of $3.19 per $100 of assessed valuation, which is based on 37.5 percent of true value, making a true tax rate of $1.20, according to the statement.

Henrico County, on the same basis, has a true tax rate of under 69 cents under its county manager form of government, the committee declared.

The committee also said the Henrico County tax rate represents an increase of 35 percent since 1936, while in Fairfax County the similar true tax rate has jumped 114 percent in the same period.

The manager form, the statement explains, permits every citizen to vote for a supervisor in every one of the six magisterial districts. Under the present system, each citizen votes only for a supervisor from his own district.

The committee disputed arguments that the manager form would, through the county-wide method of electing supervisors, tend to place more to spend tax money in the hands of those providing the least proportion of the tax revenues.

Actually, says the committee, the taxes paid and the votes cast within districts of the county are almost exactly in proportion to the populations of the districts.

Mount Vernon, Falls Church and Providence districts together have 83 percent of the county's population, cast 76 percent of the votes in the last election, and pay 86.5 percent of the property taxes, according to the committee.

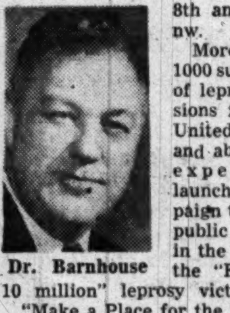
43d Meeting

Leprosy Unit Convention To Open Here

The forty-third annual convention of American Leprosy Missions, Inc., opens today for three days at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw.



Dr. Barnhouse

More than 1000 supporters of leprosy missions from the United States and abroad are expected to launch a campaign to arouse public interest in the plight of the "Forgotten 10 million" leprosy victims.

"Make a Place for the No-Place Person" will be the general theme of the meeting.

The opening address will be by the Rev. Donald Gray Barnhouse, pastor of the Tenth Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia.

At the opening session at 2 p. m., greetings will be brought by the Rev. Clarence W. Cranford, host church pastor and president of the Washington Federation of Churches; the Rev. Edward B. Willingham, pastor of National Baptist Memorial Church; Mrs. Wallace N. Streeter, president of the Washington Council of Church Women, and Mrs. William Danner, president of the Washington Auxiliary of the American Leprosy Missions.

At 7:30 p. m., Dr. Eugene R. Kellersberger, general secretary of the American Leprosy Missions, will talk on "The Stigma of Leprosy".

Judge Rejects High Bond In Robbery

A prosecutor's request for bond of $20,000 on a man indicted for armed robbery and on his brother, accused as an accessory in the case, was denied yesterday in Arlington Circuit Court.

Judge William D. Medley also refused to set high bond on a courtroom plea of Attorney William B. Calomeris that the brothers "have endangered the life" of a third man, his client, also indicted for robbery in the same case.

The third man was reported to have "cooperated" with the prosecutor.

Judge Medley did raise the bond on Joseph G. Lewis, 29, of 1519 Parw rd. nw., and on his brother, Paul C. Lewis, 36, of 3718 S. 3d st., Arlington, from $3000 to $5000.

He acted after Arlington Commonwealth's Attorney Denman T. Rucker said he believed the Lewis brothers "might not be here at the time of their trial." Rucker requested the $20,000 bond Monday.

Attorney Calomeris told the court that the life of his client, George W. Kiley, 26, of 332 Ridge rd. se., was in danger. He said the brothers "have been continually pressuring him to alter his testimony."

Joseph Lewis and Kiley were indicted Monday for the March 13 holdup of Mrs. Marguerite Lee at her home, 2700 S. June st., Arlington. She is the wife of former gambler Blight Lee. Paul Lewis was indicted as an accessory.

Judge Medley told Attorney Calomeris that if Kiley wanted to come to court later "and testify that they are threatening him then I will take further action at that time."

Veterans' Jamboree Head Fined

The president of the Alexandria Veterans Jamboree Association yesterday received a sentence . . . suspended . . . of $200 in fines and 90 days in jail on charges of operating a grocery store and selling beer without licenses, illegal sale of beer and evading city cigarette taxes.

Jasper L. McBride, 40, a foe of the Alexandria cigarette tax, said he would continue to operate the association "PX" at 1201 Duke st., Alexandria, without licenses because, he maintains, the association is a charitable, nonprofit group.

McBride appealed the conviction by Judge Harry F. Kennedy in Alexandria Civil and Police Court, as did his wife, Mrs. Mary L. McBride, 34. She received a $50 fine and 60 days' sentence — both suspended — on two counts of illegal sale of beer.

Mr. and Mrs. McBride were ordered to make no purchases in Virginia State liquor stores.

Couple Awarded $22,500 Damages

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey L. Peterson were awarded $22,500 damages yesterday in District Court for injuries suffered in traffic accident in February, 1948.

Each received head and back injuries when their automobile was struck by a bus of the defendant Capital Transit Co. at 6th and P sts. nw.

McAllister Retires From Police Force

Capt. Basil F. McAllister, 53, member of the Metropolitan Police Department for 29 years, was retired on half pay by the District Commissioners yesterday because of poor health. The action is effective November 1.

Capt. McAllister

The Board of Police and Fire Surgeons reported that he was suffering from heart trouble and facial neuralgia. His illness had kept Mr. McAllister from duty since August 5.

Promoted to captain in July, 1948, McAllister had served as commanding officer of the Tenth Precinct until he went on sick leave.

Department of Defense had a plan available, but that perhaps the Department of Labor or Selective Service did not entirely concur or that the needs of industry had not been thoroughly explored, the Texas Senator asked Mr. Truman to come up with an over-all Administration plan. Then his subcommittee will draft its bill.

Johnson said that he had asked that the program provide for inclusion of youths physically unfit for military training, so they can be schooled for civil defense or other national duty. This idea is understood to be looked upon with favor in Administration circles."

Pentagon leaders also have introduced the complicating factor of tying in such a universal training program with providing men for actual military service. What is needed is "UMS" (universal military service) rather than UMT, they say.

For to build to and maintain armed forces totaling three million men for the next several years will require some sort of conscription. And the old UMT program cannot operate effectively at the same time as Selective Service, in the opinion of most experts. Some modification of both plans, therefore, is necessary.

Under the existing UMT legislation, recommended by a presidential commission and submitted by the Administration, 18-year-old youths would be required to serve six months in military training camps. They would not be in the Army, Navy or Air Force, but in a special training corps directed by a civilian commission. After their six months, they would have to enroll in the National Guard or Reserves for a period of years, or serve an additional six months.

Under the present Selective Service law, which expires next summer unless extended, men aged 19 through 25 are liable for 21 months of actual military service in the Army or other branch.

Finnish Chorus To Sing Here Friday Night

Sixty Finns will show Washington a Scandinavian brand of choral singing Friday night.

The Polytech Chorus of Finland, under the direction of Ossi Elokas, is coming to town for a Constitution Hall program under the sponsorship of the Finnish Legation.

The Minister and Mme. Jutila are attending the concert, where the entire program will be of music by Finland's composers. Greatest of these is world renowned Jan Sibelius, who has written extensively for choruses of men's voices.

Sibelius's son-in-law, composer Armas Jarnefelt, will also be heard from as the chorus, now in its second year, introduces the composers of its native land. Tickets are still available for the concert at the Snow Concert Bureau, 1108 G st. nw.

Thief Had Time On Hands, and Many Thumbs

HOUSTON, Oct. 17 (AP).—A man who broke into the Hi-Lo Oil Co. headquarters here just wasted a lot of time.

He tried to break open the cash register. No luck.

He attempted to break into a cigarette machine. Nothing doing.

He tried the soft drink vending machine. Still no score.

He attempted to drive a large oil truck, but its trailer jacknifed and stuck.

Then he placed two long-distance telephone calls. Nobody at home.

Shortly after G. E. Shulte, manager, arrived at his office the long distance operator called and asked if he still wanted the call to Alamo, Tex. That gave police a lead on where to locate the would-be burglar.

Inglis Fletcher on Program Of Post's First Author Lunch

Inglis Fletcher, who is to appear at the first Washington Post Book and Author Luncheon of the 1950-51 season, insists she is an author of the "perspiration, perseverance" ranks.

But certainly these strains must be lessened a bit as she looks out over the grounds of her home at the Clarendon Plantation in Edenton, N. C., and visualizes the early life of the Americas in such an historic setting.

Her latest book, which Mrs. Fletcher will discuss at the luncheon in the Presidential Room of the Statler is "Bennett's Welcome." It, like her earlier novels, deals with the transitional period of America from a British colony to an independent nation.

Mrs. Fletcher has been awarded the degree of doctor of literature by Women's College of the University of North Carolina for her interpretation of the Southern locale in its growing days.

Other speakers at the luncheon, which is to be on October 26 at 1 p. m. in the Presidential Room of the Statler Hotel, are Jonathan Daniels, H. Allen Smith, and Jay and Audrey Walz.

Tickets, at $3, are available at the following book stores: Ballantyne's, Brentano's, Community Book Shop, Paul Pearlman, Kann's Book Dept., Francis Scott Key, Pursell's, Woodward & Lothrop, Whyte's, Savile's, Sidney Kramer, Airport Book Shop, Center Book Shop in Bethesda and, in Alexandria, Better Mouse Trap and Chequire House.

The Gallup Poll

U. N. Police Force Proposal Gets Enthusiastic Support

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 17—Few proposals in the field of international relations have ever received such an overwhelming indorsement from the American public as the move now underway at Lake Success to create a United Nations police force.

A national opinion study on this issue, in which representative voters were questioned throughout the country, finds a vote of greater than 8-to-1 in favor of having the United States provide troops, subject to call for service in a world army.

The United Nations forces now fighting in Korea are in effect, an international police force. John Foster Dulles recently introduced an American proposal at Lake Success that is designed to turn the Korean precedent into a regular practice for the United Nations whenever aggression breaks out.

The Institute put the following question before voters:

"It has been suggested that member countries of the United Nations (organization) keep troops ready at all times to be sent anywhere in the world where trouble breaks out. Do you think the United States should or should not agree to provide troops, along with those of other countries, for this UN World Army?"

[illegible]	83%
S[illegible] not	10
No opinion	7
	100%

All major groups in the population signified overwhelming approval The vote of both Republicans and Democrats is greater than 8-1 in favor.

By education level, the results showed majorities in favor of this proposal of 18-to-1 among persons with college training, 10-to-1 for high school trained persons and 5-to-1 for grade school trained adults.

Article 10 of the Charter empowers the General Assembly, in case the Security Council fails to act, to "step in and discuss and recommend regarding such subjects as settlement of disputes, breaches of the peace, the establishment of military contingents, etc."

It is under this article that an international police army would be authorized, and no constitutional change would be required, in the opinion of United Nations authorities.

McKeldin Accuses Lane of Hypocrisy

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

WESTMINSTER, Md., Oct. 17. Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, Republican nominee for Maryland governor, today called his campaign opponent, Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., the most "inaccessible and unavailable" chief executive the State of Maryland had ever known.

McKeldin, addressing a rally of about 350 persons in the armory here accused Governor Lane of "political hypocrisy" for telling voters the sales tax, which became law in 1947, was needed to help improve mental hospitals, a program that did not start until 1949.

The rally climaxed a GOP tour of Carroll County, which McKeldin four years ago carried against Lane by close to 2000 votes. The county also went for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in the 1948 presidential elections.

In the tour was Brig. Gen. James P. S. Devereux, USMC retired, Republican nominee for Congress from the Second Congressional District. The District includes Carroll, Harford and Baltimore Counties and part of the city of Baltimore.

Devereux, hero of Wake Island, accused the Democratic administration in Washington of "foggy" policy in the Far East prior to Korea.

Devereux is campaigning for the House seat of Representative William P. Bolton (D., Md.) who is seeking a second term.

Devereux told the rally he had met many voters who did not know how to pronounce his name. He said the pronounciation did not matter as long as the voters put another X after his name on election day. "I promise it won't be a double cross," he added.

John Marshall Butler, Republican candidate for United States Senate, said that the "Tydings-Truman administration" is fostering socialization of industry, medicine and agriculture. Butler is campaigning to keep Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) from a fifth term.

Tydings has opposed the Administration's health program and the Brannan plan and has frequently voted an anti-Administration policy on domestic matters.

The rally also heard William A. Gunter, Republican nominee for State Attorney General predict a GOP victory November 7. He said it was "political baloney" for Lane to promise a special session of the Legislature to reduce the sales tax on November 10 if the Governor is returned to office in the election of November 7. Gunter said the Democrats had already given Lane a mandate to enact sales tax relief by giving a popular majority in the primary to Lane's leading opponent, George P. Mahoney.

McKeldin also took issue with Lane for the criticisms the Governor has made of McKeldin's administration of Baltimore City during his term as mayor from 1943 to 1947. McKeldin pointed out that his administration covered part of the war years and he added that numerous Federal agencies had given his office citations for contributions to the war effort.

Lane Spent More Than Mahoney

BALTIMORE, Oct. 17 (AP).—Official campaign expense statements filed today showed that Governor Lane spent almost $40,000 more than George P. Mahoney in last month's primary.

Lane's organization spent $137,748 to win the Democratic nomination for Governor over Mahoney and three other opponents.

Mahoney's campaigners reported $98,725 in expenses.

Mahoney spent $24,350 in Baltimore City to $20,521 by Lane. Mahoney carried five of the city's six legislative districts.

Lane backers, on the other hand, spent more money in the counties, whose unit votes gave Lane the nomination, even though Mahoney received more popular votes from the State as a whole.

Another statement filed in Circuit Court today showed that John Marshall Butler, successful Republican candidate for the United States Senate, spent $15,643.

Official figures are not yet available for D. John Markey, who also garnered the most popular votes but still lost the race to Butler, but a Markey spokesman said they will not exceed $4000.

Rarely Played 'Intimate' Music Provides Enchanting Evening

By Paul Hume

The work of composers born between 1585 and 1685 A.D. provided a festive opening last night for the American University Chamber Music Society.

Emerson Meyers conducted the program for chamber orchestra, solo instruments and soprano, given in Clendenen Auditorium. Katharine Hansel was the singer. George Steiner played a Handel violin concerto.

John Martin, 'cellist, and solo wind players from the National Symphony Orchestra added notable moments. The music can be described as seldom performed in public, even though it concluded with one of the great Brandenburg concertos of Bach. For, unfortunately, we still hear even Bach's orchestral music very rarely in these days of hundred-piece symphonies.

Yet what a relief to the ear to listen for an evening to the kind of enchantment such an intimate group of musicians can make possible.

Heinrich Schutz was the oldest composer represented. The soprano sang an excerpt from one of his "Sacred Symphonies." It was both noble, and in its freshness, exciting. Following that, Mrs. Hansel sang an eloquent song by one Heinrich Erlebach, who was, as several people commented, a sort of "early Bach."

Corelli's Christmas Concerto, one of a set of concerti grossi, was handsomely played. Throughout the evening the tone of the players was well balanced, and elegant. Steiner not only carried the large task of solo work allotted to a concertmaster in music of this period, but also managed the Handel concerto with good understanding of its essentials.

Biffle's 'Disguise' On Political Tour Still Kept Secret

Senate Secretary Leslie L. Biffle is about to take off incognito on a political scouting tour of six key central States, but his "disguise" is still a state secret.

Biffle, close friend of President Truman, masqueraded as a poultry salesman in a similar 1948 tour, but won't tell even his best friends how he will travel this time.

Leaving Wednesday by train, he will visit these States, all involving close senatorial races: Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa and Wisconsin.

He will report directly to the President when he returns. Biffle said he believes that as of this date Democrats not only will hold their own in the Senate but may increase their majority there.

"But no preconceived notions will influence my checking," he said. "My report will be strictly factual."

Montgomery Council Puts Zone Petition Up to Board

The Montgomery County Council yesterday denied the rezoning petition of nine rooming houses and "flat" operators and directed them in effect to go to the Board of Zoning Appeals for relief.

The petitioners were instructed earlier by the Department of Licenses and Inspection to secure rezoning or face prosecution for operating rooming houses or apartments in residential "A" or single family zones.

They filed petitions for rezoning. The council turned down the applications and directed that fees be returned.

Appeal Suggested

The council resolution contended that granting their petitions would result in "piecemeal or spot zoning." Appeals to the Board of Zoning Appeals under the hardship clause was suggested in the resolution.

Councilman Thomas C. Kelley opposed the resolution and pointed out that the action would be giving authority to "grant any type of exception from the zoning laws because of hardship."

Kelley contended that the council should amend the zoning ordinance to take care of the situation or should pass upon each application, "judging it upon its merits."

Frederic P. Lee, president of the council, said the situation arose because of past failure by the county to enforce the zoning laws. He said granting the applications would be "either contrary to a sectional master plan for the area involved or to the zoning of surrounding land" and that this would constitute spot zoning.

Reiterates Charge

Lee reiterated his charge of last week that the "Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission has never adopted a comprehensive zoning plan for the suburban area."

Kelley was the only member voting "no" on the resolution.

Also yesterday, the council approved expenditure of an additional 10 percent for construction of the 20-classroom, library and office addition to Montgomery Blair High School, for which the lowest bid, $719,000, was offered by Byrne Organization, Inc. The council budget had appropriated $700,000 for the addition.

The board named the following as members of a Commission for Youth in Montgomery County: Mrs. Helen Bready, Mrs. Harold Mitchell, Mrs. Polly Alley, Joseph Guandolo, Miss Polly Bullard, S. Gilbert Brown, Joseph Bunker, William B. Griffith, George Luther, Thomas A. Conlon, jr., Roscoe Whipp, William Neiman, Noah Clark, Miss Margaret MacGregor and Blair H. Smith.

Arthurian

There was something akin to idolatry in Mr. Stassen's speech in praise of General MacArthur. Granted that he is a magnificent soldier—one of the best in this Nation's, and the world's, history. Does that connote that he is at the same time a seer and a statesman? Not necessarily; and, to be fair to Mr. Stassen, he would agree. In his paean to General MacArthur (which on the obverse side is meant to be dispraise of President Truman), he cites examples of MacArthur prescience.

If, Mr. Stassen says, the President had asked and accepted MacArthur's advice five years ago, China would not today be under Communist leadership. The same ifs are given down the intervening years, and something equally—or almost equally—miraculous would have happened. A demagogic note is inserted that there would have been no American boys killed in Korea if two years ago MacArthur's advice had been sought and accepted. In every instance, Mr. Stassen is cryptic about the substance of the advice—indeed, gives no hint of a bill of particulars. He doesn't even venture to satisfy a natural curiosity as to where he got his inside dope. But we take leave to suggest that on the face of it he simply reached into his hat for his combinations.

All we know is that up till last year General MacArthur was talking about the Japanese future as the Switzerland of Asia. That doesn't argue the possession of vision on the Stassen scale. However, we wind up with a meed of tribute to General MacArthur as a statesman. How do we know? Well, two years ago this newspaper suggested American action in Formosa before Chiang Kai-shek holed up there, and the United Press cabled back an indication that the piece had excited a good deal of interest in the Supreme Commander's headquarters. This showed very plainly that some such ideas were even then in MacArthur's mind. If Truman had taken our advice—!

New York Deal

In spite of Lieutenant Governor Hanley's explanation of his letter disclosing a deal with Governor Dewey of New York, it will cause the raising of many eyebrows. When Mr. Dewey announced that he would not again be a candidate for the governorship, party leaders threw their support to Mr. Hanley. The Governor, too, gave Mr. Hanley's candidacy his blessing. Then after the Korean war broke out, Mr. Dewey changed his mind and decided to seek another term. Mr. Hanley stayed in the race and borrowed $30,000 from Representative W. Kingsland Macy and Frank E. Gannett to finance his preconvention campaign. Then he met Governor Dewey in New York and was persuaded to withdraw from the gubernatorial race and run for the Senate. In explaining his decision to his backer, Congressman Macy, Mr. Hanley wrote that if he took the senatorial nomination, he would be "definitely assured of being able to clean up my financial obligations within 90 days, so that I would be clear for the first time in 20 years of my life." He also spoke of "an ironclad, unbreakable arrangement whereby I will be given a job with the State" in case of defeat in the race against Senator Lehman.

As to the additional compensation he expected if elected to the Senate, Mr. Hanley says that he referred to a $7000 pension that he would be eligible to draw from the State. As to being able to clean up his financial obligations in 90 days, he says that he expects to use for that purpose the proceeds of an insurance policy maturing in December. In contrast to his reference to an "ironclad" promise of a job, he says that he told Governor Dewey he might have to ask for a job if defeated and the Governor assured him that his services were too valuable to lose. In general these statements seem to be corroborated by Mr. Dewey, but they do not dispose of the fact that the two men entered into a deal affecting two of the highest offices within the gift of New York voters.

To his critics Mr. Hanley is replying that Mayor O'Dwyer of New York City was offered the ambassadorship to Mexico at a politically convenient moment and that Acting Mayor Impellitteri was offered a $28,000 post as a Supreme Court justice if he would withdraw from the New York mayoralty race. Certainly deals for political advantage are not uncommon. Probably Mr. Hanley's case differs from many others in that he was indiscreet enough to write a letter about it. Nevertheless, manipulations of this sort are always distasteful to the rank and file of voters. There is something seriously wrong with a system that permits the nominations for a senatorship and a governorship to be disposed of by a little private arrangement between two individuals.

Truman's Report

President Truman gave little additional information on his meeting with General MacArthur when he spoke in San Francisco last night, but he made an impressive appeal for understanding of the policy that the United Nations is following in the Far East. Speaking for the United States as the U. N. agent in Korea he said: "Our sole purpose in Korea is to establish peace and independence. Our troops will stay there only so long as they are needed by the United Nations for that purpose. We seek no territory or special privilege . . . No country in the world which really wants peace has any reason to fear the United States." In our own country this is taken for granted, but it is well to have it officially stated in a manner that will reach peoples still in doubt.

Force had been used, the President added, only because the spirit of aggression is still abroad in the world. The Soviet Union has inspired, promoted and supported that aggression. It continues to maintain armed forces of great size and strength. It persists in extending its control over other peoples by terroristic methods. In the words of the President, it makes its neighbors "the colonial slaves of a new imperialism." So long as this is true, Mr. Truman added, "the free men of the world have but one choice if they are to remain free. They must oppose strength with strength."

But this is not a task for the United States alone. Rather it is a joint obligation of all free nations. The President especially asked the peoples of the Far East to understand that "we are not trying to push blueprints upon them as readymade answers for all their complicated problems. Every people must develop," he said, "according to its own particular genius and must express its own moral and cultural values in its own way." The promise of the Western world is one of understanding and aid to peoples trying to work out their social problems in their own way. But such peaceful evolution holds no hope unless aggression and terrorism can be curbed.

To the Soviet Union's loud protestations that it wants peace, the President says in effect, "Let them prove it." Russia could change the emphasis on military strength by calling off the aggressors she has set into operation and by working with the free world for peace and reconstruction. The strength of the Western position, as Mr. Truman outlines it, is that it keeps the door wide open to peaceful solution of all problems while moving on many fronts to strengthen the safeguards against the new imperialism.

Beginning To Pinch

The purpose of the control measures instituted by the Government is to stabilize the purchasing power of the dollar and reduce civilian consumption of scarce materials required for defense. To achieve these ends controls must be stiff enough to prevent the public from buying as much as it otherwise would and to force some industries to cut down production of goods for which there is an active demand. Yet, judging from the outcries that have followed announcement of Federal Reserve Board orders tightening controls over real estate and consumer credits, a good many Americans fail to realize that if controls are to be effective, they are bound to affect somebody. The builders, for example, have to be affected because a semimobilized economy and a stable dollar simply cannot be maintained with a private construction pace of 1.3 million starts a year.

Of course, tighter controls over real estate credit will make it harder for people—rich and poor alike—to buy new homes. If they don't, the restrictions would be a useless gesture. Of course, if fewer homes are built, fewer building trades workers will be needed, and localized unemployment will result. Similarly stricter installment sales terms will reduce the buying of automobiles and household equipment and so displace labor. If it doesn't, these regulations will also be futile. Allocations programs, too, will inflict hardships on some industries by depriving them of needed raw materials, forcing cutbacks in production schedules and dismissal of workers.

But all this is precisely the purpose of control measures. They are intended to divert materials and manpower from production of less essential civilian goods to production of defense goods, thereby reducing competition between military procurement agencies and civilians that would accelerate price increases and drain off limited supplies of strategic materials.

Dire predictions that these controls will result in unemployment and lead to a business depression are, in our opinion, utterly unfounded. For as the defense program gains headway, the business lost as a result of controls will be offset by the business gained from the defense program. To be sure, the adjustments that have to be made by industry to put the Nation on a semimobilized basis will often be difficult to effect and some industries will be harder hit than others. Moreover, if we adopt a pay-as-you-go fiscal policy to prevent a progressive price rise, much heavier tax increases will be required that will reduce industrial profits, and make inroads on wages and salaries. Employers and workers alike will be called upon to make sacrifices in defense of the dollar.

With more than 96 percent of the labor force now employed, what we have to fear is not a growth of unemployment, but rather a shortage of labor in key industries. To be sure, shifts to new jobs cannot be effected over night by workers made idle by restrictions on output resulting from control measures, since the conversion of plants to production of military goods and equipment takes time. In view of the present emergency, however, controls are needed to hasten these shifts. The hardship inflicted by such changes will be temporary, and can be minimized by improved methods of recruiting workers for defense industries.

The United States Employment Service, for instance, has requested State Employment Services to check the local manpower demand and supply situation and give priority to requests for workers from defense employers in areas where labor supplies are insufficient to meet all demands. Employers can further systematize placement efforts by making full use of the services of these local offices, establishing training programs, assisting workers to move their residences, and providing for their accommodation. As a matter of fact, the Government is much more concerned about the prospect of labor shortages than by the problems presented by idle labor. But any plan for dealing with the labor dislocations created by the defense program is in part one of fitting displaced workers into new jobs.

The argument that controls should be made easy in the beginning for fear of resultant unemployment ignores the fact that changes in production are urgently needed to speed up the defense program and labor can't be shifted to new jobs until those production changeovers are completed. The sooner the public understands that the transition from a peacetime economy to a semiwar footing cannot be painlessly effected, the sooner it will realize that incidental hardships resulting from controls are a small price to pay for more effective mobilization of our resources and prevention of runaway price increases that would demoralize the economy and endanger the defense program.

The Woolly Pandit

Faith in the world statesmanship of Pandit Nehru at this critical moment in international affairs is fast crumbling. His mind is difficult for others—and perhaps himself—to fathom. His country is a member of the United Nations, which does not and never has recognized the thirty-eighth parallel as a dividing line in Korea. He objects to the dispatch of U. N. troops north of a fictitious line on the grounds that North Korean resistance had collapsed, though 70,000 North Korean soldiers are reported to have passed back into North Korea, where they are regrouping for what Kim Il-sung, with Stalin's explicit blessing, calls a "fight to the death," to be munitioned out of huge convoys arriving from Manchuria and Siberia. In spite of General MacArthur's risky wait at the thirty-eighth for word from the North Korean command, there is still no sign of a sue for peace without which the United Nations antiaggression action would be stultified.

Finally the Indian Premier frowns upon the organization of force which is now in progress in the General Assembly, though the primary aim of the United Nations is to maintain peace by the organization of force. This was expressed when the framers of the Charter inserted Article 47, providing for the establishment of a military force—a pledge which has come to naught as a result of Russian noncooperation. There had been hope that Pandit Nehru in this matter of police organization would make a constructive contribution. In his latest statement, however, he reveals himself as an academic word-splitter in world affairs with no comprehension of—or no willingness to recognize—realities. Well, perhaps he has too much on his plate at home to be depended upon for anything more than oratory, and is too bemused by his fealty to chip-on-the-shoulder nationalism to see the world situation in perspective.

Reassurance

In the October issue of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, Dr. James Arnold, physical chemist of the Institute for Nuclear Studies, University of Chicago, examines the assertions made last spring by several eminent scientists that a hydrogen bomb could be produced which could destroy all human life on earth. These assertions seemed to us at the time somewhat disquieting. We are, therefore, gratified to learn from Dr. Arnold's careful researches that the danger is not nearly so great as it had been depicted. "It is almost certainly not true," he concludes, "that a weapon of the type described can wipe out the human race completely. It is possible, however, that the vast majority of the race can be killed off in this way, although a full-scale effort by a major country over many years would be required."

Apparently, then, there is no sense worrying about hydrogen bombs and no occasion for undue alarm. Dr. Arnold admits that the amount of deuterium necessary to produce the desired result—that is, the extermination of all humanity—can actually be produced. But, he points out, it would be extremely expensive. A minimum of 500 tons or a practical maximum of 10,000 tons would be required. "The minimum quantity," says Dr. Arnold, "is easily attainable; the maximum, at a total cost of 40 billion dollars, would require an all-out effort by a major industrial country, over perhaps 5 or 10 years." Moreover, Dr. Arnold believes that if the bomb were actually made and exploded, its radiation effects could not be distributed uniformly over the earth and that many areas would be left relatively clean. So, as he observes, "all in all, then, the human race is in no immediate danger."

Williams Vindicated

The eventual outcome of the Williams case is not surprising to his neighbors. After the horrible ordeal one stops to think and sum up the whole mess.

Two imaginative young girls steadfast in their accusation that he was the man because he had bulging eyes; the bungling police for not investigating a sure alibi as to his whereabouts prior to being picked up, not to mention his being kept incommunicado for four hours; the "brilliant" handwriting expert; the avid press for creating sensation; and the real culprit who goes scot free with pity and seeking medical care.

Of course, the matter will no doubt be dismissed as having been a bad mistake, but how about Mr. Williams and his six months of anguish and the young fortune spent? Shuld not the press in fairness make some amends by publicizing the other side, the irresponsible accusers, the police officers, the reporters and the real culprit so that might not happen again? As Mr. Williams points out, such a thing might happen to anyone. What would happen to the man without funds handy and without a horde of friends?

Our community rejoices in the complete vindication of Robert S. Williams jr., and his daughter Evangeline in a tragedy-of-errors morals' charge.

It was well known that Mr. Williams was a trustee of All Souls' Unitarian Church. Dr. A. Powell Davies, his militant pastor defended him with a righteous indignation that made the judicial process cringe with resentment that condoned reprisals. Ordinarily the impartiality of the court would lean backward to defend a presumption of innocence. At least it should not be stampeded into tolerance of aggravated judicial assault upon a pastor's indignation against reversible error.

Drafting Veterans

I don't see why a mother of two combat veterans has a right to say anything about whether draft policy should take, first, veterans who stayed Stateside or not (letter from Mrs. L. P. S. published October 12). Rather, as one of them, I would ask Mrs. L. P. S.'s two combat sons what they think.

She doesn't know, I suspect, that combat men were sent because they were wanted, not because of their volunteering. In the training school where I was located, many men were ashamed to go home on furloughs because their superiors wouldn't accept their requests to go overseas.

She doesn't know that many men were killed in the routine process of training. Would she award the Purple Heart to a soldier wounded Stateside because a student forgot to unload his machine guns and accidently hit the trigger? The Army didn't.

She doesn't realize that many men sent overseas, but not in combat, had a pretty nice time of it, according to their stories.

STATESIDE CHAIRSITTER.

Revised Draft

We are all concerned about the seriousness of the times, but even in emergencies there is need for careful thought. Today we see more fully the mistakes we made five years ago and realize we must not recklessly take measures that five years from now may again be viewed in the same light.

The draft laws we have today and will have in the future are sad but necessary, sad because the last war did not secure the peace and necessary if we are to preserve our way of life. However, the inequities of the present law and that proposed for the future can become cardinal errors unless corrected.

Partially to rectify this situation I recommend to the military and the Congress the following:

1. All veterans under 26 years of age, as well as those over, who saw overseas service of any type should be exempt from the draft.
2. Physical standards for military service should be cut to the minimum to facilitate the creation of a three-million-dollar armed force.
3. If the danger is so real the entire National Guard and reserves should be called up.

In times like these there can be justice to all. To draft a man who has served his country in foreign lands, even though he is under a certain age, would be like saying: "It's too bad, my boy; you should have been born a few years sooner." The solution to the military problems of the future, gentlemen, lies in universal military training, but until this comes about our greatest necessity, outside a three-million-man armed force, is a wise draft law incorporating the three points submitted.

Polluted Potomac

Congratulations on your excellent article concerning the filthy conditions of the once beautiful Potomac River. It's disgusting to think that a group of humans can't live together without wreaking so much havoc on one of nature's most beautiful creations. I believe that if the people living in Washington and vicinity are told about this they won't let it continue to exist just as they don't tolerate filthy conditions in their houses or backyards. I hope you will print more articles on this subject, since newspaper articles are the best way to arouse public opinion.

My vote goes to the Congressman who will help us clean up our river.

Afghan Border

In your issue of October 12, there appears a letter from Mr. Modjadidi of the Royal Afghanistan Embassy, in which he has "officially" stated that no Afghan troops took part "in any action against Pakistan."

Although allegedly Afghan troops have taken no part in the action, the action came from the Afghanistan side of the border, and when the raiders were pursued they fled back into Afghanistan territory to seek shelter. It is a strange movement for freedom which speaks with no voice except that of the Afghan official clique.

Defense Of Wake

In your coverage of the President's conference on Wake, a few historical corrections seem in order:

1. Wake was definitely not "the first loss of United States soil to a foreign invader." Guam surrendered on December 10, 1941, just short of two weeks before the Navy surrendered Wake. Likewise, enemy landings in the Philippines had wrested considerable United States soil prior to the fall of Wake.
2. What the conferees saw were not "Jap landing boats," but the hulks of two Japanese destroyers converted into light transports (Nos. 32 and 33) which were run aground in order to get the enemy special naval landing force onto the beach.
3. As now Brig. Gen. Devereux himself has gone to some lengths to put on record, he never sent back any such message as "Send us more Japs."
4. The final surrender of Wake took place on December 23 (East Longitude date), not December 24, as stated. If your citation of December 24 was based on West Longitude date, it should be made clear.

Much additional information on Wake and on its defense in 1941 may be found in the official Marine Corps narrative of that action, The Defense of Wake obtainable from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C.

Fairfax County Reorganization

I should like an opportunity to correct an unfortunate impression given your readers in your issue of September 22. I refer to the report on the regular monthly meeting of the Federation of Fairfax County Citizens' Associations.

Your story, left the impression that I attacked the Fairfax County study commission which recently reported on its investigation of proposed reorganization of the county government. I did not assail that commission.

The Federation itself has been attacked recently for its advocacy of the county manager plan. For that reason it seemed necessary for the organization to reaffirm its stand. In preparation for the vote on the issue, I was asked by the chairman of our county government committee to review briefly the events leading up to the present point in the reorganization campaign. In doing this, I reminded our delegation of the commission's report and our earlier statements as to its origins. The review was in no sense an attack on the commission.

In addition, the statement attributed to me in regard to the number of commission members who were publicly committed against the county manager plan before they were named to the study group also was incorrect.

It is unfortunate that this report left these impressions. The federation and the organization allied with it to bring the county manager plan to this county have urged all groups who recognize the critical need for a change in the government form to stop fighting among themselves and cooperate in an effort to acquaint the people with the need for change.

There is much to report to the people of Fairfax County that the readers of The Washington Post would find interesting and significant. The need for a change and the differences between the two alternate forms offered must be explained if the people are to vote intelligently in the November 7 referendum. But stories limited exclusively to conflict of groups will not lead to understanding.

We shall appreciate anything The Post can do to inform the people of Fairfax County about the opportunity which is now theirs to adopt a modern, efficient and democratic form of government. The future of this county clearly is at stake.

'Desk Men' On Front Lines

By Malvina Lindsay

Cheer Squad Needed

YOU HEAR many say, "That fellow sure has guts! I wouldn't want to be in his shoes." They are referring to Dr. Alan Valentine, who assumes office this week as administrator of the Economic Stabilization Agency.

You feel yourself as if you were watching a man march before a firing squad. You think of the President's long efforts to fill this post, and related ones, to find men willing to become whipping boys of a public that will grow more querulous as it feels increasing cramp on its supplies and pocketbooks, and to be targets of attack of every organized special interest whose toes are stepped on.

You recall the trail-blazers in this field—Henderson, Bowles, Porter—their stormy tenures as shock absorbers of public discomfort and disgruntlement. You think of other public servants, as Forrestal, trying to do superhuman tasks while those less able to do them threw rocks. You think especially of Acheson, now given the ball to carry, and being "cheered" toward the goal post with jibes and calumny.

Well, at least Dr. Valentine looks hardy and youthful, and no doubt he can take it. True he may have one strike against him in being a college professor, even a college president. But surely by this time, with virtually everyone young and old clamoring to go to college, the stigma of "perfesser" must have lost some of its sting. And since he has not imbibed a British manner from his experience as a Rhodes scholar, perhaps his learning can be overlooked.

YET, YOU recall uneasily, that anti-intellectualism is having its usual revival in this election campaign. It is always the unscrupulous politicians' handy match to ignite the mental bonfires of class hatred.

Yes, Dr. Valentine and the next price control director will need plenty of courage. But as those who pay tribute to such valor, always go on to point out, "somebody has to do it." Why then do we not accord those who attempt these difficult, important and thankless civilian jobs some of the cheering and moral support we give to men in uniform who take on dangerous and critical missions? Is not the monstrous ogre, inflation, just now our most threatening enemy? Is not the protection of our economy the greatest strategic step we can take before a world that is questioning its efficiency and survival?

You think of the emotional, thoughtless criticism, often from the ignorant and uninformed, of every move of public officials. Yet that is democratic procedure. And do we not glory in the right of every citizen to "blow his top" about what is wrong in Washington, in every State capital, county courthouse, city hall?

Yet, you wonder if it isn't time we took on some of the responsibilities of free speech, instead of thinking only about our rights in that field? Isn't it time we learned the elementary lesson of psychology that no one, including the public official paid with our taxes, can do his best unless he is given encouragement and faith in himself? Isn't it time we cultivated more the democratic fair play of knowing our own directions before we pulled at the coattails of those steering the ship?

YOU THINK how tough the time ahead will be for all those out in front in civilian life, as the public finds more austerity and more crisis becoming its daily lot. You think how hard it's going to be to recruit soldiers in mufti for the service that subjects them to constant nagging and badgering of Congressmen, politicians, editors, organizations, publicity seekers, fanatics and sovereign citizens.

And you think of Lincoln's advice to a committee that came to him during the Civil War with a complaint from the West. As quoted by Harold J. Baily in a letter to the New York Times he said:

"Gentlemen, suppose all the property you were worth was in gold and you had put it in the hands of Blondin, to carry across the Niagara River on a rope. Would you shake the cable or keep shouting at him, 'Blondin, stand up a little straighter—Blondin, stoop a little more—go a little faster—lean a little more to the North—lean a little more to the South!?' No, you would hold your breath as well as your tongue, and keep your hands off until he was safe over. The Government is carrying an enormous weight. Untold treasures are in their hands; they are doing the very best they can. Don't badger them. Keep silence, and we will get you safe across."

Peace Department

The sentiments expressed in E. K. Goldsborough's letter of October 13 are solid stuff and I agree wholeheartedly. It was the last paragraph, however, which particularly caught my eye—"while all Christian countries have war departments, not one has a peace department."

Back in the early days of our Republic, around Washington's time, there lived in Baltimore a Negro astronomer and mathematician named Benjamin Bannaker. Among other things he wrote almanacs. In one of these he suggested that we have a "Secretary of Peace." His thesis propounded that "it is to be hoped that no objection will be made to the establishment of a peace office while we are engaged in a war with the Indians, for as the War Office of the United States was established in time of peace, it is equally reasonable that a peace office should be established in time of war."

It's extremely unfortunate for us that this remarkable man's writings weren't more widely noted at the time. But is it too late even now? Why not a peace department!

India's Neutrality

By Marquis Childs

An Interview With Nehru

Childs

NEW DELHI, India.—Wearing homespun garments and leading a life of almost Spartan austerity in his vast official residence, one of the leading figures on the world stage talks eloquently and movingly of the world's despairing need for peace.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, in a four-hour talk with me, expounded the philosophy behind India's foreign policy.

If that policy has confused some and seemed to resemble appeasement, it is not due to any wavering of Nehru's mind. He sees the supreme tragedy of a third world conflict overshadowing humanity and his deepest convictions are that everything must be done to avert it.

For the moment, at least, Nehru believes the danger of China's intervention in the Korean war has subsided. He says India's role was solely to pass on to Great Britain and the United States the statements made by Chou En-lai to India's Ambassador Pannikar in Pieping. But how, Nehru asks, could anyone assume that those statements were a bluff? They had to be taken at face value unless one presumed to know the inner workings of the minds of the men now governing China.

THE REASONS why the Nehru government is working incessantly for peace and to avoid seeming to align itself against Peiping emerge from Nehru's conversation as he ranges back to the origins of India in the earliest Indus civilization, rediscovered some years ago. They can be summarized as follows:

First is its belief that World War III would mean a reversion to barbarism over large areas of the earth. Destruction would be so great and interruption of all forms of transportation and communication so far-reaching that this is inevitable. As Nehru sees it, "military, almost tribal, dictatorships" would take the place of organized government in many regions.

In this connection the Nehru government is firmly determined to try to maintain neutrality if such a war occurs. But Nehru, with a rare smile illuminating his grave face, admits to great difficulties in the way of holding to such a course. He also fully understands the indirect consequences of a new war on a "neutral" and particularly on India, where the struggle to curb inflation and to reconstruct is so critical.

THE SECOND reason for the policy of the Nehru government is the belief that in the "long run China can never become a satellite of Russia or a Communist state in the Russian pattern."

Nehru points to shifts in Chinese policy during the past year granting rights even to large land-holding peasants to retain their lands and farm them for their own profit. To Nehru this means the likelihood of the continuing domination of the peasant economy with a restraining influence on theoretical Communists in the cities.

Sensitivities and pride in new nationalisms in both India and China enter in here, too. There are repeated reports printed in Delhi of Chinese invasions of Tibet. The fate of this remote mountain fastness is linked to India's prestige. Likewise, the integrity and independence of Burma, which once had major ties to China, are important to India not alone for pride prestige but for the military security of the nation. China's military strength is at least 10 times that of India.

The third reason for the Indian policy is the profound influence of the Gandhi philosophy on Nehru and most members of the government. Though he has been dead for more than two years, Gandhi is still a living spirit in this British-built capital of imperial splendor which has been taken over by Indian leaders who led the revolution against the British Raj.

NEHRU makes plain in almost everything he says the influence on him of Gandhi, who was like a father and brother to him. Gandhi's nonviolence which deeply swayed the Indian masses, lives on in the hearts and minds of those who are trying to establish a democratic self-government in this land torn by religious strife and burdened by ancient traditions.

This Gandhi-ism partly explains the revulsion here for the mass killing and destruction in Korea, even though India joined the United States in its United Nations stand against the aggressor. The remark General MacArthur made, and widely printed here, saying the sight of dead North Koreans was good for his old eyes caused a highly unfavorable reaction.

This also is related to the suspicion that the West considers Asiatics expendable and that the desire of Europe and perhaps America is to fight the war against communism in Asia where weapons of mass destruction, such as the atomic bomb, can be used.

That brings up the fourth reason for the Indian policy, which is the fear of American imperialism. Nehru, of course, is far too understanding to hold such a fear. He says what Asians fear is not the old-fashioned imperalism, but "economic imperialism."

The man in the long homespun coat, called an achkan, talks on in the deep silence of the Indian night. Ever soft and muted in its conversational flow, his voice implies brilliance and power as the speaker to vast Indian throngs. Only the occasional howling of Delhi jackals in the remote darkness beyond the open windows breaks the stillness, reminding us of the forces of nature still to be conquered in this ancient land. Whether anyone in the West likes it or not, this man is India today—the inheritor of Gandhi's and, as he has just shown, a new master political party that dominates the country.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Hope In The Air

A major nightmare haunted anyone who watched the Korean fighting with the far larger Western defense problem in mind. Here we were, painfully winning a war by mustering overwhelming superiority in firepower, in accord with our accustomed method of fighting. But what would happen in a war against an enemy possessing mass manpower, habituated to use manpower with perfect ruthlessness, and possessing also the most massive and overwhelming armor and artillery firepower?

Such an enemy would have both the advantage of the North Koreans and our own advantage.

To defend western Europe against precisely such an enemy is the problem of the Western defense planners. In view of the necessary limitations on the size of any western European defense force, it is no use trying to match every Soviet armored division, and mortar division and mechanized division and artillery corps. Because of manpower limitations, the ordinary infantry would be a minus quantity in any Western European army designed in this way. Is there, then, any way out?

The way out, obviously, is in the air. All-out mobilization of the whole Soviet economy has thus far produced an air force of only about 19,000 planes of all types—larger than we have now, but peanuts by the standards of what we can do if we try.

The effectiveness of air power in ground fighting was proven again in Korea. The air is where we can counter-balance the Russian manpower mass by capitalizing on our technical and productive superiority. The development of unchallengeable tactical air power is perhaps the most vital of all the great, related tasks involved in building a solid defense of the Western world.

BUT it is also vital that this task should be undertaken with first principles clearly in mind. We are beginning from scratch. Our air leaders requested a postwar Air Force of 70 groups. They got 42 groups masquerading as 48. With the hearty concurrence of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the major air investment was therefore devoted to strategic air power. If that investment had not been made; if the deterrent of our strategic Air Force did not exist, we should undoubtedly be on the losing side of the third world war at this very moment. At the same time, we do not now possess more than a ghost of true, specilaized tactical air power.

Second, the job that must now be done is rather different from any before attempted. The Marines, whose superb air squadrons did incomparable work in Korea, have always specialized in giving the closest support to troops in the field. But this use of air as a substitute for artillery is better adapted to the Marine mission of seizing beachheads, than to the true air mission. The true air mission can be best defined as cutting the enemy ground force down to size. This means primarily that the enemy ground force must be relentlessly attacked long before it reaches the battlefield. Effective isolation of the battlefield must have first priority, after control of the air has been gained.

What was done in this line in the last war was primitive. Daily locating immense numbers of small, continually shifting ground targets—truck convoys, railroad equipment and the like—and keeping out all the usable lines of communication at the same time, is a task that requires equipment only now beginning to be available.

SPECIALIZED aircraft are required for target location. Complex and refined systems of air-ground control are needed to direct the planes in the air to the targets on the ground. Other specialized aircraft carefully designed, with first priority given to the characteristics of taking out many different sorts of small ground targets and withstanding the inevitable ground fire, are also needed. Special training programs are finally essential, both for the men who must operate all these different sorts of equipment, and to coordinate the air operations in the closest possible manner with the effort on the ground.

A book would be needed to give even the theoretical blueprint of the tactical air force of the future, with all its elaborate techniques of night operations, of meshing the effort of the truly tactical airplanes with their protecting fighter interceptors, and so on. It is enough here to make only two further points. In Korea, under pressure of necessity, we simply converted high altitude fighters and heavy bombers to tactical uses. But it is impossible to use this system in building real tactical air power, which will be truly capable of cutting a larger enemy ground force down to size.

Equally, we shall not have this kind of tactical air power unless all the services swallow bitter pills. The Army and Navy will have to swallow the pill of accepting, for a while, an air investment that will seem disproportionate. The Air Force, meanwhile, will have to get down out of the wide blue yonder, and give agonized, concentrated attention to overcoming all the difficulties in the way of maximum air-ground cooperation. Unfortunately, if these pills are not swallowed, and the boldest, most imaginative use is not made of tactical air power, the Western defense problem cannot be solved.

Soviet Claims A-Energy Key To Conversion

MOSCOW, Oct. 17. (AP)—Soviet scientists have found a way to convert atomic energy directly into heat or electricity, Prof. V. Golubtsov wrote in the Literary Gazette today.

Golubtsov, an atomic specialist, declared the Russians are far ahead of Americans in the development of peaceful uses for atomic eneregy. The Russians were described as pacemakers also in the application of hydroelectric energy and in the development of gas turbines that will work on hard fuels.

"Soviet scientists have found other technological schemes and other technical possibilities for the peaceful use of atomic energy—transforming it directly into heat or electricity," Golubtsov wrote.

Golubtsov asserted that the United States had failed to progress substantially on peacetime uses for atomic energy because it is concentrating on military uses. He declared "American power monopolies" fear that atomic energy may destroy their investments in steam power equipment.

Soviet Licorice Cargo Is Finally Unloaded

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17 (U.P.). The Swedish freighter Selma Thorden unloaded a cargo of Russian licorice here—but not until it had knocked on a lot of doors.

The freighter was rebuffed by stevedores at Boston, New York, Albany, Gloucester, N. J., and here, and finally took a trip along the Gulf Coast. It returned to Philadelphia after longshoremen revised their ruling.

Scientist Says 'H-Bomb' Could Be Made To Kill 'Only a Majority' of Human Race

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Those busy atomic scientists. working overtime, have come up with a real cheerful note.

They deduce that Leo Szilard was wrong when he said last winter that it was now possible to produce a bomb whose radio-active effects would destroy the entire human race.

This, according to an article published yesterday, is "almost certainly not true." It would kill off only "the vast majority" of the human race.

This good news, filtered out of some high-class formulae involving ergs, roentgens, capture cross-sections and several kilojoules/mole, is ready to rejoice the heart of anyone who wants to read the October issue of the authoritative Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists.

Race in No 'Immediate' Danger

It says that "the human race is in no immediate danger." But what with techniques in the mass extermination game improving faster than you can say, "4x10-26 cm2," the situation 10 years from now may be very different, the Bulletin article suggests.

The purveyor of this ebullient optimism is Dr. James Arnold, a physical-chemist of the Institute for Nuclear Studies at the University of Chicago (Cold Comfort Department). Ordinarily, Arnold busies himself measuring the age of prehistoric fossils by means of the radioactive decay of their components.

This month, however, he turns to the question of whether radiactivity can make humans decay into posthistoric fossils. The questions arose last February in a radio program where one of the participants was Leo Szilard, one of the earliest and foremost atom-smashers in the business.

Szilard, who is noisier though less cheerful about the future than Cassendra, said that a hydrogen bomb could be rigged up in a sort of cobalt overcoat. When it exploded, the cobalt would be irradiated and converted into a poisonously radioactive dust.

It would only kill off the vast majority of the human race

This would be carried all over the globe by air movements and would fall, with the gentle rain from Heaven, very much like—or rather, not at all like—the quality of mercy. After breathing, touching or otherwise absorbing this stuff, the entire human race would expire, Szilard said. He suggested that the Russians, in a moment of defeat, might threaten to set one of these things off if we stepped a foot over their borders, thus committing human, and Russian, suicide.

After a long bout with his slide rule, Dr. Arnold figured that Szilard may be partly right. He agrees generally that such a bomb could be made—it might take 10 years and 40 billion dollars to get the cobalt, and it would certainly play hob with the current $1.60 per pound cobalt price.

But he doesn't think the resultant poison dust would be evenly distributed. With with differences in rainfall, turbulence, runoffs and falling into the ocean, some areas might be "relatively" clean.

Nevertheless, Arnold thinks, it is an "ominous circumstance that we can come so close to a practicable method for self-destruction with present-day technology."

And, after all, with time and perserverance, we can hope for improvement. For, as Arnold brightly concludes, "It is apparent that advances are to be expected."

Another Big-Power Meeting Futile, Bevin Tells Commons

LONDON, Oct. 17 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told the newly convened House of Commons today Russia's past performances didn't do much to inspire faith in the effectiveness of big-power meetings.

Sidestepping a suggestion that Britain propose a meeting of President Truman, Prime Minister Stalin and Prime Minister Attlee, the Foreign Secretary observed:

"The attitude of the Soviet Union in the four-power meetings to discuss Germany or the Austrian Treaty was not such as to encourage the belief that the solution of the world's problems can be found by that means."

Bevin also told the House:

"The question of consultations between the Great Powers is now before the United Nations on United States proposals for United Action for Peace!"

"The Government believes the solution of problems by negotiation will be facilitated. But it is important that any consultations arranged between the great powers not be used as a substitute for United Action for Ueace."

Mean time, the Conservative opposition in the House has apparently decided to take a swipe at the Labor Party through the big socialized transport Industry, which operated in the red through the last fiscal year, and expects to lose more money in the current year.

The Conservatives introduced an amendment to a report of the British Transport Commission "deploring" the industry's losses, which amounted to £20,800,000 ($58,240,000).

Both sides have issued Three-Line Whips—the most urgent call for presence in Commons—for debate on the transport question Wednesday. A vote may follow.

CBS welcomes Tele-tone –the first set manufacturer to bring you Color Television

Last Wednesday, the Federal Communications Commission, acting in the interest of the public, authorized the CBS system for commercial color television broadcasting. Since then there has been confusion in the minds of many people about color television.

On Sunday I went on the air to try and give answers* to questions like: What does the CBS color system do to my present television set? When can I get color television programs? Should I buy a television set now—or should I wait?

Now—one short week after the Commission's decision—one of America's progressive and responsible television set manufacturers has come up with another specific and practical method to provide the public constructive answers to these questions.

The effect of his method is to say: You can have color television in your home in less than three months.

If you are interested in television, I urge you to read his clear and specific announcement on page 12B of this paper.

Gen. Clark's Book Attacks War 'Errors'

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. (AP).—Gen. Mark W. Clark's new book, "Calculated Risk" (Harper & Brothers), a personal and controversial narrative of the African-Italian campaign, comes out today.

"Calculated Risk" not only glorifies the American soldier, but Clark has bitter words for what he terms "political mistakes" and the "ineptitude of dual command." He does not hesitate to term the bombing of Monte Cassino a mistake. He expresses his belief that the failure to push into the Balkans was a tragedy.

Of these subjects he says:

"The weakening of the campaign in Italy in order to invade southern France instead of pushing on into the Balkans was one of the outstanding political mistakes of the war."

Hits Cassino Bombing

And of Cassino:

"Bombing of the Abbey was a mistake. I said at the time there was no evidence that the Germans were using the Abbey for military purposes.

There is irrefutable evidence that no German soldier, except emissaries, was ever inside the monastery."

Aerial bombardment:

"Knocking down of a building or a town by aerial bombardment frequently leaves great piles of rubble that are better defensive positions than were the original buildings."

From the Fifteenth Army Group headquarters he tells of receiving instructions to "first play up the Eighth Army (British) henceforth. Second, the Fifth Army . . . when men have just been through a bruising battle such as the Fifth Army had experienced, it is difficult for them to understand the reasons, if there are any, for instructions to play down their activities and play up the operations of someone else. It wasn't easy for me to understand either . . ."

One chapter is devoted to one of the most controversial incidents of the Italian campaign—the crossing of the Rapido River by the Thirty-sixth Texas Division. (At a postwar reunion of that division Congress as asked to investigate the Rapido River failure.)

Defends Repido Crossing

Clark explains:

"It was essential that I make the attack fully expecting heavy losses, in order to hold all the German troops on my front and draw more to it, thereby clearing the way for 'Shingle' (Anzio Landing).

". . . There was no question in my mind that we were going to have to spill blood. . . . It was better for us to spill it where our main force was well established and on the offensive than on the hazardous and unorganized beachhead at a time when a powerful counter-attack there might have driven us into the sea and wrecked our whole plan of campaign Thus . . . it was our deliberate strategy to draw the Germans there (the Rapido) in order to safeguard our landing at Anzio."

After two days of heavy casualties Clark says he conferred with Gen. Geoffrey Keyes of the Second Corps as to the advisability of continuing the attack.

"Keyes felt it should be continued as long as the 141st Infantry was holding out on the German side of the river."

There had been 1681 casualties, including 143 killed.

Generals Sir H. M. Wilson and Sir Harold R. Alexander said they had instructed Clark to order the attack and approved his course of action.

"I do not, however, take refuge behind the fact that the operation was ordered by my superiors," Clark writes.

"I feel that the heroic men of the Thirty-sixth Division are entitled to the complete record. . . . Like the guards and tackles of a football team the Thirty-sixth was called upon to attack and attack hard. . . . While somebody else made a spectacular end run to Anzio that would have failed if the guards and tackles had not been on their jobs.

". . . As for myself, I can only say that under the same circumstances I would have to do it over again—and if I am to be accused of something, thank God I am accused of attacking instead of retreating."

U. S. Sued in Death Of Woman in Crash

Chief Justice Porter Sims of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, brother of Mrs. Elizabeth S. Bent of Old Greenwich, Conn., who died in November 1 airline disaster at Washingtn National Airport, has filed a $15,000 damage suit against the Federal Government in Alexandria District Court.

Sims charged that the airport control tower operators were responsible for his sister's death. Mrs. Bent was one of 55 passengers killed when a P-38 fighter plane piloted by a Bolivian collided with an Eastern Airlines DC-4.

Arcave First by Half Length in Laurel Opening

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

PERHAPS you noticed that the leading candidate for manager of the St. Louis Cardinals is Rollie Hemsley, and if you just came in and haven't been hearing of Hemsley lately, you are permitted an excusable double-take.

Sure, he's the same bad boy of baseball you heard about in the '30s and early '40s—Rollicking Rollie, ready to fight or frolic until a half dozen major league managers washed him out of their hair, which was the thinner for the association.

Povich

Well, he's back, and no less than Owner Fred Saigh of the Cardinals is indicating that Hemsley is his choice to succeed Eddie Dyer. Even if it doesn't happen, it's that close and is a whopping triumph for Alcoholics Anonymous because Rollie was their big reclamation project and he hasn't drawn a whisky breath in years.

I can write about that, because Rollie wants it known, and he'd like to spread the gospel of AA, "if it will help another guy to catch hold of himself and get squared away again." That's the way, too, that Don Black of the Cleveland Indians felt about it a few years back when he asked me to write his story.

ROLLICKING ROLLIE was a great catcher of whom it was said, with some truth, that he could do a better job of it half-tight than most of the others could sober. He was around in the majors, in both leagues, for most of 19 years, but unfortunately the book was never written on How to Handle Hemsley. Inevitably he slipped back to the minors.

The Cardinals just didn't happen to think of Hemsley in considering who their new manager might be. They know him now as a completely sober guy, with an obvious talent for leadership. There never was an question of his astuteness as a baseball man. He couldn't have stayed around as long as he did, in his condition, if he didn't have a lot of baseball ability going for him.

He's under consideration now as the man who two years ago took a Nashville club that wasn't supposed to go anywhere in the Southern Association, won the pennant with it, and then the playoffs and the Dixie Series. Last season, the Cardinals set him up as boss of their Columbus (Ohio) farm club in the American Association. Result: Another pennant for Hemsley and the championship in the Little World Series against Baltimore.

THREE CLUBS in the National League, the Pirates, Cubs and Reds, gave up on Hemsley back in the '30s, before he drifted to the Browns. He didn't exactly drift off the Browns when the Indians picked him up. Rogers Hornsby fired him. Something about a row with a cop in Philadelphia, who said Hemsley was in no shape to drive a car.

Oscar Vitt was the next lion-hearted manager to take a chance on Hemsley. "I'll keep him in condition if I have to go out and drink with Hemsley myself," said Cleveland Manager Vitt. He succeeded only somewhat, but during Rollie's 1937-'38-'39 term at Cleveland he was the catcher selected by Bob Feller as the man he most wanted to pitch to. Only Hemsley caught Feller.

Vitt and the Cleveland club became completely disenchanted with Hemsley in April, 1939, when the team was barnstorming north from Richmond, Va., Vitt sent him home. The news apparently reached Cleveland before Hemsley, because at the station to greet him were two representatives of AA, that secret group of reformed tipplers, who wanted a word with him.

SKEPTICAL OF THE whole idea, Hemsley was persuaded to make a trip to Akron for an organization meeting of AA. And then it happened—none would ever say how, but it was a sensation in the baseball world. Rollie quit drinking, quit cold, and wouldn't touch a drop from that evening. Not only that but he joined the AA crusade against alcoholism, became an eager worker to bring other unfortunates into the fold.

The Yankees were Hemsley's last port of call in the majors. Convinced that he was laying off the stuff, they took him on as their wartime catcher, saw Rollie become their No. 1 man a decade after the Browns had given him up as a hopeless case. Verily, the fellow had come a long way since those besotted days when he was an enemy to himself.

Hemsley went back to the minors and did a whale of a job not only for those young ballplayers at Nashville and Columbus, but for himself. You have to root for a guy who could come all the way back and win consideration for one of the important posts in the baseball business. I hope he lands that Cardinal job.

—Football Contest Game—

Can Yale Stop Cornell Saturday?

Yale at Cornell Saturday.

Cornell is rated the top team in the Ivy circles this year.

Cornell is undefeated in three games.

But Yale also is unbeaten in four games.

The Yale-Cornell game is the one on which you will predict the "Probable Score" in The Washington Post's football contest this week.

The contest winner will receive two tickets to the Maryland-Duke game at Durham, N. C., October 28, as well as first class, roundtrip transportation for two persons.

Contest Rules

THE CONTEST each week will include 20 major college games. The contestant will select the winner (or tie) in each of these games. There will also be a twenty-first game for which the contestant must give the "Probable Score," to be considered by the contest judges only in case two or more persons tie on the first 20 games.

All entries must be in the hands of the Football Contest Editor not later than 9 p. m. Friday of each week. Entries should be left at the Service Counter in the lobby of The Washington Post Bldg., 1337 E St. N. W.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week shall be declared the winner. In case of ties, all persons sharing in the tie will receive duplicate awards.

The decisions of the judges will be final.

Entries submitted must be legible, with the selections listed in the order they are announced in The Washington Post.

Entries may be handwritten or typewritten. However, carbon copies and mimeographed copies or copies made by any other duplicating machine will NOT be accepted. You may submit as many entries as you wish.

No employe of The Washington Post or member of his immediate family is eligible to participate in this contest.

No person will be eligible to win the weekly contest twice.

Terps Hold 8th Place In AP Poll

By Will Grimsley

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP).—Resurgence of the South and Southwest to a place of high respect is the main feature of the first month's skirmishing in college football.

Army's swift-striking Cadets head the national standings for the second week in a row today but a rundown of the Associated Press top 20 shows no single section dominant.

Also no team overshadows the others as overwhelming as Army did during the war and as did Notre Dame and Michigan immediately afterward.

The new first ten, chosen by a vote of 275 sports writers and broadcasters, is:

Army, Oklahoma, Southern Methodist, Kentucky, California, Stanford, Texas, Maryland, Ohio State and Washington.

Every section is represented and all except the East, which boasts No. 1 Army, have at least two teams. The Pacific Coast leads with three.

South Has 7 of 20

The final poll last year carried a heavy Middle West flavor, with five of the top ten teams from the rugged midlands. The Pacific Coast furnished two and the other sections picked up the scraps.

Army, which plays a weak Harvard team Saturday, gained 124 first-place votes on the strength of its 27-6 victory over Michigan Saturday at Yankee Stadium.

How They Rank:

(Number in brackets first-place votes)

TOP TEN

1.	Army (124)	2,427
2.	Oklahoma (47)	2,315
3.	Southern Methodist (63)	2,312
4.	Kentucky (9)	1,191
5.	California (1)	1,120
6.	Stanford	850
7.	Texas	788
8.	Maryland (5)	552
9.	Ohio State	492
10.	Washington (5)	430

SECOND TEN

11.	Notre Dame	295
12.	Clemson (4)	285
13.	Vanderbilt	278
14.	Miami of Florida (14)	270
15.	Rice	255
16.	Wisconsin	246
17.	Cornell (2)	225
18.	Tennessee	144
19.	Wake Forest (1)	115
20.	Northwestern	92

Georgia 79, Yale 74, Illinois 45, Michigan State 44, Texas A and M 37, Michigan 27, Pennsylvania 24, Tulane, Alabama, Kansas and Princeton 8, North Carolina 7, Duke and Purdue 6, Wyoming and Santa Clara 5, Virginia and Lehigh 3, UCLA and Drake 2, North Carolina State, Texas Christian, College of the Pacific, Carnegie Tech, Xavier of Cincinnati, Wichita and Loyola of Los Angeles 1.

This ballooned the Cadets' point total to 2427 on the basis of 10 points fo ra first-place vote, nine for second and so on down the line.

Oklahoma barely edged out Southern Methodist for second place although the Sooners were pressed to beat Texas, 14-13, while the Mustangs smashed Oklahoma A. and M. 56-0.

Where's Notre Dame?

The Sooners received 2315 points to 2312 for SMU despite the Mustangs' larger collection of No. 1 votes, 63 to 47. Oklahoma will play Kansas State Saturday. SMU will meet dangerous Rice, the Southern champion, Saturday night.

Kentucky will be at Villanova, California will be host to Oregon State, Stanford will play at UCLA, Texas will take on Arkansas, Maryland will meet North Carolina State, Ohio State will be at Minnesota and Washington will invade Illinois.

If it seems strange to go this far without mentioning Notre Dame, it is not an oversight. The Fighting Irish, beaten by Purdue 10 days ago, dropped from the first 10 for the first time since the lean war years. And whatever became of Purdue?

Davis Elected T Club Prexy

Andy Davis, GW football ace, has been elected president of McKinley Tech's Circle T Club, made up of former Tech lettermen.

Davis succeeds Byron T. Haydon, '35, track. Other officers include Vice President Eli Blank, '39, baseball and basketball; Secretary Eddie Barton, '41, basketball; Assistant Secretary Jim Galloway, '45, football and baseball; Treasurer P. Baxter Davis, '32, baseball; Sergeant-at-arms Johnny Harvill, '43, baseball and football; Publicity Director Angelo Catucci, '39, football and track.

Lord Carlton On Turner Show

Lord Carlton takes on Bud Curtis, former national weight-lifting champion, in the 60-minute wrestling feature at Turner's Arena tonight.

A two-man team match between Ken Ackles and Steve Karas and the Zaharias brothers, Babe and Chris, also is listed along with the 30-minute bouts. Bobby Ford meets Billy Wilcox, and Pat Muldeen goes against Lenny Montana.

Quantico-Scranton Game Discussed Today

Members of the press, radio and television will meet with representatives of the sponsoring Alexandria Chamber of Commerce and Quantico Marines' football team at a luncheon at the George Mason Hotel today at 12:30 p. m.

Master of Ceremonies Jack Tulloch; Game Chairman Charlie Slagle, and Major Hal Harwood, head coach of the Marines, will participate in a discussion of the game between the Leathernecks and Scranton University at George Washington High School Stadium October 28, night.

—Mrs. Gilbert's Near-Perfect Entry Wins—

Laurel Farmer Takes a Wife, She Takes the Football Contest

A SPRIGHTLY research chemist, housekeeper and farmer's wife who occasionally takes care of 400 chickens, found time to win last week's Washington Post football contest with a near-perfect entry.

Mrs. Janet Gilbert of Gorman rd., Laurel, Md., is the versatile victor. She missed only Wake Forest's upset over North Carolina in the last 10 seconds and picked the exact score of the Oklahoma-Texas game, 14-13.

Mrs. Gilbert was thrilled to win two tickets to this week's big game at Baltimore between Navy and Southern California with first-class transportation for two.

Runnerup Herbert C. Tucker, 1545 N. 19th st., Arlington, Va., also missed only one game—Colorado's victory with Nebraska. However, Mr. Tucker picked Oklahoma to win, 27-19. Twenty-one other contestants missed only two games.

Mrs. Gilbert, who makes no bones about being just 30, said she knew she was close but was afraid "one of those boy wonders would beat me out."

She's a research chemist at the University of Maryland dairy, specializing in diseases of dairy cattle. Mrs. Gilbert was graduated from the University of Maryland in 1943.

Last season she gave the men in the dairy lab a football lesson, winning an office pool as the only female entrant.

Maybe it's the masculine influence in her life that makes her an expert. Her husband, Chester G., played football at Buffalo University. And her deceased father, Manton M. Wyvell, was a gridder at Cornell.

She won't have to take a back seat in family football discussions. Her husband also sent in an entry but, as Mrs. Gilbert said, he disagreed with a few of her choices. Silly man!

She's happy to take in the Navy-Southern California game, and now says it's up to Mr. Gilbert to win the trip to Durham, N. C., for the Maryland-Duke game.

William Klemm—The Washington Post.

Hungry Hoyas Keyed Up, Seek First Victory at B. C.

By Jack Walsh

Post Reporter

ANY TALK OF a possible letdown at Boston College Friday night after last week's Maryland game was dismissed summarily yesterday by Georgetown Coach Bob Margarita.

"Why should we have a letdown?" Margarita queried, "we didn't win. I feel we should be hungrier."

Trouble for the Hoyas is that the young B.C. club should be equally eager. After tying strong Wake Forest, 7-7, the Eagles lost by a respectable 28-0 score to Oklahoma, the country's No. 2 club.

Mississippi State plastered B. C., 54-0, but the team came back well against Fordham, though losing, 26-6. In that one, Fordham led at half, 26-0, but was outplayed by an equally wide margin after intermission.

Boston College Coach Denny Myers is well known as a fine offensive tutor. At the moment, this is his lowest scoring team. Last year, when Oklahoma blanked B. C., 46-0, it was the first time a Myers' coached team had been shut out.

The fact that B. C. has made only two touchdowns in four games means that the New Englanders are overdue for a scoring explosion. To help it along, it's expected that Senior Fullback Ed Petela will be back in action, fully recovered from an injury that has kept him out of the last two games.

Yesterday Georgetown went through what Margarita termed a "fine practice." With the exception of those boys who did heavy duty against Maryland, the squad went through a sharp scrimmage.

3 TKOs Mark Bolling Fights

Three technical knockouts marked first round bouts in the Air Force Boxing tournament at Bolling Air Force Base last night.

Middleweight Bill Moody of Bolling disposed of Doyle Summarall of Andrews Field in 1 minute and 37 seconds of the first round. Bill Kinney of Bolling put away Bob Greer of Arlinfton Hall in the first round of another middleweight bout, and Welterweight Matt Aielo of Arlington Hall knocked out Abe Nadler of Andrews Field in the second round.

Bolling leads for the team title with seven victories, Andrews had three and Arlington Hall, one.

—Len Charges Attack by Harder—

Bell Withdraws Fine When He Learns of Ford's Operation

CLEVELAND, Oct. 17 (AP).—Len Ford, the Cleveland Browns gridder who underwent surgery yesterday for injuries suffered in a game against the Chicago Cardinals, has one less worry today.

He is not going to be fined $50 by Bert Bell, National Football League commissioner. The end from Washington, D. C., suffered a broken nose, a broken cheek bone, two teeth knocked out and a broken forehead bone.

While Ford was on the operating table, Coach Paul Brown got a telegram from Bell saying Ford was fined for slugging. The rules infraction was supposed to have been on the play when Ford was injured and the Browns penalized.

Brown telephoned the commissioner and reported Ford was being operated on. The fine was then rescinded.

The injuries came when Ford, on defense, rushed Quarterback Jim Hardy and was blocked by Fullback Pat Harder.

[The United Press reported Ford as charging Harder deliberately fouled him. Bell said he would study movies of the game.]

Variety of Trouble

5-Formation USC Attack Worries Navy

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—Its defensive problem multiplied by five, Navy put aside theory for practice in a long football session today.

Southern California did the multiplying. The Trojans aren't expected to fool around with one method of moving the ball when they meet Navy in Baltimore this Saturday. They know five ways, and are likely as not to spring one right after the other.

Navy observers have watched USC operate from three different T-formation patterns and two double-wings, all in the same game.

One time it might be an orthodox "T," the next a split-T. Or perhaps Coach Jeff Cravath's peculiar flanker "T." The double-wing starts from both balanced and unbalanced lines.

Setting up defenses for such a diversified attack is Coach Eddie Erdelatz's main task with the Midshipmen this week. He went over the theory yesterday. It was all rough-and-tumble outside work today.

The Midshipmen face Southern California without their two most versatile ends, Capt. Tom Bakke and Bob McDonald. The Academy reported Bakke is far from ready to return to duty. McDonald, well enough to open against Princeton last Saturday, stopped short again with a pulled leg muscle. He is counted on for no more than cheering from the bench against USC.

There was also doubt about alfback Art Sundry and Center Ted Kukowski. If Kukowski's lame ankles do not strengthen, Navy will have to find another linebacker to step in.

Where to Buy Terps, N. C. State Tickets

Patty Berg Ties For Medal Honors In Hardscrabble

FORT SMITH, Ark., Oct. 17 (AP). Defending Champion Patty Berg of Minneapolis and two other contenders tied for medalist honors in the qualifying round of the sixth annual Hardscrabble Women's Open Golf Tournament here today.

Miss Berg, Betty MacKinnon of Dallas and Betsy Rawls of Austin, Tex., scored 77s, two over women's par on the exacting Hardscrabble course.

Alice Bauer of Midland, Tex., was next with 79. The best sister Marlene Bauer could do was 81.

Jamison, Ferebee Win Mid-Atlantic Pro-Amateur Golf

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—Al Jamison, Quantico golf professional, today teamed with J. Smith Ferebee of the host Hermitage Country Club, to win the pro-amateur golf tournament of the Mid-Atlantic Golf Association. The winners had a best-ball 65, 8 under par.

Tied for the pro sweepstakes with cards of 72 were Jack Isaacs of Langley Air Force Base, and John O'Donnell of Norfolk. Isaacs, the Virginia Open champion, put together rounds of 37-35 while O'Donnell had rounds of 35-37. Low gross in the amateur sweepstakes was captured by J. B. Hall, jr., of Hermitage with a card of 39, 35—74.

He Survives Stretch Duel Before 8061

By Walter Haight

Post Reporter

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 17.—Maryland-bred Arcave, owned by S. W. Labrot, jr., of Annapolis, survived a gruelling stretch duel today to win the Pentagon Purse.

A crowd of 8061 on hand for the opening of Laurel's 13-day meeting watched Arcave draw out slightly approaching the wire to hang a half-length defeat on Bobanet Stable's Attention Mark. The beaten-off third in the field of six was Pentagon Stable's Djinn.

The judges took no chances on their eye report and asked for a photo before posting the order of finish. Many Arcave backers were already lining up for the $5.20 win mutuel when the "official" was lighted.

As was the case in the stretch run, the betting was a two-horse affair for the most part with Attention Mark winding up a favorite over Arcave.

Mrs. H. S. Clark's Puppet was nowhere in the final tabbing but the son of Half Crown was the whole show in the early running. He bounded to the lead early and drew out to a five-length advantage along the backstretch.

Naturally, Attention Mark and Arcave were being rated at this time. When the real racing began, Puppet tossed in the sponge and the two heavily-played 3-year-olds went into action.

Arcave, with Bobbie Strange up, gained a slight advantage but Attention Mark, with Frank Bone aboard, fought it out gallantly. However, approaching the wire, Arcave asserted his supremacy.

The season's first steeplechase brought the crowd thrills and chills. H. A. Dunn's Leche Hombre was the winner by a length and a half with Brookmeade's Band Leader second and S. C. Clark, jr.'s My Good Man third in the field of nine. This trio was running heads apart as it went into the final of the 13 fences. Charles Harr rode the $11.20 winner the about 2 miles in 3:55 2/5.

Only one spill marked the 'chase, but it was spectacular although not damaging. C. E. Maniere's Brown Stockings all but stood on his head but miraculously failed to roll on Jockey Johnny Santone who escaped with a shaking up.

Betting for the day totaled $515,772. The first Tuesday of the spring meeting totaled $624,571 while the first Tuesday of last fall's session brought $442,263.

Randall Owners Want Laurel

BALTIMORE, Oct. 17 (AP).—Two Baltimore contractors are interested in buying Laurel Race Track from the Maryland Jockey Club, one of them said tonight.

Saul Silberman said he approached Alfred G. Vanderbilt, chief stockholder of the club, on the subject at today's fall season opening at Laurel.

"I merely made an inquiry about Laurel," said Silberman, who is part-owner and president of the Randall Park track near Cleveland. He said he inquired on behalf of himself and Ralph DeChiaro his partner in Randall Park.

Harry Parr 3d, president of the Jockey Club, said no formal negotiations on possible sale have been held. But he admitted the club would sell if the transaction would help to finance a rebuilding program planned for Pimlico, also owned by the club. The effect on Maryland racing would be a big factor in the sale also, Parr said.

Clemson Only Major College Team Still Unscored On

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP).—Clemson College is the only major college football team unscored on this season, after Cincinnati pushed over a touchdown against Kentucky last week.

Among the smaller schools, Denison of Granville, Ohio, has won three games without permitting an opponent to score.

Clemson has beaten Presbyterian, 55-0, Missouri, 34-0, and North Carolina State, 27-0. Denison has defeated Washington and Jefferson 20-0, Otterbein, 26-0, and Wooster, 46-0.

Davis 13th In Nation On Offense

George Washington University this week jumped three notches into fourth place among the Nation's football teams in passing. Only Southern Methodist, Holy Cross and Vanderbilt outrank the Colonials.

Much of the credit is due Tailback Andy Davis, who is thirteenth in total offense and twentieth in passing. Another Colonial, End Bill Szanyi stands fourteenth in pass receiving.

Bo Rowland's boys have averaged 207.5 yards per game by passing. Davis has picked up a total of 635 yards in 105 passing and running plays. His passing average is 50.7 percent with 34 completions in 64 attempts for 528 yards. Szanyi has caught 16 passes for 200 yards.

Duke, Clemson, Wake Forest, VMI and North Carolina State are other Southern Conference schools figuring prominently in this week's statistics.

Here is a rundown on their ranking:

Duke: twelfth in passing, tenth in total offense, second in pass defense, Billy Cox first in passing, fourth in total offense, Ceep Youmans third in pass receiving.

Clemson: first in total offense, second in rushing offense, Jack Calvert ninth in total offense and twelfth in rushing.

Wake Forest: second in rushing defense, fifth in total defense.

V. M. I.: Jim Coley eighteenth in total offense, Joe Stump eleventh in rushing.

N. C. State: Ed Mooney, eighth in total offense, and tenth in passing.

Terps-N. C. State Will Be Televised —But Not in D. C.

The Maryland-North Carolina State football game here Saturday will be televised, but not within video range of the scene of action.

Maryland's department of athletics said yesterday there has been some misunderstanding about the telecast on the Dumont network. It will go as the "game of the week" feature to stations as far south as Jacksonville, Fla., as far north as Providence, R. I., and as far west as Kansas City, Mo.

But it won't be carried by the network's outlets in Baltimore and Washington.

50 centuries of this...

For more than 5,000 years men traveled in about the same way, at about the same speed.

50 years of this...

Only during the past half-century has all this been changed by the rapid development of the internal combustion engine.

In the amazing story of progress since 1900, Esso engineers have played a vital part. They have supplied asphalt for smooth highways. They have been prepared for every new motor design with the fuels required for increased power and economy... with the lubricants needed to protect engines turning at higher speeds.

THIS IS OIL PROGRESS WEEK... celebrated by your nearby Esso Dealer and the entire oil industry in recognition of the increasingly important role that petroleum products are playing in the development of better living standards everywhere. And nowhere is the progress of oil in serving the public better illustrated than at modern Esso Dealer stations that serve your every motoring need from Maine to Louisiana.

Players Petitioned Against It

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

The controversial plan of the Army Engineers to fill in nine holes of Washington's largest public golf course appears likely to be scrapped.

Six weeks ago the Engineers announced they would deposit 400,500 cubic yards of sand and dirt dredged from the Potomac River upon parts of the B and D golf courses at East Potomac Park. The work would be done at the request of the National Park Service, the Engineers said, in an attempt to raise the level of the low lying land.

The proposal immediately aroused opposition among public links golfers who maintained that they already have too little space in which to play. The golfers said that the project would ruin the largest public course in Washington for a period up to five years.

Yesterday it was learned from the Engineers that the plan would "either be abandoned completely or drastically curtailed" for lack of funds.

The Budget Bureau had cut the budget of the Interior Department drastically and the plan probably will be abandoned in favor of other "more essential" projects.

Public links golfers opposing the plan drew up a petition to be presented to Congress asking that the project be discontinued. The petition said:

"We submit that there is no need for the expenditure of any funds at this time for this purpose . . . The work will require manpower and machines that could be better used in the war effort than in destroying for many years to come the principal outlet for recreation in the downtown area.

"During the past five years $100,000 has been expended in improving the golf course that the Engineers now plan to destroy. We ask that new golfing facilities be provided for the public golfer before these courses are eliminated."

25 Boats Get Share

Southeaster Hits Bay Fishing But Early Anglers Connect

By Ralph Murdock

Murdock

FISHING OVER the weekend was somewhat handicapped by a strong southeaster which hit the bay about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. However, 25 party boats in the Solomon's Island, Island, just off Old Cedar Point Light House, got their share of fish when a mixed school of stripers and blues appeared two hours before the big blow.

While fishing on the Miss Shirley, one of Leon Langley's fishing fleet, with Bob Lusby and Art Brown, we picked up 58 rockfish and four blues.

The largest striper was a 4½-pounder. It was the first fish caught by our party. The balance averaged about a pound and a quarter.

Much as we hate to admit it—Lusby captured 40 of the entire catch on our boat. He was trying out a new lure which he was using for the first time.

The secret sample was finally destroyed by a tough little blue fish. So ended the "mystery lure of 1951"—and Bob's luck. The blue devil actually put him out of business.

TWENTY OTHER BOATS in the same area had excellent catches. The stripers were on the surface over three hours. Roy Minke of Cumberland, Md., fished with "Junior" Langley and nabbed 38 nice rock. His top fish was a 4-pounder.

Three brothers, Glen, Harry and Fred Shriver, all of Bethesda, Md., were all smiles when they docked with 19 better-than-average rockfish which ranged from 2 to 4 pounds. Capt. Bert Lamb said the anglers used white Lusby lures with yellow heads.

MARYLAND STATE Trooper Steward D. Gibson and Bob Goodall found that fishing with eels will attract the big fish.

At the stone rockpile off Sharp's Light, this pair of anglers boated a 12½-and 13-pound rockfish and half a bushel of pan-size stripers.

Chandler Calls Secret Meeting

CINCINNATI, Oct. 17 (AP).—Major league baseball club owners were asked by Commissioner A. B. Chandler today to meet with him here November 16, but the reason was not disclosed.

However, insofar as is known, there are two major problems known to be confronting the big boys of the game at this time—distribution of the World Series radio and television money, and possible abolishing or revision of the player bonus rule.

Some of the players began clamoring immediately when television and radio rights at the 1950 World Series were sold for $975,000. They wanted a cut of that money.

The demand was squelched by the commissioner at the time, but some of the players, through Freddy Hutchinson, Detroit, and Marty Marion, St. Louis, have kept it alive.

The meeting is set for the afternoon. On the same morning the annual draft will be held. Usually a top event in baseball's off season, it will get into only the outer edge of the spotlight.

National Stars Win Again, 9-4

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 17 (AP). The National League All-Stars posted six runs in the ninth tonight to defeat the American League Barnstormers, 9 to 4. The victory, credited to Larry Jansen, gave the Nats a 5-2 lead in the series.

Al Rosen's 3-run homer in the eighth tied it for the Americans, but the Nationals reached Mike Garcia for five hits and six runs in the top of the ninth to break up the game. Sam Jethroe hit a two-run homer for the Nats in the sixth, after starter Howie Polett hurled five innings of scoreless ball.

AT LAUREL

Dear Folks: Cochise, with 124 pounds, is topweight for Saturday's $15,000 added Washington Handicap. The Brandywine router is expected to go in the mile and a quarter event. Others looked upon as likely starters are: Double Brandy 118; Seward 116; Dart By 115; Pilaster 112 and Abstract 107. One-Hitter may go and gets the light assignment of 113. Apprentice Frank Petricari, injured at Bowie, has a fractured left wrist. Bob Considine, the horse, goes in the Maryland Futurity. With Laurel's post time at 1:30 p. m. many of us will be motoring here during the lunch hour for school children. Let's drive carefully. See you on the rail—Bill.

Rowland Rates Deacs With Irish, Spartans

MAGNOLIA BOY BLOSSOMS FOR GW—Dave Shiver, 185-pound junior from Magnolia, Ark., will be entrusted with making George Washington University's single wing attack roll at Wake Forest Saturday. A defensive end last season, Shiver has been shifted to blocking back

His Colonials Visit Wake Forest Saturday

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Bo Rowland, never one to underestimate his opponents, allows as how his George Washingtons are bumping into mighty tough competition at Wake Forest Saturday.

"Peahead Walker's boys belong in the same class with Notre Dame and Michigan State," says Bo with a straight face, and he offers this convincing argument.

"The Deacons beat William and Mary worse than Michigan State did, and they beat North Carolina by practically the same score as Notre Dame.

"Wake Forest routed W & M, 47-0, while Michigan State did the trick, by only 33-14. The Deacons defeated Carolina, 13-7, and the Irish did it, 14-7.

"Peahead's boys have one of the best defensive lines in the country. They've been scored on only twice all season, and rate second in the Nation in rushing defense and fifth in total defense.

"It's going to be tougher than ever for us because we use the single wing, and Walker's boys have already licked two single wing teams, W&M and North Carolina. They were tied by Boston College, a T-formation team, in their opener before they were ready and then whipped Richmond.

"Peahead knows that single wing well anyway because he coached it before he switched to the T two years ago," says Bob.

The Deacons, G. W. and Washington and Lee are currently tied for first place in the Southern Conference with 3-0 records, so the game at Wake Forest will be a sort of playoff for the lead. W&L will be playing Davidson Saturday.

Despite the seemingly overwhelming odds, Rowland isn't completely pessimistic. "We're in about our best physical shape. If Andy Davis doesn't show too much effect of his bouncing around Friday night against Virginia Tech, we'll be okay.

Caps Will Drop 3 This Week

Three of the 15 players now working out with the Washington Capitols will be pared from the squad late this week.

Coach Bones McKinney said yesterday that most of the players are closely bunched in their bids for the 12 berths and that he would make up his mind who stays and who goes after workouts today and Friday at the American University gym.

The Caps open their home schedule a week from Thursday in the second game of a Touchdown Club-sponsored doubleheader against the Baltimore Bullets at Uline Arena. The New York Knickerbockers and the Philadelphia Warriors meet in the opening game. Net proceeds from the games go to the Touchdown Club's welfare fund.

Turpin British Champ

LONDON, Oct. 17 (AP).—Randolph Turpin won the British middleweight championship tonight by knocking out defending titleholder Alber Finch in 1:02 of the fifth round of a scheduled 15-round bout.

Md. Futurity Tops Laurel Card Today

LAUREL, Oct. 17.—The Maryland Futurity—its twentieth edition—headlines tomorrow's midweek program at Laurel race course. An overnight field of seventeen, the largest in history, was named for the $7500 added 6-furlong sprint, confined as usual to 2-year-olds foaled in Maryland and the product of mares served in the State.

Since many of the youngsters have not been raced too extensively, it is difficult to name any standout in the field and just which of the many entrants will wind up favorite is hard to say.

W. L. Brann, who has sent out several winners of the Futurity in the past, including Challedon, will be represented by Challarian and Mystic, both shipped in from New York for the stake.

Other couplings in the race include Mrs. R. H. Heighe's Tangent and Sylvan Rock, E. T. Chewning's Occupy Miss and Mrs. C. A. Lyons' Penoc (both trained by F. A. Bonsal) and Alan T. Clarke's Senator Joe and Ala Mowlee.

Rounding out the field will be Edward A. Luzzie's Bald Hill Boy, W. S. Myer's Nerve, Dr. W. C. Ensor's Hocotia, Mrs. Janon Fisher's Brave Girl, C. E. Tuttle's Tenure, Joseph Tucci's Bob Considine, Mrs. C. E. Nelson's Winship, Mrs. S. M. Pistorio's Tuscany and Miss C. Walsh's Swingalick.

Tenure and Tuscany both of whom raced at Bowie and shaped up as stout candidates for the Futurity, seem certain of a good deal of backing, while Hocotia, Senator Joe and Bob Considine all have been winners and off previous efforts must be conceded a chance in this field.

The Federal Diary

Federal Employes Can Receive Payment For Accrued Leave

Federal employes who leave the Government service may be paid for their accumulated annual leave in a lump sum — so ruled Comptroller General Lindsay Warren yesterday.

Under the decision, it's possible for most employes to resign or retire before next June 30 and be paid in a lump sum for annual leave accumulated during this calendar year and the first six months of 1951.

The exception is those employes whose leave, accumulated this year, would put them over the legal maximum of leave that could be carried over to 1951. They can be paid for a maximum accumulation of 116 days of annual leave if they are separated from the Government by December 31 — 90 days carried over from 1949 and 26 days earned this year.

The decision was handed down by Warren in response to a question put to him by the Treasury Department on the administration of the congressional leave rider. The department didn't know whether to compel employes who either have left or will leave the Government to take their annual leave as they earn it or else forfeit it, or to pay them for their accrued leave in a lump sum when they are separated from the Federal service.

Warren explained that the rider is a restriction on the payment of 1950 annual leave unused at the close of business on June 30, 1951. "It actually does not become operative until after that date," he pointed out, "hence, any annual leave used or liquidated by a lump sum payment prior to such date is not affected thereby."

WOC's: The White House has sent Federal agencies a proposed policy on the hiring of WOC's in defense jobs.

WOC is the initials for persons who work for the Government "Without Compensation." They were formerly referred to as dollar-a-year persons.

In principle, the President is reported to be opposed to the appointment of WOC's to key defense jobs. He's said to have informed his cabinet, in fact, that he won't approve the appointment of anyone in a WOC operating job unless the Cabinet member involved certifies that the appointment is in the best interest of the Government.

Meantime, a dozen defense agencies have been sent a proposed WOC policy which says that WOC appointees shall be used in an advisory or consulting capacity only. Furthermore, that they aren't to be given operating responsibility or administrative authority.

There were upwards of 1000 dollar-a-year men in key Federal posts during World War II. They were paid their regular salaries and expenses by their private concerns that gave them leaves of absence. At that time, however, the President was chairman of the Senate War Investigating Committee and he was opposed to the dollar-a-year policy because he suspected some of them with looking out for the selfish interests of their private companies.

Several of the defense agencies have been negotiating with industrial people to take defense operating jobs on a WOC basis. Two Cabinet members, in fact, are said to have cleared several WOC appointments with the President.

SPACE: Offices of the agency to stabilize prices and wages are being set up temporarily on the 12th floor of the RFC building . . . The old Langston G-girl dormitories are being re-done to make them usuable for Federal offices. Defense workers will be placed in them . . . General Services has rejected suggestions that FCC be moved to another building. Both Post Office and Commerce are after FCC's present offices.

NOTES: Dr. Alexander R. Robertson has been appointed to the fire protection section of the Bureau of Standards . . . In answer to many questions, the higher Federal income withholding taxes must be paid on all Federal salaries received after that date. It makes no difference that the salaries were earned prior to October 1 . . . At the Census Bureau cash and awards for economy suggestions have been made to: Ralph T. Barnes, Emma M. Guess, John A. Jantz, Isabel M. Lichtenthal, Mary B. Lucas and Edward Young.

DP Who Lost Family at Dachau Reunited With Her Cousin Here

Joe Armstrong—The Washington Post

Mrs. Fannie Miller (left) embraces Mrs. Bertha Burstein

Forty-four years. A long time. Time to come to America, grow up, get married and raise a family in peace and security.

Or time to stay in Germany through two world wars, spend four years in a concentration camp and have your family killed in the gas chambers at Dachau.

Mrs. Fannie Miller, who came to the United States with her mother in 1906, yesterday met her cousin, Mrs. Bertha Burstein, who came to America two weeks ago as a displaced person. It was their first meeting since they played as children in a little town in Latvia.

Mrs. Miller translated as her cousin haltingly told of losing her husband, Jacob, and her 9-year-old daughter in the Dachau concentration camp. The Jewish family was in the camp four years. Mr. Burstein and the child were killed in November, 1944, just a few months before the camp was liberated by the American army.

Mrs. Burstein stayed in a displaced persons camp a year after she was freed, and then lived in Munich with her son, Max, who also survived the ordeal.

She arrived in New York September 30 and plans to make her home there with an uncle. After spending a week at her cousin's home, 7515 8th st. nw., she will visit relatives in Chicago and then return to New York, where her son is scheduled to join her.

Mrs. Miller and her husband, Jacob, a Washington wholesale grocer, met Mrs. Burstein yesterday at Union Station. They were armed with a picture to help identify her and they had no trouble, they said.

A reporter asked Mrs. Burstein what she liked most about America.

Ambrose Reindicted on Charge Of Operating Stamp Fraud

The District grand jury yesterday reindicted Harold F. Ambrose, former special assistant to the Postmaster General, on charges of operating a fraudulent $700,000 postage-stamp business.

The new indictment was returned after defense lawyers charged that the original true bill in the case was obtained after certain grand jury testimony in the case was divulged. Also, it was charged that there were numerous imperfections in the original bill.

Eliminating two of the 24 counts in the first indictment, the new bill charges 10 counts of mail fraud, three of larceny after trust, six of misapplication of postal funds and three of false pretenses.

His "investors," according to postal officials, lost $250,000 in the deals, by which Ambrose promised to arrange to sell commemorative issues of stamps to philatelists at about 50 percent over the cost. According to the charges, Ambrose agreed to split the profits with the investors.

They included New York gambler Joseph Doto, alias Joe Adonis, Albert Glickfield, former operator of an after-hours club here and Robert R. Rodenberg, former owner of the Baltimore Colts, according to the indictment.

This was one of 27 indictments returned by the District grand jury yesterday in District Court.

In another case, a 21-year-old Clemson College football-scholarship winner was charged with three housebreakings coupled with assaults with intent to rape.

He is Robert W. Hanrahan, of 4718 9th st. nw. According to police, Hanrahan admitted numerous other instances where he had broken into houses to force his attentions on women there.

He was captured after the screams of a 22-year-old woman attracted police after Hanrahan attempted to attack her on August 5, according to police.

Hanrahan then twice sought to ravish a 23-year-old woman, according to the indictment.

The youth, who police said dressed in women's clothes when he went on his adventures, was never successful in his attempts, the officers said.

Charged with second-degree murder was William Hightower, 23, of 1816 Swann st. nw. He is indicted for the fatal stabbing of John C. Staples, 33, of 1412 T st. nw., on September 11.

Eugene Maynard, 25, of 18 Ocean Green, sw., is charged in the indictment with carnal knowledge in ravishing a 14-year-old girl September 26 in an automobile parked along Blue Plains dr. sw.

Four persons were charged with numbers lottery operations and possession of numbers slips. They are Henry A. Hicks, 54, of 4914 Ames st. ne., Nelson W. Jackson, jr., 26, of 1330 G st. ne., William D. Bailor, 36, of 817 2d st. sw., and Francis E. Gilbert, 44, of 1304 4th st. nw.

Gas Light Co. May Protest Rate Hike Bid

Washington Gas Light company attorneys may take the stand late today before the Federal Power Commission to protest the Atlantic Seaboard Co. appeal for higher wholesale gas rates.

Atlantic Seaboard supplies the Washington Gas Light company. The local firm has declared the transmission company's demands will force another increase in consumer rates here.

Yesterday Government attorneys cross-examined Robert J. Ryder, vice president of Atlantic Seaboard, on the technical details of the requested rate schedules.

The hearing is expected to continue throughout the week.

Trucker Reports Theft by Soldiers

A Baltimore truck driver was robbed of $121 by two hitchhiking soldiers on Route 1 near Muirkirk yesterday morning, Prince Georges County police reported.

The driver, Michael Marciano, told police the soldiers, whom he had picked up earlier, forced him to the side of the road at gunpoint and robbed him of the money. He said he was forced to lie on the floor of the truck's cab while the youths fled. He told police he believed the pair left the scene in a black sedan that had been following the truck. Several soldiers were in the automobile, he said.

Laborer in Wild Gun Fight With Police Is Judged Insane

William H. Proctor, 38-year-old Washington laborer who fought an hour-long gun battle with Virginia State Police Monday night at their Groveton substation, was judged insane yesterday by an Alexandria lunacy commission.

Being a resident of the District, Proctor was sent to Gallinger Hospital directly from Alexandria Hospital, where he was first treated for gunshot wounds suffered in the fight.

Proctor, who began the gun battle shortly after being arrested for trying to throw himself in the path of passing automobiles, was still in a state of excitement as the commission members tried to examine him yesterday at Alexandria Hospital, it was reported. He was handcuffed to his bed.

Commission members who committed him were Presiding Judge Harry F. Kennedy, Dr. C. E. Arnette and Dr. John E. Roberts. Proctor has been charged with two counts of assault with attempt to kill.

State police were still unable to enter the second floor of their substation yesterday because of fumes remaining from tear gas bombs they used to force Proctor down on Monday night.

Under detention after his arrest, Proctor ran upstairs and started firing two police .38 caliber revolvers. After a battle which neighbors described as being just like a Western movie, Proctor came downstairs and was downed by a blast from a riot gun.

He was treated for minor wounds, having received two pellets in the stomach. A third pellet grazed his head and a fourth grazed a leg, troopers said.

Civil Defense Mutual Aid Plan Studied

District Officials Agree With Area Leaders on Need For Cooperation

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

Washington area officials got together yesterday and agreed they should get together on civil defense planning.

Held at the District Building, the first meeting of District, Maryland and Virginia officials on mutual aid planning brought unanimous agreement on a general policy statement that recognized the need of close teamwork between Washington and surrounding areas.

The statement specifically did not bind any community to action or expense. And it must be approved by local governing bodies before it has any standing. But the meeting was a start at areawide planning and led to the calling of a lower echelon meeting November 10 where officials hope to get down to particulars.

Young Statement Released

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District Engineer Commissioner, released the statement approved by the 44 persons at the meeting. It made these points:

1. Each locality should develop its own plan. Special problems will require variations from one community to another. But the plans should be as similar as possible and fitted together so as to provide for coordinated mutual aid in event of disaster.

2. In preparing its plan each community should assume it may need aid or may be asked to help another stricken area.

3. Consideration must be given to the "elimination of any needless legal or material barriers to the fullest possible cooperation . . ." Young said it was the general feeling that Washington, Maryland and Virginia must enter into a legal compact to work out some problems.

4. To exchange ideas and keep planning moving along parallel lines, area civil defense directors should meet regularly.

At National Guard Armory

Acting District Civil Defense Director John E. Fondahl called the November 10 meeting at the District National Guard Armory.

He said persons attending the meeting will include: Gen. Jacob L. Devers, head of the Northern Virginia Regional Defense Council; Lt. Col. D. G. McIntosh, civil defense director for the State of Maryland as well as regional director for nearby Maryland counties; Guy N. Church, Fairfax County, civil defense director; and Edward L. Foster, Montgomery County civil defense director. All attended yesterday's meeting.

General Young said a compact between the District and the two States would have to be a matter for discussion by the District Commissioners and the governors.

Question of whether one civil defense director should be named for the entire Washington area was discussed and left as a subject for further discussion, Young said. It might be a matter to bring up at a meeting of commissioners and governors, he added.

Others present at yesterday's meeting were Joseph H. Wyse, Virginia State civil defense coordinator; spokesmen for the National Security Resources Board and the Military District of Washington; governing and civil defense officials from Alexandria, Falls Church, Arlington County and Fairfax County in Virginia, and from the counties of Montgomery, Prince Georges, Calvert and St. Mary's in Maryland.

New 14th Precinct Station-House Dedication Today

The new fourteenth Precinct stationhouse at 42d st. and Benning rd. ne., is to be dedicated at noon today in ceremonies to be attended by the District Commissioners, high police officials and precinct captains.

The station goes into operation at 8 a. m. today and will be manned by Capt. Paul Barnes and a squad of 70 policemen.

Maj. Robert Barrett, Superintendent of Police, said yesterday the new station is one of the "most up-to-date in the country." He particularly praised the new sanitation methods for individual cells which are in the new building. He said a large room on the second floor is being set aside for use by the police civil defense setup.

Holds 'Rule' Meeting

The Central Suffrage Conference, Inc., board of trustees will hold a special meeting to consider the conference home rule campaign tonight at 8 p. m. in the All Souls' Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw.

Special attention will be given to the necessity of obtaining the 12 additional signatures needed on the petition to permit the House of Representatives to vote on the Kefauver home rule bill, Culver B. Chamberlain, president of the conference, announced yesterday.

Randy, 6, Taken From School 'Too Far' Away; First Grade Lacking in One Nearer Home

By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

Randy Hawkins in front of the Ludlow School, where there's no first grade for him

From the corner of his street, 6-year-old Randy Hawkins can view the Ludlow Elementary Shcool a half block away.

But the Ludlow at 6th and G sts. ne. has no first grade.

While other children his age go to school Randy plays with his toys or thumbs through picture books.

Randy spent five days in school this September. Then his father, Randolph Hawkins, 629 Morris pl. ne., removed him from the Peabody School.

Hawkins took the boy from class as a protest against the seven blocks that the boy had to walk to and from Peabody, the two avenues—Massachusetts and Maryland—that he had to cross, and the two flights of steep steps he had to climb in the 71-year-old Peabody building.

Hawkins said it was too much to expect of a 6-year-old child, particularly when the Ludlow School is just around the corner. He said that after five days his normally healthy child suffered from exhaustion.

Hawkins now is sending a petition through the neighborhood calling for a first grade at Ludlow. He threatens to sue the school board unless one is established.

For a school system that generally deals with overcrowded conditions the problem is a new one.

School officials say there aren't enough children in the area to justify a first grade at Ludlow. Shortage of elementary teachers has forced them to consolidate first grades at Peabody, 5th and C sts. ne., where there are 60 students in two sections and at Blair, 6th and I sts. ne., where there are 75 in two classes.

They point out that enrollment at Ludlow has dropped in three years from 220 to 126 students. They don't know how much longer they can keep the school open. If enrollment continues to drop it may be closed next year.

Meanwhile, they say, there is nothing they can do about Randy. The compulsory school law applies to 7-year-olds.

McNayr Job Endangered, Group Told

A Republican candidate for the Montgomery County Council last night charged Democrats would fire County Manager Irving G. McNayr and County Attorney David MacDonald if they are elected to office in November.

The charges were made at a meeting of the Woodside Park Civic Association in Grace Episcopal Church, Silver Spring, and brought immediate retort from one of the Democratic candidates, Mrs. Stella Werner.

"It would be a very foolish thing," she said, "for whoever is elected, particularly the Democrats, to fire McNayr without giving him a chance." She said McNayr had been "inexperienced" when he took office, but that he now was doing a "good job." She also said the Democrats did not intend to fire other present office holders.

The charges against the Democratic candidates were leveled by Harold Hammond, now a county councilman by appointment and Republican candidate for election.

Hammond also said that it was "public talk" that the Democrats secretly have elected LaMar Kelly, jr., Democratic mayor of Rockville, and a council candidate, as president of the council should they sweep into office.

This charge also was denied by the Democratic office-seekers.

Hammond and Mrs. Werner also disagreed on future zoning policies for the county. Hammond contended the Republicans would agree to keep business district and apartment developments down to assure a well-balanced community. He announced himself as against "ribbon" developments and spot zonings.

Mrs. Werner said that zoning involves "judicial experience" and told Hammond, "You can't predetermine decisions before you hear a case."

Robert T. Snure, another Democratic candidate, called the county's present zoning laws "totally inadequate to meet land requirements" in the county, and equally inadequate to provide protection for property owners.

Dewitt Hyde, Republican candidate for the Maryland State Senate, charged Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., had fought against and defeated attempts to get home rule legislation for Montgomery County.

Dr. Hutchinson Named

Dr. J. Raymond B. Hutchinson of 3157 N. 19th st., Arlington, has been appointed chairman of the 1950 Christmas Seal campaign of the Arlington Tuberculosis Association. Dr. Hutchinson, a physician, will head the association's thirty-third annual appeal for funds to support its year-round program of tuberculosis prevention and control.

$50,000 Sought

Cathedral Fund Reaches $11,495 Total

The first report luncheon of the Washington Cathedral building and maintenance fund showed yesterday collection of $11,495 toward a local goal of $50,000.

A. Lloyd Symington, general chairman, said that 158 gifts had been received, totaling 22.6 percent of the goal. The figure lags slightly behind last year's total at this time, he added.

The Right Rev. Everett H. Jones, Episcopal Bishop of West Texas, addressed the meeting, which was held in Barker Hall at the YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw.

The local campaign will end with a luncheon on November 9, and is part of a national effort to raise $500,000 to sustain the Cathedral.

Pvt. John M. Wilson, first vice president; Sergt. Charles R. Wright, recording secretary; Pvt. Edgar S. Waller, treasurer; and Sergt. Samuel W. Stickley, financial secretary, were renominated without opposition.

Others nominated were Pvt. Frances McCall and Sergt. Alfred Capasso, Park Police, second vice president; Pvt. Mary C. Goggins, corresponding secretary; Sergt. Sidney F. Malone, board of trustees; and Pvt. Hubert Taylor, legislative committee.

Jeep Driver Badly Hurt in 3-Way Crash

George Sams, 33 of 1708 A st. se., received a skull fracture and severe body cuts, when the jeep he was driving was in collision with a street car and another auto at Wisconsin ave. and Davenport st. nw. at 11:30 a. m. yesterday.

Sams was making a left turn into Davenport st., police said, when his jeep was struck in the rear by the street car. An auto operated by George W. Lyon, 66 of 8607 Lancaster dr., Bethesda, coming in the opposite direction, hit the front of the jeep. Sams was in serious condition last night at Emergency Hospital. Damage to the jeep was estimated at $400.

Pleecie S. Dalton, 62 of 524 N. Jackson st., Arlington, whom police said was the operator of the streetcar, was charged with colliding.

A Washington attorney was badly battered about the face and head last night when his auto went out of control in the 6800 block of Oregon st. nw.

John Walker Cross, 48, who lives at 2721 Daniel rd., Chevy Chase, Md., and has offices at 1625 K st. nw., was driving alone, police said, when his car swerved across the street, bumped a parked auto, went over a slight embankment.

Cross was admitted to Emergency Hospital with head injuries, a possible fracture jaw, and mouth cuts. His condition was called serious.

Tolbert Lacy, 60, of 3915 S. 9th st., Arlington, was treated for head injuries and Maryland Bateman, 35, of 2816 13th st. nw., was treated for shock at Emergency Hospital yesterday after an accident at 7:55 a. m. involving a National Capital Parks truck and an automobile.

The vehicles collided at Nebraska and Nevada aves. nw., the truck overturning. The car was driven by Alfred R. Leuders, 25, of 4 E. Irving st., Chevy Chase, Md.

Bateman was the driver of the Parks truck in which Lacy was riding, police said.

Policeman Sired Illegitimate Child, Appeals Court Affirms

The Municipal Court of Appeals yesterday upheld a Juvenile Court jury verdict that declared a former policeman to be the father of an illegitimate child.

The father is Albert S. Monday, who resigned early this year, after serving for seven years in No. 10 precinct and in the office of the hack inspector.

Monday, who formerly lived in the 400 block of Irving st. ne., has subsequently left the city, attacked the verdict because the unwed mother was allowed to testify that she became pregnant in the latter part of March, 1949. This testimony was unsupported by competent medical testimony, Monday appealed.

The child was born in November 1949, the opinion said, and medical testimony was not required. "Courts may take judicial notice that the period of human gestation is 280 days," the court said.

School Board Plans Study Of Crowded Negro Classes

Corning to Report On Vacant Rooms With View to Aiding Congested Building

The District Board of Education will study the utilization of elementary school buildings in northeast Washington today in an effort to prevent part-time classes at several Negro schools.

Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning is scheduled to report to the board on vacant rooms and class sizes in both the white and Negro schools.

Board committees will hold sessions beginning at 2:50 p. m. at the Franklin administration building, 13th and K sts. nw. The full board will meet at 3:30 p. m.

Board members asked Corning to prepare the report with a view to transferring one of the white buildings now used at below capacity to house the overflow of Negro students. Schools needing relief are the Slowe, 14th and Jackson sts. ne., where as many as 50 students are housed in a classroom; Hayes, 5th and K sts. ne., which has an enrollment of 353 and a capacity of 288, and the Lovejoy, 12th and D sts. ne., which has 942 students in a building designed for 720.

The board also will consider a "policy" resolution prepared by a special committee interpreting the District's segregated school law to mean that mixed groups of whites and Negroes can not appear in schools during school hours. The board will take up a motion indorsing the action of school officials in banning from the stage of Anacostia High School a mixed group of entertainers from the Sesquicentennial play "Faith of Our Fathers."

Board members are scheduled to discuss the fate of the Central High School cornerstone which was removed from the building at the request of the Central High School Alumni Association after the building was transferred to use by Negro students. Board members have criticized Dr. Corning for removing the stone without board sanction.

Prince Georges Heads Study Tax Queries

Four questions concerning Prince Georges tax procedures, posed by a civic leader, were taken under advisement yesterday by the county's commissioners.

The questions were contained in a letter to the county heads from William R. Turner, former executive secretary of the Citizens Committee for Better Government.

Turner asked: (1) If the commissioners knew that the $4,022,509.81 budget appropriation in April, 1949, represented only a portion of the county's total income for the year and that there was an $800,000 surplus in the general fund; (2) why, if they did know this, they failed to inform the public fully; (3) how the commissioners determined that the taxpayers could not stand a tax increase to support better schools, and (4) if they think it more important that the county be recognized as having a low tax rate than as having good schools?

Turner recently accused the commissioners of failing to comply with State laws requiring publication of detailed annual reports of expenditures.

Commission President Harry W. McNamee said the questions would have to be studied before answers could be given.

Democratic Rally Friday

All Prince Georges County Democratic candidates are scheduled to attend a rally sponsored by the County Democratic Club Friday at 8 p. m. at the I. C. E. Club, 5119 Suitland rd., Morningside. New Democratic registrants are particularly invited to meet the candidates.

Larger Jail Urged For Prince Georges

Court Makes Tour

Alexandria Annexation Case Begun

The special three-judge court assigned to hear Alexandria's suit for annexation of a piece of Fairfax County launched the case yesterday by climbing into a bus and looking over some of the disputed area.

Lawyers in the case and a group of interested citizens went along on the trip, which lasted from about 11 a. m. to 4 p. m.

It was Alexandria's tour yesterday. City Planning Engineer Philip Hall directed the trip into the area near the present boundaries to support the city's claim that it needs 7½ square miles of Fairfax territory for its expanding industries, commercial establishments and residences.

Today the county will direct the same group to other sections of the annexable territory. The second tour is expected to take up most of the day.

In earlier formalities, petitions were presented carrying about 210 names of residents of Pine Crest and Lincolnia Heights, who protested the annexation of any land west of Shirley hwy.

The petitions said 313 of the 420 students of the Franconia Elementary School, which is within the area proposed for annexation, live outside that area.

Another group which asked to be a party to the suit included a half dozen individuals and firms owning property west of Shirley hwy., who are in favor of the annexation. About 30 residents of Dowden ter., in the annexable area, also petitioned in favor, while about 30 others in Dowden ter. whose homes are not within the disputed area asked to be included in the annexation.

About 11,000 persons live in the area wanted by Alexandria.

Hearing the case are Judges Paul E. Brown of Fairfax, Walter T. McCarthy of Arlington and Jeff Walter of Accomac.

The Prince Georges County Grand Jury yesterday recommended enlarging the county jail, noting at the same time a "marked decrease in crime" in the county.

The jury submitted its formal report to Judge Charles C. Marbury in Circuit Court at the conclusion of a 12-day session.

During its investigation, the jury considered 166 criminal cases and returned 115 indictments.

In reaching its conclusion that "there has been a marked decrease in crime in ratio to the increase in population" the jury reported it examined a number of witnesses and inspected other grand jury reports for the past ten years.

It concluded that general conditions in the country are "very satisfactory," and that police and other law enforcement officials "appear to be doing excellent work."

The condition of county buildings and facilities also "appeared to be very satisfactory," it said.

However, the jurors recommended "that serious consideration by the proper authorities be given to the question of enlarging the county jail at Marlboro, as present facilities for detention of prisoners there appear to be somewhat inadequate."

The jury concurred with its predecessor which reported last April that the county government is "manned by conscientious and hard-working personnel who are sincerely interested in their work and the public welfare."

140 Newsmen Are Guests at Reception Here

About 140 newspaper editors and publishers from North and South America last night attended a reception in their honor given by Assistant Secretary of State for American Affairs Edward G. Miller, jr., at the Mayflower Hotel.

Son of Former Sen. Reynolds Dies in Crash

Robert R. Reynolds, jr., 37-year-old son of former Senator Reynolds of North Carolina, died yesterday in an Erwin, Tenn., hospital of injuries suffered in an automobile accident Saturday.

He lived at 3618 N. Albermarle st., Arlington, Va., and has been a Justice Department attorney since 1939.

Reynolds' chest was crushed when his station wagon plunged from a highway 10 miles south of Erwin. Police said Mr. Reynolds apparently fell asleep at the wheel while en route from Washington to visit an aunt in Johnson City, Tenn.

Mr. Reynolds' wife, the former Miss Mary Margaret McKeehan of Asheville, N. C., and his father were at his bedside, the Associated Press reported.

Young Reynolds was a graduate of the University of North Carolina Law School. He did postgraduate work at Harvard and practiced law in Asheville, N. C., until 1939 when he joined the antitrust division of Justice Department. He was a member of the bar of North Carolina and the District of Columbia.

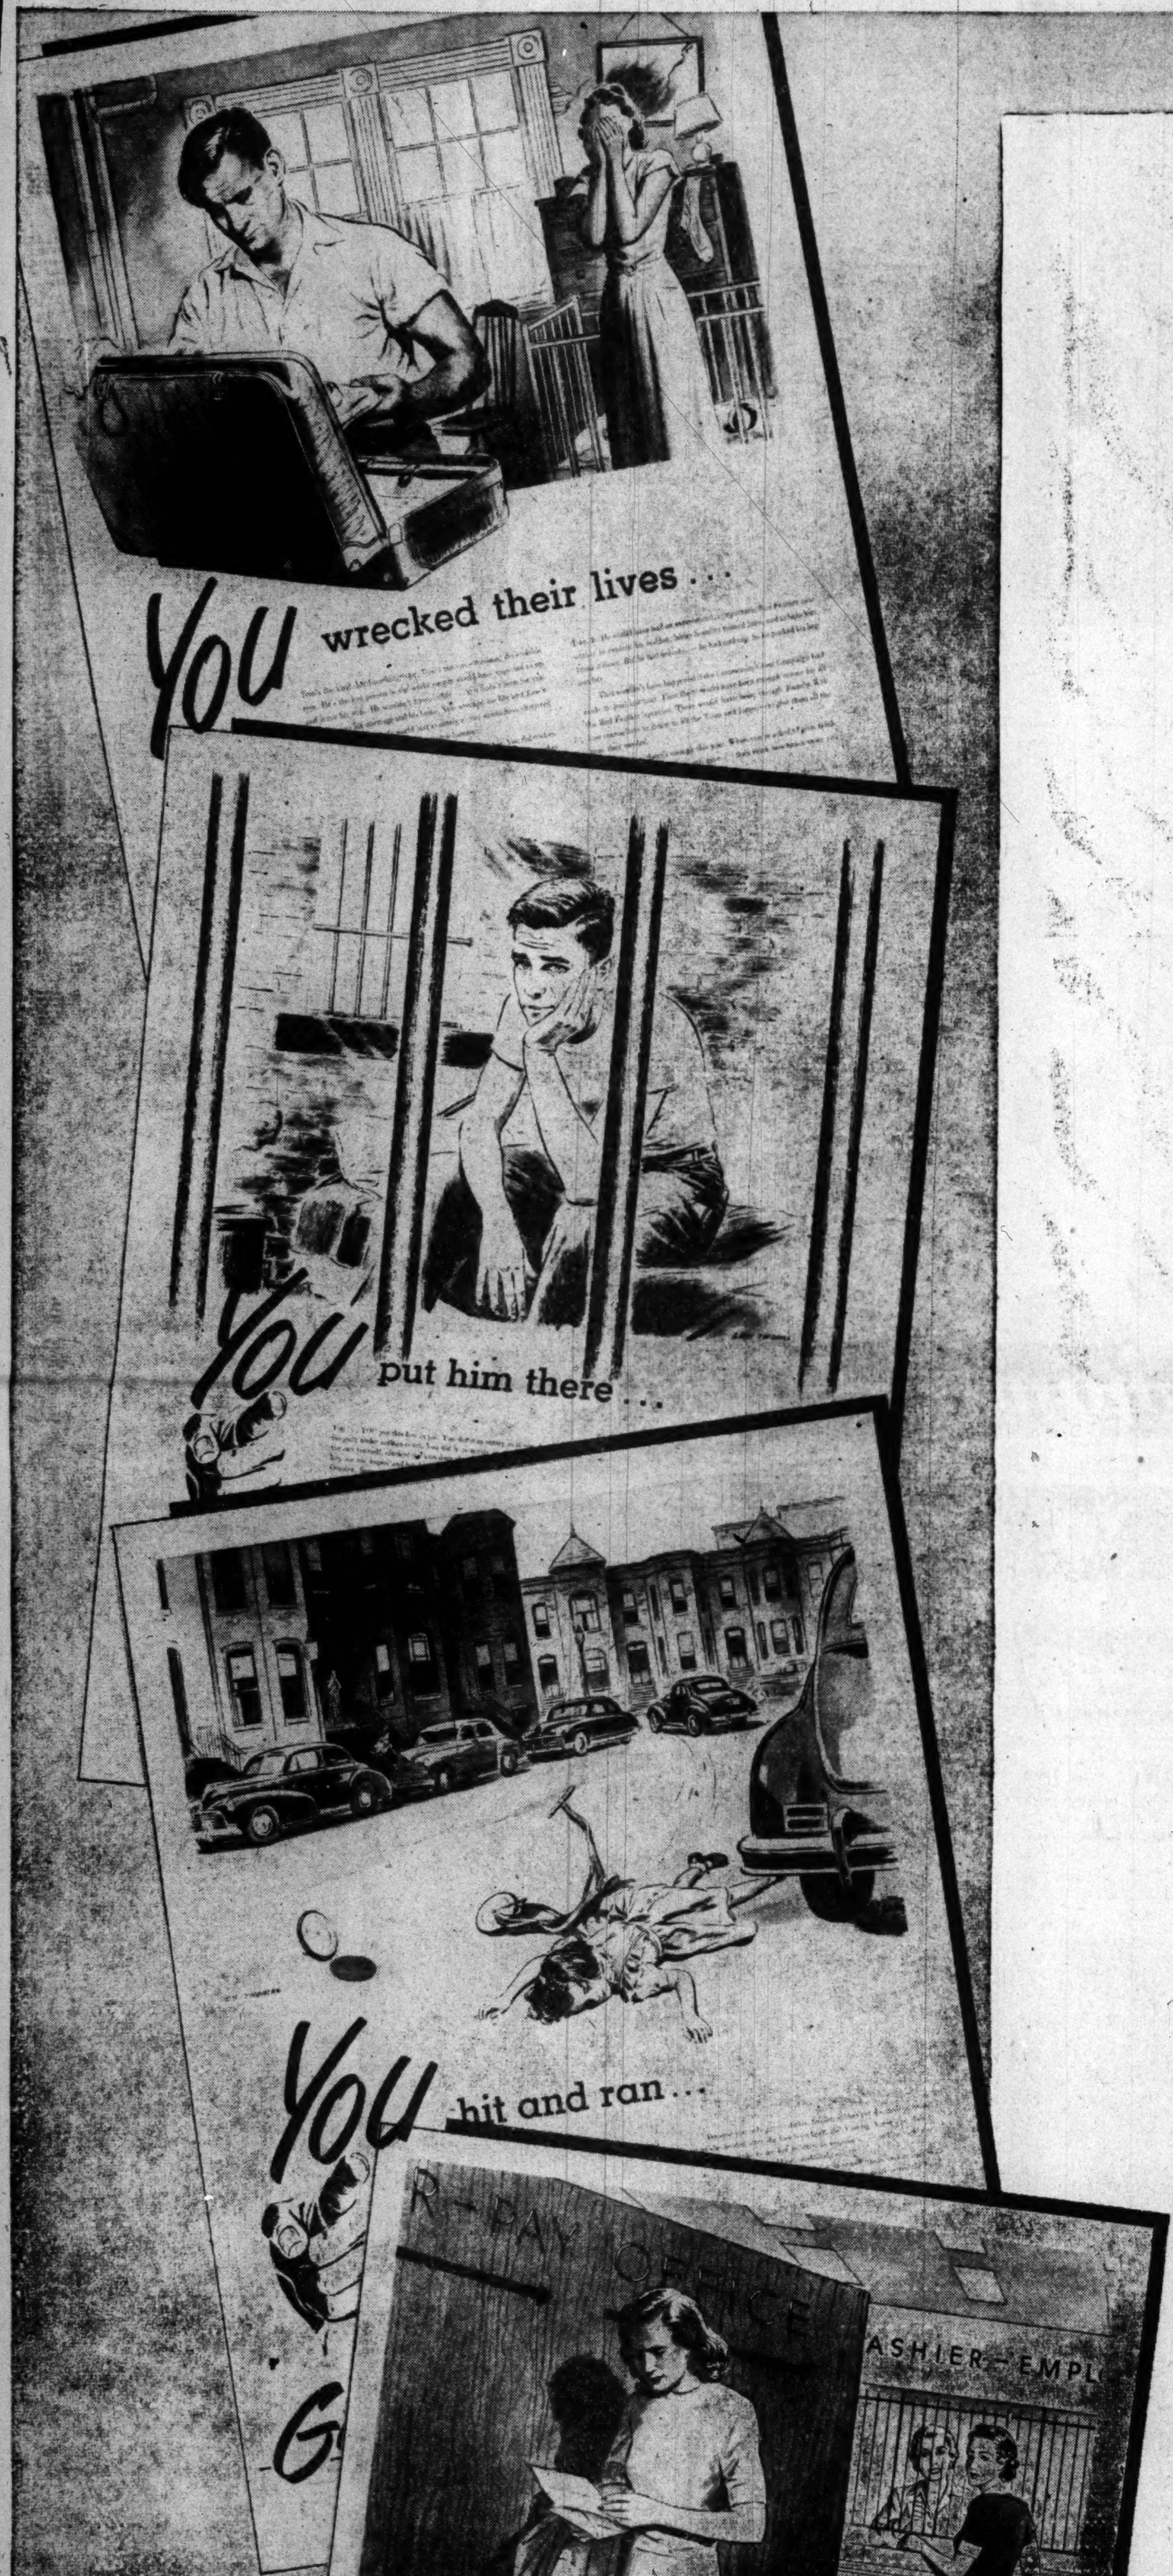
ONE OF THE LARGEST UNDERTAKERS IN THE WORLD



You wrecked their lives...
You put him there...
You hit and ran...
PAY OFFICE
CASHIER—EMPL
You got her fired...

I couldn't sleep a wink all night!

"Those Community Chest ads are frightful," exclaimed the lady on the other end of the telephone wire. "I couldn't sleep after I read them. Must you be so brutally frank?"

And later . . .

"That finger shouldn't be pointing at me!" a man protested. "I gave last year!"

We didn't mean to frighten anyone . . . or hurt anyone's feelings. We know thousands of persons give generously through the Community Chest . . . and we thank them on behalf of the 225,000 people who were helped last year.

If we were "brutally frank," it was because tragedy is frank and brutal . . . and 25,000 individual tragedies are 25,000 times more so.

Unfortunately, you see, 25,000 additional people asked for help last year, but had to be turned down . . . because the community fell short of the goal necessary for adequate Red Feather services.

What happened to them? What will happen to them? . . . the sick ones . . . the ones whose homes and families are slipping from their grasp . . . the kids playing in the dangerous streets . . . the ones who have lost their jobs . . . the people temporarily down on their luck, working and hoping for a break . . . the babies and the old folks who can't make it by themselves?

We wanted to tell you their stories, because we were sure . . . once you knew . . . that you would help out.

Your contribution through the Community Chest can help them . . . as it already has benefited the 225,000 people who annually depend on Red Feather assistance.

If you have never given . . . please give.
If you gave a little . . . please try to give a lot.
If you gave a lot, ask yourself . . . "Can I give more?"

BECAUSE...IT IS UP TO YOU!!!
WHAT YOU CAN GIVE MAKES THE DIFFERENCE!!!

The Curtain Still Bars U. S. Pictures

By Richard L. Coe

WITH TRADE FEELERS nudging from Russia to many American import-export businesses in the past month, what's the score about sending American movies to the Soviet?

"There's not a chance of that at this time," Eric Johnston said yesterday.

Some time ago, the spokesman of the American motion picture industry came back from Moscow with a trade deal by which Russia was to buy American pictures for distribution within the Soviet. This has never been carried out.

"The agreement," Johnston explains, "provided that the Russians might cut our films but that they could not add anything either to the pictures or to the soundtrack. This feature was to be policed through the Soviet Foreign Office by our embassy in Moscow.

"The Russians were mainly interested at the time in largely escapist fare, 'Ali Baba and the 40 Thieves,' comedies and musicals, though 'Madame Curie' also was on their list.

"However, getting visas for property qualified motion picture personnel and getting the technical papers necessary for importation became totally bogged down at the Soviet end. The result was that no American pictures went to the Soviet under that widely publicized agreement."

A dogged traveler about a globe which consistently is buying more and more Hollywood product, Johnston has made several missions to Moscow and his reports on our movies in the Russian capital are interesting.

"It's the practice of the American Embassy to show some of the latest of our pictures each Sunday in Spasso House. These events are looked forward to with great interest by the international set, which attends by invitation. A few years ago, top-ranking Soviet officials always turned up when invited, in fact even angled for invitations. With the step-up of the cold war, these persons stopped attending."

From a source other than Mr. Johnston, I learn that the Soviets are once more showing an interest in those Sunday night showings.

Johnston also is familiar with how welcome our films are in such countries behind the Iron Curtain as Poland, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

"It's interesting," he points out, "that some of the very pictures which we might fear would have an adverse effect about our country turn out to have just the opposite. The scene in 'No Way Out' wherein a policeman is beating a civilian in the street doesn't strike police-state eyes as the least unusual; to them, the fascinating thing is the fine pair of shoes the civilian is seen wearing as he topples to the ground. And in 'Grapes of Wrath,' the treatment of civilians by police causes no comment; what does is the fact that when the men are let out of the prison camp they drive off in automobiles.

"Then there was the time some Polish workers who'd broken a production record were told their reward would be the showing of an American movie, 'Random Harvest.' When the men got settled in the Warsaw theater, they were shown a very good Soviet film, 'Red Square.' But they didn't want this and they caused such a riot, which wound up by them standing with their backs to the screen, that 'Random Harvest' finally was unspooled for them."

Just getting into his sixth year as president of the Motion Picture Association of America, 55-year-old Johnston doesn't begin to look his age, though this native Washingtonian's photogenic features certainly reveal more of the cares of office than they did a year ago. He sees to it he spends at least two months a year in his voting residence, Spokane, the other in Washington. Gives him, he says, what you don't get in Washington, New York or Hollywood: the feel of the people.

NORTHERN VIRGINIA'S Mental Hygiene Society will start its first meeting tonight with a showing of "The Quiet One," to be followed by a panel discussion on juvenile delinquency . . . Albert Deutsch, author of "Our Rejected Children," Psychiatrist Julius Schreiber and Judge Hugh Reid will be on the board for this first in a series at the Kate Waller Barrett School, 4400 North Henderson, rd., Arlington.

LILLIAN GISH, who seems to have as many old friends in Washington as Mrs. Roosevelt, regrets she's having to turn down all sorts of visits and parties, "which I know I'd have enjoyed." . . . But "The Curious Savage" is a new part for the popular lady and she's having to put business before pleasure . . . "I do hope they'll all ask me next time," murmers Miss Gish, who, by the way, has a matinee today.

SHADDAAAAP: Douglas Fairbanks, jr., usually a gentleman, has his reasons for silencing Glynis Johns in "State Secret." The new arrival at the Playhouse is a chiller about European skullduggery from the creators of "Night Train" and "The Lady Vanishes"

Cut in Park Service Budget Gives $1.5 Million For Immediate Work on D. C.-Baltimore Road

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

The Interior Department yesterday announced a $3,570,000 cut in the 1951 National Park Service budget, permitting immediate release of 1.5 million dollars for work on the southern end of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway.

Secretary Oscar L. Chapman announced the Park Service reduction as part of an over-all departmental cut of $73,012,000 to comply with Budget Bureau orders to reduce nondefense appropriations.

The urgency of completing the new parkway and its effect on the Washington defense picture was pointed up by the Budget Bureau's release of the 1.5 million dollars in Federal funds for construction up to June 30 of the 18-mile strip from Jessup, Md., on the northern edge of Fort Meade, to the District.

The 13-mile strip between Fort Meade and Baltimore is being constructed by the State of Maryland with Federal assistance.

The National Park Service and Bureau of Public Roads have been given further authority to enter into contracts for spending 1.5 million dollars more after June 30. A total of three million dollars was originally sought for the parkway in the supplemental appropriations bill but was eliminated by Congress.

By canceling the following parkway construction projects, the department was able to save three million dollars, from which the 1.5 million parkway appropriation will be taken:

Blue Ridge Parkway in Virginia and North Carollina, $944,000; Natchez Trace Parkway in Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, $1,408,800; Colonial Parkway in Virginia, $480,000, and Foothills Parkway in Tennessee, $166,800.

Proceeding with construction plans, the Bureau of Public Roads said it will accept bids November 17 to bridge the Little Patuxent River near the entrance to Fort Meade and the Big Patuxent River at the Prince Georges-Anne Arundel County line. Each project, it is estimated, will cost $400,000.

H. J. Spelman, chief engineer consultant, said the bureau expects to edvertise shortly for bids to grade the three-and-a-half miles from Laurel-Fort Meade rd. to the Big Patuxent.

The Interior Department's budget cut in road and trail construction knocks out $427,800 requested to extend the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway through the Zoo into 16th st. nw.

Frank T. Gartside, acting superintendent of National Capital Parks said the appropration would have permitted a "good start" on a two-lane divided highway giving ready access to Constitution and Virginia aves. from 16th st.

Other projects eliminated in the NCP budget cut include the following:

Colonial National Historical Park, Va., pump house and sewage disposal plant, $9900; Richmond National Battlefield Park, Va., utility building, $10,600, and Shenandoah, Va., firehouse and headquarters, $13,100.

A reduction of $150,000 in management and protection funds of the service includes $40,750 for the Region 1 headquarters at Richmond, Va.

Krum Pledges 'Rule' Fight

Tyrrell Krum, Republican candidate for Congress from Virginia's Eighth District, last night told the District League of Republican Women he will "fight" for Washington home rule, if he is elected.

Speaking at a dinner meeting at the Wardman Park he reminded his audience that his opponent, Representative Howard W. Smith (D.), "has opposed local suffrage at every turn."

Smith was one of the Southern Democratic members of the House District Committee which pigeonholed the Senate-passed Kefauver home rule bill over a year ago.

Krum urged District Republicans to join his campaign. "If elected I shall first seek Smith's seat on the House District Committee. Then I will work for local suffrage, and probably will introduce a home rule measure."

The Republican aspirant charged that "half the residents of northern Virginia who earn their living in the District, now do not have any real representation from Smith."

Krum also promised to launch an extensive tax study here "to see if the sales tax which Smith came out for and sponsored, is really necessary."

In the receiving line with Krum were: Mrs. Carroll Kearns, president of the District League of Republican Women; Mrs. Edward G. Rohrbough, chairman of the study groups of the District League; Miss Ruth Brown, Miss Roy James and Miss Mildred Reeves, all office holders in the league.

Krum and Smith will appear on the same platform for the first time this year at a 7 p. m. Thursday meeting of the Arlington League of Women Voters in the Arlington Unitarian Church.

Center League to Meet

The Center League, a young adult group, will hold an open meeting at the Jewish Community Center tonight at 8:30. Miss Edith Laporte will speak on her recent trip to Israel.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Oct. 17 (AP).—Soybean futures sold more than 2 cents a bushel higher today on buying influenced by continued light receipts in the midst of the harvest season.

The comparatively meager arrivals indicate to traders that farmers are storing all of their soybeans possible on their farms this year. Last year they sold at low prices at harvest time, then saw prices climb considerably.

Wheat held about steady most of the session, but weakened near the close. Corn and oats showed little change.

Wheat closed ⅛ to ⅞ lower, corn unchanged to ¼ off, oats ¼ higher to ¼ lower, rye ⅛ to ⅜ higher, soybeans 2 to 2¾ cents higher, and lard 17 to 33 cents 100 pounds higher.

C. & S. Bank Ups Wilson, Three Others

By S. Oliver Goodman

Ernest R. Wilson yesterday was elevated to vice president of the Bank of Commerce & Savings, President Thomas J. Groom announced.

Wilson

He will retain duties as cashier. A past chairman of the Auditors Section of the D. C. Bankers Association, Wilson has been associated with the bank 14 years.

Three other promotions also were announced.

T. E. Elgin, assistant cashier, was made an assistant vice president at the main office. He has been associated with the bank since 1946 and is a past chairman of the Safe Deposit Section of the bankers association.

Winfield S. Dampier, veteran of nearly 17 years with the bank and who is manager of the institution's consumer credit department, was advanced to assistant cashier.

Lawrence I. Melton, veteran of 13 years and a member of the credit department, was promoted to an assistant cashier.

ELECTED MEMBER: Edward F. Schultz, resident manager of J. H. Drass & Co., Inc., 1406 G st. nw., yesterday was elected a member of the Washington Stock Exchange. The Drass firm, with home offices in Sunbury, Pa., opened a branch here on August 15. Schultz, a native of Washington, has been in the investment business since 1929, except for four years in the Marines.

WHO'S NEWS: Frank B. Bush of Silver Spring, has been elected president of the Maryland Consumer Finance Association, an organization of 138 small loan companies. Thomas A. Hulfish 2d of Mount Rainier was elected vice president . . . Tudor Whiton, chairman of the local Auditors Section, will head a local delegation which will attend the annual convention of the National Association of Bank Auditors and Comptrollers in Kansas City, October 23-26 . . . Harold K. Beck has been appointed commercial vice president of Worthington Pump & Machinery Corp., in addition to his present post as manager of the Washington office . . . Arthur E. Focke has been appointed head of the chemistry and metallurgy department of Fairchild Engine & Airplane Corp.'s nuclear energy for propulsion of aircraft project.

Bush

NEW MANAGER: Patrick J. Duffy has been named manager of the Hotel Hamilton, succeeding Walter A. Henkel who has become manager of the Hotel Manger in Boston. Duffy has been in the hotel business since 1929 and was associated with the Hamilton from 1935 until 1941, when he entered military service. After the war in 1945, he joined the Hotel Emerson in Baltimore and comes here from the position of executive assistant manager of the Emerson.

ODD LOTS: Folger, Nolan, Inc. is a member of the syndicate which is offering $4,895,000 of City of Norfolk water and general bonds at prices to yield 1.15 to 2 percent, depending on maturity . . . Price of grade A tin for spot delivery climbed a cent a pound yesterday and set a record high of $1.12½ . . . Business failures in week ended October 12 increased to 188, highest level in the past 10 weeks, Dun & Bradstreet reports . . . Western Maryland Railway asked ICC permission yesterday to change its capital structure by exchanging new securities for those now outstanding . . . Rules dealing with loan guarantees for defense production are available in pamphlet form on request to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

FROLIC: The bivalve population will be seriously depleted tonight when 400 members of the electrical industry conduct their annual oyster roast at the Prince Georges Country Club. The frolic is sponsored by the Electric Institute of Washington.

Stocks Strong With Demand At Brisk Pace

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP).—The stock market advanced today for the first time since last Wednesday. The rise was the steepest in two weeks.

Gains were widely distributed although there was considerable favoritism shown for a handpicked group of shares. Key issues moved up a few cents to more than $1 a share and nearly 100 stocks sold at their peak prices for 1950 or longer at one time during the day. Only two touched bottom for the year.

WHAT STOCKS DID	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	695	377
Declines	225	483
Unchanged	258	284
Total issues	1178	1144

Final prices were at or near the best levels of the session.

TV's continued to rise this morning, sharing the honors for a while with auto issues. A weak strain cropped out in the TV section during the afternoon, however, and several finished in the minus column.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .7 of one point to 84.2. The industrial section did best, with rails a close second. Utilities took third place with a relatively small overall gain.

Last week—when prices on average took the worst spill since the week ended July 15—traders were concerned mainly with the steps taken by the Government (and expected to be taken) to combat inflation.

Today inflationary factors loomed larger. Prospects of continued high corporate profits and rich dividends, especially around the year-end, were accented. The value of things, expressed by ownership of common stock, was measured against the value of money — and stock prices advanced.

Among the gainers were Sunray Oil, Socony-Vacuum, Chesapeake & Ohio, Republic Steel, General Motors, Willys-Overland, United States Steel, Missouri Pacific preferred; Libby, McNeil & Libby; Anaconda Copper, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Chrysler, Goodrich, Pullman, Armour & Co., Wilson, American Telephone, Atlantic Coast Line, Nickel Plate and Dow Chemical.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP).—Cotton futures snapped out of the recent reactionary trend today under the impetus of broad trade and commission house buying. A late flurry of demand met a scarcity of offerings, with final prices spurting upwards to gains of $4.25 to $9.95 a bale. The December, 1950, and March, May and July, 1951, deliveries closed up the daily trading limit of $10 a bale compared with the lows of the day.

Washington reports that stringent curbs on cotton exports may be relaxed soon, and a strong technical position in futures, combined to boost prices sharply.

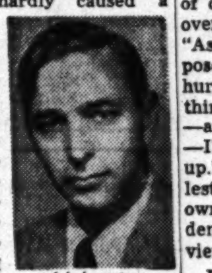
Retailers Disagree on Need For Tight Installment Credit

By J. A. Livingston

RETAILERS and consumers have themselves to blame for the latest curbs on installment credit. They crowed too soon. On October 2, two weeks after the Reserve Board announced restrictions on installment sales of autos, furniture, household appliances and so on, the Wall Street Journal reported:

"Uncle Sam's new curbs on credit have hardly caused a bobble in rip-roaring retail sales. And most merchants think the curbs would have to be considerably harsher—perhaps 20 percent to 50 percent cash payments on big appliances—to cause a sharp slowdown in buying."



Livingston

The original terms made it possible to buy a $200 television set for $30 down, a $500 suite of furniture for $50, and a $60 vacuum cleaner with nothing down. Items under $100 were exempt. But now, the $200 television set calls for a put-up of $50, $500 worth of furniture $75, and a $60 vacuum cleaner $15. All purchases of controlled items over $50 are subject to the regulation.

The following tabulation compares the minimum number of months and the minimum percentage down payment under the new and old regulations:

Item	New Terms Mos.	New Terms %	Old Terms Mos.	Old Terms %
Autos	15	33⅓%	21	33⅓%
Appliances	15	25	18	15
Furniture	15	15	18	10
Home Imp.	30	10	30	10

Retailers were upset by the Reserve Board's action. It seemed sudden—only a month after Regulation W took effect on September 18. Maury L. Nee, of P. J. Nee Co., Washington, D. C., furniture chain and chairman of the retailers' committee which consulted with the Reserve Board on installment credit, declared that the board "acted ill-advisedly." He complained that not enough time had passed to measure the effect of the original terms. He also complained that on Thursday a retail committee had conferred with representatives of the Reserve Board and left with the impression that the Reserve Board staff was taking under advisement a proposal to defer any new action for 120 days.

R. M. EVANS, the Reserve Board governor who is administratively responsible for installment credit, declared in a telegram to Nee that no member of the board or its staff had made or had the right to make "such a commitment." Only the entire board can make a policy decision.

All retailers do not agree with Nee. One outstanding merchant—the general manager of a group of department stores—said to me over the long-distance telephone: "As a retailer, naturally I'm opposed to tightening terms. They'll hurt my business. But if I were thinking of the national economy—as the Reserve Board has to do—I'd have no choice but to tighten up." He begged to go unnamed lest he "get into a scrap with my own fraternity brothers." Incidentally, he was not alone in his view.

From the Reserve Board's viewpoint, the facts are simple. Since V-J Day, installment credit has increased about 550 percent, far more than any other type of credit. Real estate loans are up about 360 percent and general business loans 140 percent. In August, installment credit jumped 411 million dollars to 13 billion dollars. That's 3 percent in a single month. And spot checks by the Federal Reserve Board around the country indicate that September was another big lending month.

ONE STRANGE criticism of the Board has popped up: That Regulation W favors upper-income families—persons with money in the bank and large incomes. They can buy for cash or shell out the higher down payments, whereas lower-income families can't. But that's precisely what Regulation W is designed to do—cut back the demand for goods by persons who have to borrow heavily to buy.

The Reserve Board can be criticized for doing in two jumps what might have been done in one—a month ago. Board members know little more about installment credit today than when Regulation W was invoked. They had hoped for too much from too little.

But at least the Board members can take a bow for being willing to correct their initial under-regulation. In fighting inflation, it's far better to be too bold than too timid. If installment terms prove too deflationary, they can be amended. And, at this juncture in post-Korean economic affairs—wtih men, materials, and machines scarce rather than plentiful—a little dose of deflation would not be a bad thing.

ADVERTISING OPPORTUNITY
Here's a chance for a college graduate to get a toehold on the advertising ladder. To start, it's only a messenger's job at $30 a week. Within a few months, the next step will be calling on the retail trade, doing merchandising. After that—probably advertising salesman, but maybe research or production or copy, depending on the man. This is really a good opportunity and we want to give it to the right man. Since it's primarily a stepping stone to selling advertising, don't apply unless you have a sales personality. If in doubt, you haven't.

2 TV Makers Sue FCC on Color Ruling

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP).—The charge that the FCC was influenced by biased advice of a staff engineer in making its color television decision highlighted opening today of court fights against the edict.

Suits were filed in Chicago and Brooklyn Federal district courts by firms of the TV industry seeking to upset the FCC order of October 11 approving the Columbia Broadcasting System color method.

New complaints were voiced outside the courts.

The Chicago suit was filed by Radio Corp. of America, CBS' principal rival in the color field; its subsidiary, National Broadcasting Co. and RCA Victor Distributing Corp.

RCA's suit charged a staff engineer for FCC "invented" a "device usable only in the CBS system and applied for a patent on it."

The engineer's name was not given, but the suit described him as one "who took the most active role throughout the hearing on behalf of the commission technical staff, and who is in charge of the commission's laboratory which tested various color systems."

The suit said that because a majority of the commission has no engineering background, the FCC decision, in large part, rested upon the engineer's advice.

RCA said the engineer denied having financial interest in the device. However, RCA contended, his professional prestige and reputation were staked on the CBS plan.

Pilot Sues in Brooklyn

The Brooklyn suit was filed by Pilot Radio Corp. of Long Island City, N. Y., longtime manufacturer of radio sets and pioneer in television. Pilot said the color ruling had brought cancellations of orders for sets and that the firm and its dealers "find themselves burdened with a large stock of black and white television sets which have been rendered unsalable . . ."

Both manufacturers attacked the incompatibility of the CBS system, colorcasts of which cannot be received even in black and white sets unless they are specially adapted.

The Radio-Television Manufacturers Association, representing some four-fifths of the manufacturers, reassured set owners their present models will continue to give service for years to come.

Asked For and Got Time

Robert C. Sprague, association president, requested and was granted time on the CBS network to reply to a talk on color television made last Sunday night by CBS President Frank Stanton.

Stanton took to the air to anwer what he said was the attempt of some manufacturers "to create the impression that the public's investment in television sets is about to be wiped out." He said that "nothing could be further from the truth—present sets will remain useful x x x for the normal life of the sets."

However, Stanton suggested to prospective set buyers that they purchase sets only from manufacturers who promised to make equipment to enable their sets to receive CBS colorcast. And he added it might be cheaper and more satisfactory to wait for sets with built-in color.

RCA announced today it would give new demonstrations of its own color television system in Washington December 5 to industry representatives to show improvements made since the last showings in March.

Steve Nelson, 2 Others Indicted for Sedition

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—The Allegheny County grand jury indicted Steve Nelson, western Pennsylvania Communist leader, and two others today on charges of sedition.

The indictments were based on charges brought by Judge Michael A. Musmanno, on leave from Common Pleas Court to campaign as Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor. After hearing Musmanno and several other witnesses, the jurors returned separate true bills against Nelson, James Dolsen and Andrew Onda. The defendants will remain free under $10,000 bond each.

Race Track Fever

NAPLES, Italy, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Raffaele Ferrigno, 26, a waiter, stripped off his clothing in a crowded downtown square today, mounted a stone lion on the steps of the stock exchange and made as if he were urging his steed on in a horse race. Police found half a dozen losing race tickets in his pockets.

Chest Tests Planned

Plans for chest X-rays for the coming year will be presented to a meeting of the board of directors of the Montgomery County Tuberculosis Association at 8 tonight in the association office, 7 Wilson Lane, Bethesda.

John M. McInerney, chairman of the X-ray committee will present the plans.

Some Q's and A's

Don't Let the Color Thing Bother You

By Sonia Stein

PEOPLE SEEM to have become enormously concerned over the appearance of the color converter required to make present television sets capable of receiving color programs. It's all unnecessary. Several manufacturers have already told CBS, which developed the newly authorized color TV system, that they can manufacture auxiliary color units to go beside or on top of—or anywhere within wire distance—of the major set.

If the idea of clapping a color converter in front of your present screen bothers you—and it is ugly, being as ugly as the dead-eye tube it goes in front of—you might get this auxiliary or "slave" unit which will contain only the color wheel and a screen. It can be housed as handsomely as you like, or as cheaply.

The working part of the TV set remains in your present set. Only the additional color mechanism goes in the auxiliary unit. Hide it in the closet when you are not using it, if you want to.

This is of special interest to owners of sets with doors, since otherwise that kind of set would need a converter on a movable bracket.

AS FOR the converters which do fit in front of the set, they are models of utility—plastic and metal. There is no wheel whirring around in front of your face if that is what you had supposed.

McCarthy Brothers Electronic Co., the local firm which has already offered to convert sets of any size for $70 and adapt them to receive color shows in black and white for $20, is quite enthusiastic about these auxiliary sets and will also have those ready as soon as possible. The Teletone Radio Corp. is already advertising such units to be ready the first of the year.

So many rocks have been heaved at the Federal Communications Commission's decision to authorize the CBS system of color television after November 20, that it's hard to see whether there's a hydra-headed monster or a dear little multicolor chameleon under the rubble. The uproar over the esthetics of the converter is only a sample.

OTHER ROCKS—tossed mainly by manufacturers who aren't anxious to manufacture color sets—have confused the issue. In this and subsequent issues, we'll try to square away the situation a bit.

Q. Can a 16, 19 or 20-inch screen be converted for color?

A. Yes. Because the CBS system must currently be received with the help of a mechanical color wheel until a direct color tube is developed, there is a limit to the practical size of the color wheel and hence the color picture. This limit is a 10-inch picture which is magnified with a clear lens to the size of a 12½-inch picture. If you have a larger screen, your set can be converted to receive this smaller color picture perfectly. The black and white programs continue to be 16, 19 or 20 inches. Converting the set for color will not alter the size of the black and white pictures.

Q. Is there any cheap way out of this, until we're sure what we want?

A. Buy a table viewer for about $10. Put it on a table and look through it to see the color shows on any size screen you've got. Or get a hand gadget which you hold up to your eye. This last one is really a toy. Neither of these can be used by more than one person at a time but if you live alone with your TV set, there you are. Harry Flagle, head of the service department at McCarthy Brothers, is even talking about glasses with color wheels in them and small motors attached. But sets must be adapted first, and that costs upwards of $20.

(More questions and answers on what the FCC decision on color television means to you will appear soon.)

COLOR TELEVISION

with Tele-tone "Tele-color"

IMPORTANT NEWS FOR AMERICA'S EIGHT MILLION TV SET OWNERS AND THE TWO MILLION PLANNING TO BUY TV SETS!

Today, the public is confused about color television. But there's no need to be confused.

If you own a Tele-tone...or if you've ordered a Tele-tone...or if you plan to buy a Tele-tone...

Don't worry! Your investment is safe! You can have color with your Tele-tone set...Fast! Dependable! Low cost!

Right this minute, the Tele-tone Corporation is speeding the mass production of a package converter called "Tele-color" which will bring you FULL COLOR reception on any Tele-tone Television set — past, present, or future.

Deliveries start January 1st! You can buy any Tele-tone set you want today, knowing you'll be able to get color with it. So why not start today to enjoy the wonderful entertainment you get only on television? Go ahead and get your Tele-tone set now — you'll have color soon.

What's "Tele-color" like? It's a light, compact unit that fits on top of your console model, or if you have a table-model, provides its own console. A flick of the switch, and you have either black-and-white or glowing color!

And it won't be expensive! Tele-tone "Tele-color" will be priced so modestly, it will be within the immediate reach of every television set owner.

What does this mean to you?

1. You can stop worrying about your Tele-tone TV investment. The set you own or the set you buy now, is money safely spent.
2. You will get color television fast.
3. You will get color television at the lowest possible cost.

Tele-tone is one of the pioneers in the engineering of color television receivers. Tele-tone will remain in the forefront of color television progress ...first to bring you the finest in color TV at the lowest cost.

Here's our promise! Fine color television will be yours very soon, at very low cost, with the same Tele-tone set you now own or buy today!

Clever Appetizers Make a Party

By Lucia Brown

ENTERTAINING FOOD IDEAS can brighten up a party like candles on a birthday cake!

Little appetizers with a flavor all their own . . . doughnuts made a new, unusual way . . . cheese straws that are extra snappy . . . dainty sandwich loaves . . . tender shortbreads . . .

Just such tidbits were served us—144 food editors from all over the country . . . at the National Food Editors Conference recently ended in New York.

For instance, there were Terlyakis. Ever try them? The Dole pineapple people brought the idea from Hawaii for the occasion. They're a hot, hearty appetizer made of crunchy pineapple and broiled beef on skewers. Provide about two per guest for an afternoon party.

TERIYAKIS

1 pound tender top beef round or sirloin
1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) pineapple chunks, drained
½ cup syrup, drained from pineapple
¼ cup soy sauce
1 clove garlic, chopped fine
1 teaspoon chopped fresh ginger root or ¾ teaspoon ground ginger
1 small jar stuffed olives, drained (about 22)
22 short metal or wooden skewers (about 4 inches long)

With a sharp knife, cut meat into bite-sized chunks, about the same size as the pineapple chunks. Combine pineapple syrup, soy sauce, garlic, and ginger. Pour over meat cubes and set aside at room temperature for at least an hour. Alternate cubes of meat and pineapple on skewers, then finish off a stuffed olive. (You can safely do this half an hour before your guests arrive.)

Broil 3 inches from heat, turning once, for 10 to 12 minutes. Serve very hot. This recipe makes 20 to 22 servings, sufficient as an appetizer for 8 to 10 persons.

MAYBE YOU'VE TRIED chocolate cake made with tomato soup. At the Campbell's Soup Company luncheon at the conference, we learned how to make spicy doughnuts with tomato soup, too. This is a recipe that will come in handy around Hallowe'en.

PIED PIPER DOUGHNUTS

1¼ cups sugar
1 cup mashed potatoes
5 tablespoons shortening, melted
5 cups sifted flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
3 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cloves
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup
Fat for frying

Beat eggs and sugar until fluffy. Add potatoes and melted shortening. Sift flour together with baking powder, soda, and spices. Add to egg-sugar mixture alternately with soup, mixing well after each addition. Roll dough on floured board until about ½ inch thick. Cut with doughnut cutter. Fry in deep fat at 380 degrees Fahrenheit until brown (about 2 minutes.) Drain on absorbent paper. Dust while hot with a mixture of 1 teaspoon cinnamon and ½ cup sugar. Makes about 40 doughnuts.

GOOD BY ITSELF for tea or delicious as a dessert served along with fruit is Scotch Shortbread. The Blue Bonnet Margarine Company gave us the following recipe:

SCOTCH SHORTBREAD

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 cup margarine
½ cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
Grated rind 1 lemon

Sift together flour and baking powder. Cream margarine thoroughly. Add sugar gradually and cream well. Stir in unbeaten egg and lemon rind. Add sifted dry ingredients to mixture. Turn out on lightly floured board and work lightly to form smooth dough. Divide dough in half and place each half in greased 9-inch pie pan. Flatten with fingers to shape to bottoms of pans. Mark into pie-shaped wedges with back of knife. Prick with fork. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) 30 minutes or until golden brown. This makes 16 servings.

CHEESE STRAWS made a new quick way were featured at the meeting of the Corn Products Refining Co., the people who make Mazola. The basis is easy-mix pastry made with salad oil.

Make the pastry first by sifting together 2 cups all-purpose flour and 1 teaspoon salt. Combine ½ cup salad oil and ¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon of ice water. Beat with fork until thickened and creamy and pour immediately over entire surface of flour mixture. Toss and mix with fork, then form into ball with hands.

Divide dough in half. Shape half into flattened round, and roll out between two sheets of wax paper to ⅛-inch thickness. Sprinkle top with ¼ cup grated cheese (sharp cheddar or processed).

Fold over in middle and sprinkle with another ¼ cup of cheese and fold again. Roll to desired thickness. Lift dough and place on cookie sheet. Cut in strips 5 inches long and ¼-inch wide. Twist, if desired. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees) 8 to 10 minutes or until light brown. Makes 40 straws.

For the next meeting of your canasta or bridge foursome, here's an attractive idea demonstrated when Gerber's entertained on the Starlight Roof of the Waldorf Monday.

CREAM CHEESE PARTY LOAVES

Remove crusts from 6 slices white bread. Use three slices of bread for each triple sandwich. Spread first slice with softened butter and a mixture made by combining 2 cans Gerber's Junior Veal, ¼ cup chopped stuffed olives, and 2 tablespoons mayonnaise.

Cover with second slice and spread with butter and your favorite egg salad mixture. Top with third slice bread. Cut each triple sandwich in half to form small loaves. Frost each loaf with cream cheese whipped and softened with cream.

Tops of sandwiches can be decorated with slices of stuffed olives and strips of green pepper, plus a fluting of meat spread applied to edges with pastry tube. Make up other three slices of bread in same way and you'll have 4 individual cream cheese loaves.

EASY TO MAKE—These snappy cheese straws are almost as easy to make as they are to eat! They're based on the new salad oil pastry mixture, go well with salad

SOUP TO DOUGHNUTS—See any tomato soup in this picture? It's in the doughnuts, well hidden from the eye, but you'll appreciate the extra fine flavor it gives them

CANASTA SPECIAL—The canasta crowd will cheer these individual cheese loaves. Serve them with a fruit salad, such as the pineapple and jellied plum combination in this picture

Mrs. Houghton to Address Chevy Chase Woman's Club

Each Day On Earth

Each day I live is one more day . . . That God is giving me . . . Before my soul is summoned to . . . Begin eternity . . . Another day to work and pray . . . And try to make amends . . . If only by devotion to . . . My family and friends . . . To praise Him and to honor Him . . . And give my gratitude . . . For comfort and security . . . In shelter and in food . . . Then let me linger not in bed . . . Beyond the morning sun . . . But let this be a day for God . . . That I have well begun . . . And when tomorrow comes I hope . . . That it will be for me . . . Another day to work and pray . . . Before eternity.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Salesman, 39, Married and a Father, Narrates His Anxious Experience With Analysis, To Show That Knowledge of Mind Isn't Always Beneficial

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Your frequent suggestion of psychiatric help impels me to state my own experience, as a warning that this type of treatment isn't always beneficial. I am 39, married, the father of an infant son, and a salesman by occupation. I am employed by a large firm, and for several years I was top producer on the sales staff, but this past year I've slipped a little.

In 1945 I was discharged from the Army because of migraine headaches, and psychiatric treatment was suggested. This I obtained in a famous private hospital where I stayed 14 weeks. On entering, my condition improved immediately; but on leaving, all symptoms returned. I reported back to the hospital and was told that intensive psychoanalysis was indicated. This I undertook as the private patient of a staff doctor, making five or six visits a week, an hour each.

Analyzing myself, the doctor merely offering helpful references, I became aware that my suffering was a form of self punishment and I uncovered the root of this; and for a time this awareness helped me to change the situation. After 18 months I discontinued treatment and didn't need any more for seven months. Then I turned to another doctor, and again there was short term improvement. He sometimes used narcosis to help me talk; and I became increasingly conscious of the self punishment pattern, but by now the awareness only increased the suffering.

To make a long story short, prior to analysis I was able to enjoy life somewhat, and only certain situations aroused anxiety; but now I am disturbed by almost everything. Before, I managed to put up a good front on the job; now I can't. I am still working with the help of sedatives which give temporary relief, but right now the depression and tension are terrific, and the knowledge that nobody but me can change the picture; and I seem unable to, makes me feel hopeless.

Recently I talked to the head doctor at the hospital again, who said mine was one of the few cases where treatment did more harm than good, in that it made me aware of the power of mind, which I am able to use only in negative ways.

For example, if I anticipate feeling afraid, panic develops. If I become aware of deciding something, the act of deciding becomes terribly difficult. Once I was a helpful friend, and the desire and capacity must still remain, but I am frozen inside.

The doctor says this will probably go on for several years, then an adjustment may be made, whether for good or ill she didn't say; but she frankly stated that further treatment would be of no avail. Thus you see knowledge of the mind isn't always beneficial; but I would be glad to have your opinion on my case, if you think there is any hope for me.

F. R.

DEAR F. R.: My referrals to psychiatry and analysis don't mean that I naively assume this type of therapy will cure every case treated; or that it holds the remedy for every emotional illness. Not at all. However, when counseling a correspondent who obviously is lost in a fog of defensive illusions and doesn't know what he is shooting at, hence is unable to state the real problem, I first try to make this clear to him. Then if his circumstances make the suggestion feasible, I may propose firsthand psychiatric help for him, as possible guidance out of the woods. How he fares after that is a commentary on his own survival qualities, not necessarily a reflection on others, if he goes from bad to worse.

Mental hygienists aren't gods or magicians. They are merely human beings, some greatly gifted at healing, some middling successful, and some stupidly unfit for the task of treating emotional disorders. These last indeed do more harm than good, as they ladle canned theory, for lack of relevant insight and personal wisdom to offer. Maybe you've been dealing with duffers, or at least one.

Your conviction of having bogged down in awareness of a self punishment pattern doesn't make sense to me. But your short-term improvement always experienced at the start of analysis suggests that inner isolation from humanity is the core of your misery, so that a tentative excursion into psychological intimacy brings a lift of relief,—soon followed, however, by a terrified ("conditioned") impulse to duck back into isolation again. In the hospital experience, you were more or less a center of humane attention, or benign interest, which similarly eased the "isolationist" terror, and held panic symptoms in abeyance until you left and were again a lone wolf in a world of unified men, as it seemed to you.

There is hope for you, when you turn your attention outward to life, and really work for "belonging," not letting anguish or terror hold you back. To get a line on what ails you, and the remedy for it, read Ashley Montagu's epochal little book "On Being Human,"—published this year by Henry Schuman, New York City.

Hadassah's Aid to Israel 'Moral Force'

The "moral force" that Hadassah represents is the organization's greatest contribution to Israel, Mrs. Raphael Tourover, Washington representative to the national board of Hadassah, said yesterday.

Mrs. Tourover, who recently returned from a tour of Israel, spoke before the Washington Chapter of Hadassah comprising the eight local groups. They met for a membership tea at the Statler Hotel, with Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, as guests of honor. Mrs. Harriman is chairman of the women's division, National Christian Committee of the United Jewish Appeal.

Not only has Israel supported the position of the United States and the United Nations in the Korean situation, Mrs. Tourover said, but Israel has sent material help in the form of medical supplies which are now at the Korean front.

CUP CUSTARD WITH RED CHERRY SAUCE

Ingredients: 1 No. 2 can red sour pitted cherries (water packed), ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt, 6 cup custards.

Method: Drain cherries from juice; there will be about 2 cups cherries. If necessary add enough water to juice to make 1 cup. Put sugar cornstarch and salt in saucepan; add cherry juice slowly stirring until there are no lumps left. Cook over moderate heat until juice thickens and comes to a boil, and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Pour over cherries and cool; then chill. Turn out cup custards into individual serving dishes and spoon over cherries and sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Red Heads Must Dress To Flatter Skin Tone

By Ann Lawrence

(Eleventh day of Edna's beauty program)

JUST AS THERE are many shades of red hair, so there are many different complexion colors that accompany flaming tresses.

With red hair often goes the loveliest of all complexions, the pure ivory kind—a beauty at least as precious as the hair itself and one which should be played up. Or, a redhead may have the pink skin which often accompanies auburn hair. This, too, deserves flattering attention.

Even if your complexion, as a redhead, is nothing to brag about, or is definitely unattractive in color or too liberally bespangled with freckles, it should be surrounded with becoming colors, though this may mean omitting from your personal spectrum some of those colors most flattering to your hair alone.

Almost the only thing all reds do have in common is the coppery tone to their hair. Consequently, a general rule for makeup is to harmonize your makeup base, rouge and lipstick with this copper tint.

WARM BRONZE tones do predominate in Edna's hair, so for her makeup a cream base with a hint of copper in it was selected. It is a fairly light base, but thick enough to hide the few skin blemishes which are the result of adolescent acne.

The base is actually one shade darker than her own skin tones, as is her powder, which repeats the bronzey cast. (In selecting your own face powder, try to match your skin, or choose a darker shade than your own flesh tone. Lighter shades have an unbecoming tendency to "stand out" on the face and appear much too obvious.)

FOR HER LIPSTICK, two shades were chosen. One is a vivid true red, which is generally becoming to redheads. It will blend beautifully with black, green, gray or blue. The second shade, to wear with beige, brown, tangerine, is called "holly red" and has warm brownish undertones.

It does not, however, contain any orange pigment—the one makeup color of which all redheads should beware.

While Witches Take Brooms Out of Mothballs, Parties For Halloween Shape Up

NO WITCHES WALK this week, but many are taking their broomsticks out of mothballs. Their annual visit is only a couple of weeks away and it's time to start planning celebrations in their honor. Mr. L. R. F. writes:

DEAR ANNE:

I'm planning a Halloween party for about 20 people. Can you help me with suggestions for decorations, games, and refreshments?

Mrs. L. R. F., Bethesda, Md.

You don't indicate the age of this crowd. However, since we're all children at heart when it comes to Halloween, these suggestions should go with many age groups.

If possible, hold the party in the basement or in the garage. Have everyone come in costume and mask. Make the room a regular chamber of horrors—mild and harmless ones, of course. Station someone dressed as a ghost near the door. Before the guest has a chance to knock, the door opens silently and he is greeted by unearthly groans and the rattle of chains (automobile). The ghost does not speak but shakes hands extending a rubber glove stuffed with cotton and dipped in a pan of water just before the door is opened.

The party room is darkened by covering the few illuminated lights with skull faces of white crepe paper. A few candles sputter in kitchen holders placed high and out of reach. Before guests have a chance to get accustomed to dimness of the room, they kick over cans of small pebbles, just inside the doorway.

In the laundry tub, a bell has been fastened to the faucet and the water turned on so that the bell tolls mournfully during the party. Overhead, paper skeletons dangle from black crepe-paper streamers. Across the doorway hang black crepe-paper strips, slightly dampened with water and long enough to brush faces of guests as they pass through. Skulls framed in black crepe paper decorate the windows.

There are dozens of games and stunts you might play. Fortunes, of course, are important at Halloween. Maybe there's a talented member of your crowd who will dress as a witch and take over this chore in a darkened booth.

Or you might have a big iron kettle filled with strips of paper on which fortunes have been written in lemon juice. A witch could preside over this and all the guests gather around by the light of a single candle. The witch then waves her hand over the pot, repeating a magic incantation, and draws out a fortune. She hands it to a guest, who holds it near the candle. The heat will make the words of the fortune appear. Have them on the ridiculous side. For instance, "You will be married five times!" or "You will discover a secret passage to Russia."

As to food, light refreshments for the party might include assorted sandwiches, carrot and celery sticks, cider and doughnuts, and candy apples on sticks.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

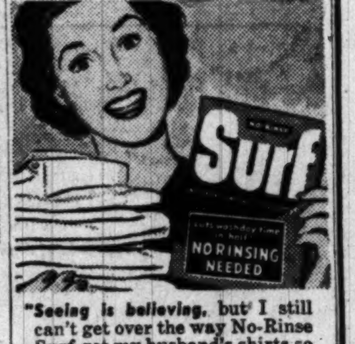
"Seeing is believing!"
says MRS. EUGENE A. ROSS
3802 Yuma St., N.W., Washington, D.C.

"I'll admit I was skeptical about this 'no rinse' business, so I really put it to the test! I washed all my bedding—quilts, blankets, even spreads—with No-Rinse Surf. What a difference it made, not having to rinse those heavy things!"

"I kept peeking at the wash on the line—to see what would happen. Well, my blankets dried so fluffy and smelled fresher than if they'd been rinsed. All my clothes were softer and colors came out brighter and clearer than ever before!"



"Seeing is believing, but I still can't get over the way No-Rinse Surf got my husband's shirts so white—without a bit of bleaching or hard rubbing! I washed in half the usual time—and even the ironing seemed to go easier. You bet I'm sold on No-Rinse Surf."

See for yourself with No-Rinse Surf —only washday product approved by U. S. Testing Co. for no rinsing!

First Lady Starts Social Whirl This Week

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

ENTERTAINING AT BLAIR HOUSE this year will continue to be on a small scale. As in the past two years, officials and diplomats will be received by the President and Mrs. Truman in limited numbers. Large-scale state receptions, which sometimes number 2,000, will wait until occupancy of the remodeled White House, scheduled for sometime in December, 1952.

At a press conference yesterday, Mrs. James Meredith Helm, White House social secretary, announced Mrs. Truman's first engagements for the fall season. The First Lady returned to Blair House from Independence, Mo., the weekend of the seventh, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. D. W. Wallace.

On Thursday, October 19, Mrs. Truman will attend Sir Thomas Beechman's concert with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London at Constitution Hall. Earlier in the day, she will be guest of honor at a reception given by the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America at Dumbarton House.

The following day Mrs. Truman will greet a group of home demonstration women of the Sixth Congressional District of Kansas, who are making a tour of the United Nations, New York, and Washington.

Friday afternoon, Mrs. Truman will receive members of the board of directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. She will be the guest of honor at the opening tea of the season of the George Washington University "Columbian Women," to be given at 1515 New Hampshire ave., Saturday, October 21, from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Truman may also attend the ceremonies to be held on Friday, October 27, by the American Theater Wing at the Belasco Theater where the Stage Door Canteen was held during the war.

VISITORS FROM ABROAD:

VICE ADMIRAL CARLOS TORRES, commander in chief of the Chilean Navy who arrived in Washington on Monday, was the guest in whose honor Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews was host at a small luncheon at the Pentagon. Another party for the visitor yesterday was the dinner given by Rear Admiral Milton E. Miles, director general, Pan American affairs, U. S. Naval Missions, and Mrs. Miles, who entertained at their home in Chevy Chase.

Secretary Matthews' other guests were Vice Admiral Immanuel Holger, chief of the Chilean Naval Mission to the U. S.; Rear Admiral Miles; Comdr. Jorge Escobedo, Naval Attache of the Chilean Embassy, and Capt. Edward W. Young, chief of the U. S. Naval Mission in Chile, who accompanied Admiral Torres from Santiago.

KOTARO TANAKA, Chief Justice of the Japanese Supreme Court, and five associate justices, who are in this country to study American methods of judicial administration, were the guests in whose honor James Perkins Parker entertained at a cocktail party yesterday in the Terrace Room of the Army and Navy Club. Mr. Parker was designated by the Institute of International Education of New York to be escort-consultant to the Justices during their six-weeks stay in this country. The visitors are here under the auspices of the Department of the Army.

In addition to Chief Justice Tanaka, the group includes Justices Shigeto Hozumi, Tsuyoshi Mano, Shuichi Ishisaki, Masaru Higuchi and Seiichi Kishi.

Among those asked to meet them were Jo V. Morgan, president of the District Bar Association; Richard W. Galiher, vice president; James C. Toomey, second vice president; Justin L. Edgerton, secretary, and W. Cameron Burton, treasurer.

Other legal lights asked were George Maurice Morris, Roger Robb, James D. Mann, Leonard P. Walsh, Francis W. Hill, jr., Joe Addison, James J. Hayden, Walter M. Bastian, Paul B. Cromelin, Ward M. French, Wilbur L. Gray, Samuel T. Ansell, Nelson Hartson, Smith W. Brookhart, Thurman Arnold, Daniel L. O'Connor, Jennings Bailey, jr., Cary McN. Euwer, Edward B. Williams, Charles D. Hamel, George E. Flather, jr., G. Bowdoin Craighill, William P. MacCracken, Paul Porter, Max Truitt, Edgar Turlington.

Others invited were United States Attorney George Maurice Fay, Preston C. King, jr., Cornelius H. Doherty, Frank J. Wideman, Oliver O. Dibble,

DATEBOOK DATA:

The Minister of Foreign Affairs of Israel, Moshe Sharett is the guest in whose honor the Minister of Israel and Mme. Eban will entertain at a reception this afternoon in the Federal Room at the Statler Hotel.

The Egyptian Ambassador and Mme. Abdul Rahim will entertain in honor of the Egyptian Foreign Minister, Mohamed Salah El-Din Bey and Mme. Salah El-Din Bey at a luncheon party at Normandy Farm today.

CONGRATULATIONS TO:

Paul Hume—he's music critic of The Washington Post—and Mrs. Hume on the birth of a son—their first child—on Sunday at Georgetown Hospital. The baby has been named Paul Russell. Mrs. Hume is the former Miss Ruth Fox.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY T. McKNIGHT of Cornwell Farms, Vienna, Va., are receiving congratulations on the birth of their first daughter and third child on October 5 at George Washington University Hospital. The baby has been named Christina Agnes. Mrs. McKnight is the former Miss June Hanes, daughter of John W. Hanes, former Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Hanes.

HOBBY SHOW:

One of the most varied collection of hobbies in Washington was on display at the Washington Club yesterday. Club members brought their favorite collections to the first Tuesday morning meeting of the season. Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor displayed some china which she purchased in Moscow in 1928, and which originally belonged to the czars. She also exhibited a Napolean china plate, as well as Central American, Japanese and Turkish rare shawls and tapestries.

Russian icons were Miss Florence Berryman's hobby, while Mrs. R. H. McNeill displayed a collection of old china, including Sevre, Meissen and Dresden.

At Mrs. William Willoughby's table was a miniature Chinese wedding procession. Mrs. Walter Peter showed a collection of bells from all over the world, while Miss Grace Feisinger's table displayed a collection of international dolls.

By Bob Burchette—The Washington Post

Friday Supper Club Dances Begin Oct. 27

The Friday Supper Club dances will start up again this season at the Sulgrave Club, the first in the series of three to be held on Friday, October 27.

This year Meyer Davis and his orchestra will play upstairs in the ballroom and there will be dancing to Cy Delman's Dixieland Band on the lower floor. Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Glover 3d and Mr. and Mrs. James J. Wadsworth will be among those who will entertain at dinners beforehand.

Mr. and Mrs. John Farrington will have guests dining with them and others who will be dinner hosts are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Clapp and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Paul who will entertain together; Dr. and Mrs. Lauriston Hardin, who will have with them for the weekend Mr. and Mrs. Parmely Herrick of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitney Price and Mr. and Mrs. James McSherry Wimsatt. The second dance will be held November 17 and the last on February 16.

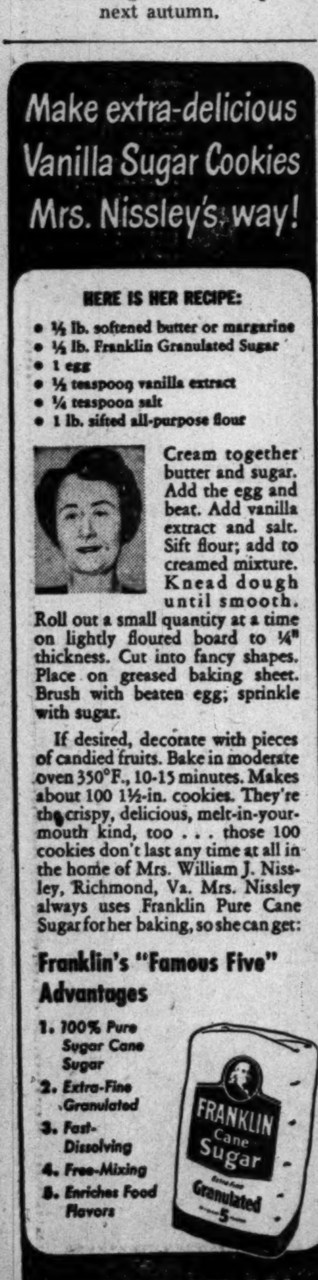
MISS ESTELLE LEHRMAN is engaged to Melvin Appelbaum. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Lehrman of Washington and her fiance is the son of Mrs. Rose Appelbaum and the late Sam Applebaum. The wedding will take place next autumn.



Make extra-delicious Vanilla Sugar Cookies Mrs. Nissley's way!

HERE IS HER RECIPE:

- ½ lb. softened butter or margarine
- ½ lb. Franklin Granulated Sugar
- 1 egg
- ½ teaspoon vanilla extract
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 lb. sifted all-purpose flour

Cream together butter and sugar. Add the egg and beat. Add vanilla extract and salt. Sift flour; add to creamed mixture. Knead dough until smooth. Roll out a small quantity at a time on lightly floured board to ¼" thickness. Cut into fancy shapes. Place on greased baking sheet. Brush with beaten egg; sprinkle with sugar.

If desired, decorate with pieces of candied fruits. Bake in moderate oven 350°F., 10-15 minutes. Makes about 100 1½-in. cookies. They're the crispy, delicious, melt-in-your-mouth kind, too . . . those 100 cookies don't last any time at all in the home of Mrs. William J. Nissley, Richmond, Va. Mrs. Nissley always uses Franklin Pure Cane Sugar for her baking, so she can get:

Franklin's "Famous Five" Advantages

1. 100% Pure Sugar Cane Sugar
2. Extra-Fine Granulated
3. Fast-Dissolving
4. Free-Mixing
5. Enriches Food Flavors

Strategy Subs When $$$ Run Low

By Dorothea Cruger

ONE OF THE NICEST THINGS about Christmas giving is that a little imagination and planning go a lot further than dollars recklessly spent. After all, it's the thought that counts, so give a few seconds of strategy to your Christmas buying.

Instead of going out and buying "any old thing" for Cousin Ermintrude, apply your braincells to the things she uses, needs and may not get for herself. You say she doesn't DO anything, has everything she needs?

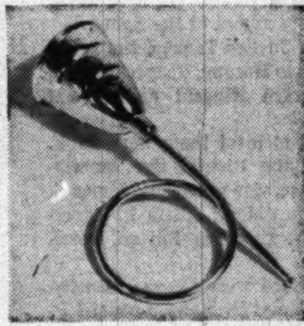
THAT'S NOT THE RIGHT attitude! She's sure to get caught in the rain sometime, without half-trying, so why not present her with a pair of the fetchingly named "Raindears" shown here? She'll thank you profusely the next time they save her from soggy feet and a rheumatism attack!

FOR ANYONE who likes to entertain, a bar accessory, like the horn jigger shown here, makes a fine, practical gift. Any girl who goes partying can use a fancy little evening bag, like this one that carries its own perfume bottle.

All these gifts are under $5. Which proves our point. If time is money, so is a little ingenuity!

HERE'S A GIFT you can offer Grandmother or granddaughter with equal ease and they'll know you have their best interest at heart! Plastic rain boots come in a matching case, slip on over high or low-heeled shoes. No straps, buckles or buttons, for the tops are pleated about the ankles. Called "Raindears," they are available for under $2 at Kann's, Hecht's, Lansburgh's

OFF TO A CHRISTMAS PARTY she goes and carrying this dainty little evening bag of blue taffeta lined in vivid fuchsia. If during the evening she feels a whiff of perfume will add to her charm, out comes the little bottle of Houbigant perfume that's included. Comes in several Houbigant fragrances, at most perfume counters, $5



IS THERE A GENIAL HOST on your shopping list? He'd love this graceful silver horn jigger which measures from ½ to 1½ ounces. For convenience it can be hung about the neck of the bottle. About $1 at Little Caledonia

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

MICHEL'S has a new pianist: Jerzy Witas, a native of Warsaw. He has been in this country since 1947, when he came here to tour with Columbia Artists Management. With a violinist, he appeared in more than 200 American cities and towns—giving solos, performing his own compositions and accompanying the violin.

So Michel has again managed to bring top musicianship into his music lovers' rendezvous. His restaurant on Vermont ave. has always specialized in musical appeal to those who like the popular classics with their dinner or drinks. Michel's orchestra is different.

Marcel Amcher, on the cello, has been part of Michel's group for several years. Originally with the National Symphony, his solos are one of the highlights of the evening.

Papa Moscovici sits at his cymbalom in his colorful gypsy costume and plays his own arrangements in a style that harks back several centuries. He is one of a dozen symbalomists in the country. Carlson does the piano work with the orchestra, and of course Michel is the spark of the group. His violin brings out some of the loveliest melodies and scherzo-dances from Central Europe.

Jerzy Witas, the new pianist, does the solo work. He plays several sets of Chopin, Beethoven and whatever is requested. Duets with Michel will soon be introduced as part of his program, and he accompanies Papa Moscovici on the cymbalom.

Although Witas' musical career has largely been in Europe, where he studied with Walter Gieseking, Emile Frey and at the Warsaw Conservatory, he views America as very exciting. "It's so different from Europe," he explains. "There is a rather uniform level of musical education in Europe, but here, within 20 miles, the audience may change entirely. The musical level jumps up and down."

Witas will find many fellow musicians coming into Michel's to hear him and to play themselves. When Toscanini's orchestra was here, they went to the platform, took up the instruments and played for one another. The Boston and Philadelphia orchestra members make a point of ending up at Michel's.

ART SWANSON'S Temp-Tun'-Aires, at the Neptune Room, have all had service experience, but one, Sonny Gellers, feels as though he's living his over again. Sonny—the organist of the Neptune trio—led an Army band around Korea. And now he's spending his spare time moving thumbtacks on a Korean map, recalling old memories.

Originally a paratrooper in the Philippines, Sonny organized the Sixth Infantry Band, which did its part for morale in Korea, going through most of the towns that are now being fought over.

The other men are not far behind in Army memories. Art Swanson toured 500 Army, Navy and Marine camps with the Camel Caravan. And Jimmy Ware, after starting out as a band man with the Engineer Corps, organized an Air Force band in the Panama Canal Zone.

Hasn't He Heard About Dewey's Suggestion?

Bob Wondree of Alexandria, Va., was showing some visiting friends the Washington Monument. When a woman in another party looked out the window and remarked about the construction work in progress at the White House, her husband commented: "They're getting it ready for a good Republican in 1952."

"And where," growled a voice from the rear, "are they going to find a good Republican by 1952?"

TOP THIS ONE, IF YOU CAN

Gordon B. Colbert of the Metropolitan Police Department has a golf story that should ring down the curtain on the current links season like "The Star-Spangled Banner" closes a meeting. Anything further would be an anti-climax.

Gordon was playing at the old Woodmont course when it happened. In his foursome were Ford McGarvey, Charlie Magee and Clarence Shoemaker.

Having reached the sixteenth green (it's a par 3) the Colbert match stood aside and waved the next foursome a go-ahead for its tee shots.

The first man up cracked a ball that took off straight for Ford. Everybody yelled "Look out," and Ford instinctively turned his back to the ball and ducked. There was a soft "plop" on the green; then Ford turned around and asked: "Where'd it go?"

The ball had hit the green, and jumped into Ford's back pocket on the first hop—and he hadn't even felt it.

Summer rules, fellas. Play that one as it lies, I dare you.

A BUS STOP THAT AIN'T

"Can't you do something about the bus stop at Eastern ave. and Newel rd.? asks Mary B. Hayden of 1617 N. Springwood dr., Silver Spring, Md.

"It's used only a few times each morning, and is not considered a regular stop. So parking is not prohibited, and the bus is forced to load out in the middle of the street where it constitutes a traffic hazard."

A spokesman for Capital Transit answers that the company does not feel justified in asking the PUC to designate the spot as a bus stop, thereby knocking out 83 feet of parking space that's badly needed by residents of nearby apartments.

Only two trips a day load there, stopping for a minute or so each time. Says the spokesman: "Those cliffdwellers would be up in arms if we took away their parking spaces."

LIFE IS SO COMPLICATED

Last August, when the phone company had a copy deadline for the new telephone books which were recently distributed, The Washington Post had to make a decision.

We're moving to a brand new building at 1515 L st. nw., as you probably have heard. But back in August, nobody knew just when the building would be ready, or the move possible.

Inasmuch as the current phone book will probably be in use for about a year, the obvious decision was to list the new number in it, rather than the old "1337 E st. nw." So we did.

But the book was circulated several weeks before the building was ready, and scores of letters started to appear at the L st. construction shack each morning. Post executives learned, with some distress, that many Washingtonians use the phone book as an address guide. The newspaper hadn't moved yet, but part of its daily mail had.

The superintendent of carriers at the local postoffice finally got us untangled. While we're still publishing from our E st. building, Post mail addressed to L st. will be delivered here instead. But letters for the architect and builder, addressed to L st., will be delivered there. As will materials and supplies, we hope. As one Post executive put it:

"The mail going to L st. was only half our problem; it was also discouraging to walk into my office in the E st. building in the morning and find my desk adorned with a shipment of toggle bolts that should have gone to L st."

OLD-BUT-STILL-GOOD DEPT.

Jim Anderson gets a kick out of this one, recently revived in the Public Employes News:

The lady of the house was instructing the new maid in her duties, and said: "Sometimes you'll have to help the butler upstairs."

"That's all right," replied the maid. "I understand. I drink a bit too much myself at times."

Merry-Go-Round

Rep. Rabaut's Office Pay Challenged

By Drew Pearson

The taxpayers don't know it, but they are paying for the honeymoon of a Congressman's daughter. She is Mrs. Jules De Porre, daughter of Democrat Congressman Louis Rabaut of Grosse Pointe Park, Mich.

Rep. Rabaut

Carolyn was the last in a line of daughters who worked as Congressman Rabaut's secretary. But she quit to get married shortly after Easter, and became Mrs. Jules De Porre on July 8. Despite this, she has continued to draw $643.33 a month.

While the Congressman's daughter draws her salary, her job is taken by Marion B. Lacey, who is paid $331.71 per month by the House Appropriations Committee. Very conveniently, the committee "loaned" her to Rabaut to handle "committee business." She is not on his regular pay roll.

When queried by this column, Rabaut explained that his daughter never quit working for him, but just shifted to his Detroit office. Actually, this explanation doesn't hold up, for the Congressman didn't open an office in Detroit until Congress recessed the last week of September. Furthermore, when the Congressman takes a trip to Detroit, his office help in Washington complain that he scribbles letters in longhand and sends them back to Washington to be typed, thus making a mystery as to what his newly married daughter is supposed to be doing for him in his Detroit office. A further check by this column in Detroit indicates that Mrs. De Porre hasn't been working for her father as his congressional secretary at all.

Mrs. De Porre also told this column that she returned to work here between Easter and her July 8 wedding day, but a check at the House Office Building revealed this was not true.

The real truth is that Congressman Rabaut gave his daughter a $643.33 per month wedding gift—at the taxpayers' expense.

Bridges and Lewis

It's no secret that New Hampshire's Senator Styles Bridges, the No. 2 Republican of the Senate, was paid $35,000 a year as trustee for John L. Lewis' miners' welfare fund. In addition, it also looks as if the shaggy-browed Lewis has been giving cues to Bridges regarding foreign policy.

For several months Bridges has been working closely with the State Department and moving into Senator Vandenberg's shoes as the GOP spokesman on foreign affairs, second only to Senator Taft in Republican influence. But, suddenly, Bridges lashed out with a vitrolic attack against the State Department.

This attack, it now develops, was not prepared in Bridges' office at all, but by John L. Lewis' "public relations" firm, the Allied Syndicate.

Tip-off came when the Bridges statements were delivered by mistake to the wrong part of the Capitol. A press attendant called Bridges' office to straighten out the error, but no one in the Senator's office seemed to know about it.

Later, Arthur Reilly, a former John L. Lewis press-relations man, straightened out the matter of the misplaced Bridges press releases.

Reilly, after serving in United Mine Workers headquarters, transferred to the Washington office of the Allied Syndicate, which works for Lewis. The Bridges statement, incidentally, was prepared while the Senator was out of the city.

So it looks as if the $35,000 salary paid by John L. was producing more from Senator Bridges than his services as trustee on the miners' pension fund.

Navy 'Ghost'

The admirals' propaganda outfit, "Operation 23," was supposed to have been abolished after the B-36 feud of last fall.

However, it now develops that the ghost of "Operation 23" is still haunting the Air Force. The same old anti-Air Force stories are being leaked to the press. In fact, Navy propagandists, believe it or not, are spreading the same identical stories as the Communists about the Air Force: namely, that United States airplanes have been killing North Korean women and children.

Actually, B-29 raids in Korea have been so accurate that they demolished the Woosang armament plants without even touching the rows of workers' houses alongside.

Some admirals are also coming out into the open with the same views that got them into trouble over unification. Rear Admiral Stuart Ingersoll, for instance, harangued a recent conference of American mayors on the Navy's success in Korea, as if the Air Force did not exist. "One of the main lessons of the Korean war," declared Admiral Ingersoll, "was the great value of inherent mobilty of the Navy forces."

The admiral pointed out that the Navy had sailed up and down the Korean coast bombarding Communist positions, forgetting to mention that there was no enemy air force to interfere with the Navy.
